Nixon names Saxbe as attorney general

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today named Sen. William B. Saxbe as attorney general and approved the selection of Leon Jaworski as new Watergate special prosecutor with full independence and safeguards against being fired.

The President promised not to discharge Jaworski, as he had Archibald Cox, without obtaining the consent of House and Senate Democratic and Republican leaders and top members of the two judiciary committees in Congress.

Nixon appeared personally in the White House briefing room to announce his nomination of Saxbe, an Ohio Republican who is not seeking re-election, as successor to Elliot Richardson, who resigned Oct. 20 rather than follow Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

The President, without answering questions, then turned the podium over to acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork, who announced that Jaworski would become special prosecutor to pursue "the Watergate matter and related subjects."

Bork said that Jaworski has been "promised the full cooperation of the executive branch." Should Jaworski decide that he needs presidential documents, Bork said, "there will be no restrictions placed on his freedom ..."

Bork said Jaworski, a confidant of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, would have the same broad mandate which had been given Cox. In addition, Bork said that Nixon has given "his personal assurance" that he will not fire Jaworski without first consulting with the specified congressional leaders and "ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

The firing of Cox after his refusal to abide by Nixon's orders to drop efforts in court to obtain confidential White House tapes and documents touched off a massive controversy and triggered moves to start impeachment proceedings.

Bork underscored the same point saying: "Mr. Jaworski is not coming on with any limitations on his freedom of action."

But the bearded former Yale professor who assumed the role as acting attorney general on Oct. 20 and fired Cox as his first act said he does not expect continued court battles over access to White House tapes and documents.

"I anticipate reasonableness on both sides," he said.

As for the other staff of investigators and prosecutors that Cox had formed, Bork indicated he believed Jaworski would retain Cox's appointees.

"I stated to him that I thought that staff was indispensable to the rapid ... prosecution of these cases," Bork said. "He fully agreed."

He said it will be up to Jaworski to decide whether to pursue such investigations as the reported probe of presidential friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo's handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes.

He said the job of attorney general is "one that I'm happy to tackle" and that "I have no doubt I can handle it."

Police make drug arrests

Police made two drug arrests Wednesday when they seized two teeen- agers in separate incidents.

Gregory Jerome Foote, 18, of Bertrand Route One was arrested at 3:25 p.m. on charges of possession of marijuana and possession of narcotics paraphernalia.

Police, acting on a tip, were armed with a warrant to search his car, according to detectives Dan Hinton and Jack Patterson. They located Foote driving on East Malone Avenue and stopped him near Pizza Inn.

The detectives said they found the marijuana and paraphernalia in the glove compartment. Also involved in the arrest were Scott County Sheriff's Deputy Bud Jones and highway patrolman Norris Grissom.

Foote was released on $1,300 bond.

Gary Dale Allen, 19, of Charleston Route One was arrested at 11:10 p.m. for possession of marijuana and underage possession of intoxicating beverages when the car he was in was stopped on East Malone.

Two other youths in the car, also arrested for underage possession of intoxicating beverages, were David L. Culbertson, 20, of 109 E. Gladys and John Crowley, 19, of 600 Pine.

Harry Hornbeck, 305 Olive, was arrested at 12:30 a.m. today for assault and battery and peace disturbance following a fight at the Wagon Wheel tavern, 849 W. Malone Ave.

Hornbeck allegedly fought with Leroy Ottinger, who was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for cuts and bruises and held overnight for observation.

Other arrests included Joan Simmons of Anniston for driving while intoxicated and Travis Smith, Route Two, for driving while intoxicated.

White House says judge can tell tapes ran out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that by listening to presidential tape recordings made April 14-15, Judge John J. Sirica can hear for himself that the tape ran out before recording a vital conversation with John W. Dean III.

The conversation between President Nixon and former presidential counsel Dean is one of two that the White House says was never recorded. It said so much had gone on in the office earlier in the day that the six-hour reel was filmed. A technical expert said apparently an automatic switching system to a back-up recorder did not work.

J. Fred Buzhardt, lawyer for the President, asked U.S. District Court Judge Sirica to employ electronic experts to determine "that the tapes are complete and have not been tampered with in any form."

Richard Ben Veniste, a Watergate prosecution force lawyer, concurred in Buzhardt's request and the judge asked both the prosecution force and the White House to suggest an expert.

Buzhardt told the court Wednesday that a telephone conversation between the President and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was made on an instrument not connected to tape records. That reduced availability of nine subpoenaed White House Watergate recordings to seven.

"It was not until several weeks ago when the President considered disclosure that review of tapes by him was commenced," Buzhardt said.

"It was not definitely determined that the two conversations in question were not recorded until late last week," he said.

Buzhardt said he would call witnesses to show that the tape had exceeded its capacity of six hours conversation on Saturday, April 14 and early on Sunday — a time when technicians did not routinely check the recording devices.

"The judge himself can hearing the running out of the tape," Buzhardt said.

Secret Service technician Raymond C. Zumwalt, who installed and serviced the automatic recording equipment in the President's offices, was scheduled to testify before Sirica.

Through all the court fights, high-level statements, and eventual agreement by the President to comply with court orders, the existence of nine tapes sought by Watergate investigators was never questioned.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said at the White House that Nixon had been unaware until last weekend that specific conversations of June 20, 1972, and April 15, 1973, were not recorded.

J. Fred Buzhardt, the President's counsel, told Sirica a four-minute conversation on June 20 between Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was on a telephone not connected to recorders.

And the April 15 conversation between the President and former counsel John W. Dean III was "not recorded due to malfunctioning of the system or inadequacy of the system," Buzhardt told Sirica.

Warren explained that extensive conversations and discussions in Nixon's office on April 14 and 15 — prior to the Dean meeting had been recorded. But, he said, "when this conversation took place the first recorder had run out, filled up and the alternate recorder was not activated until the next day, the 16th."

April 15 was a Sunday. Zumwalt testified Wednesday that the equipment was serviced only on weekdays

Head Starters

Gov. Christopher "Kit" Bond has designated this week as Head Start Week in Missouri. One of the several Head Start programs in the state is located on Airport Drive in Sikeston. Part of the Head Start training is in constructive education fields that revolve around playing. Sonya Butler, 5, (top picture) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butler, spends part of her time learning to create designs and patterns of color at the easel. Gordon Jimerson, 4, left (bottom photo), son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lynn Jimerson, and Robert Dale Lay, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lay, exercise their time building towers of cardboard blocks at the Head Start facility.

4 hurt in accidents

Four persons were injured in three area accidents Wednesday and early today, the highway patrol reported today.

Glen Beussink, 24, of Lutesville received arm cuts and bruises at 12:30 a.m. today on Interstate 55 two miles south of Perryville when his tractor- trailer truck rapidly overtook another tractor- trailer rig driven by Thomas Morris of Alpena, Ark., and struck it from behind.

Beussink was taken to Perry County Memorial Hospital in Perryville.

A one- vehicle accident at 10:50 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 172 in Wayne County one and one- half miles west of Wappapello State Park resulted in minor injuries to Lonzo Taylor, 42, of Wellston.

The accident occurred when a lug bolt on a rear wheel of a two- ton truck came off, causing Taylor to lose control of the truck which overturned.

Taylor received cuts and bruises and was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Two persons were injured at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday on Cemetery Lane in Fredericktown when James Edward Stallings, 31, of Fredericktown lost control of a pickup truck which ran off the road and struck a tree.

Stallings suffered chest and leg injuries and a passenger, Betty Metcalf, 38, of Fredericktown, received head cuts. They were taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Scott above average in government units

Does Scott County have more or fewer governmental agencies, for its size, than other communities?

How many of these administrative bodies, with power to pass rules and regulations affecting local residents, are there in the county?

A comparison of the local governmental structure with that found in other sections of the country, is made possible through a report on the subject, recently released by the Department of Commerce. It is called "Governmental Organization."

The data for it was gathered from all parts of the country in connection with the 1972 Census of Governments. The findings indicate that, in many areas, community affairs are being directed less and less by county, municipal and township governments and more and more by autonomous or semi-autonomous sub- divisions.

Increasingly, the controls are being delegated to school districts and to special districts with responsibilities over toll roads, bridges, water supply, fire and flood control, public housing and the like.

In Scott County, the report shows, there are now some 32 units of government in operation, 24 of them with property taxing power.

They consist of 16 municipal governments, no township governments, 7 independent school districts, 8 special districts and the county government itself.

The number is 3 more than was tabulated in 1967, when the previous Census of Governments was taken.

By way of comparison, there was a reduction of 3.7 percent nationally in the number of local governments in the five- year period.

From the standpoint of population, Scott County is listed as having one agency of government for every 1,041 local people. The average elsewhere in the nation is one for every 2,676 and, in the State of Missouri, one for 1,667.

In many communities, the figures indicate, the trend is toward a streamlining of the governmental process. Nationally, the number of local governmental agencies dropped from 81,299 to 78,268 in the five years.

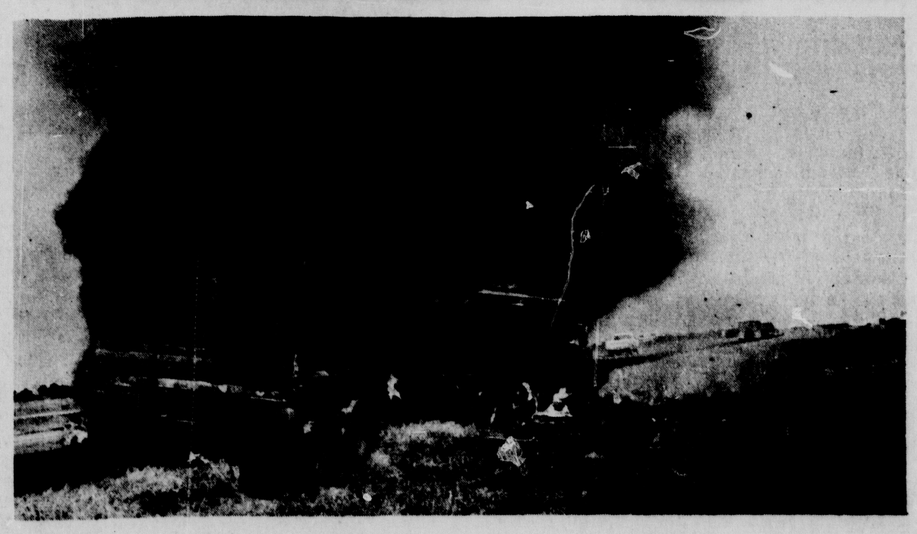
All county Farm Bureau members are invited.

Trick or treater injured

EAST PRAIRIE — Barbara Meyers, 9- year- old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meyers Jr. of Route One, was injured Wednesday when she ran into the path of a car while trick or treating.

The accident occurred about 6:45 p.m. on South Martin Street. The driver of the car was Kenneth Patrick, 306 Lee Ave.

Miss Meyers was treated for multiple scratches and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.



Truck burns on highway

A tandem dump truck caught fire shortly after 9 a.m. today on Interstate 55 just south of the Interstate 57 interchange. The truck, owned by Jerry Reece Trucking Co. of Hayti, was driven by Jim Williams of Sikeston. Williams said he doesn't know why the empty truck caught fire. The fire was extinguished by the Sikeston and Miner Fire Departments.

CHRISTMAS SEAL TIME

More than 60 million American families and businesses will soon receive their 1973 Christmas Seals in the mail. The Christmas Seal campaign, which begins on Tuesday, Nov. 6, is a traditional reminder that the battle against tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases remains to be won. About 35 million men, women and children suffer from such respiratory ailments as TB, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, pneumonia and asthma. Social Security disability payments to chronic lung disease victims last year totalled $400 million, according to the American Lung Association (formerly called the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association), which sponsors the annual campaign. This year's national honorary chairman is Johnny Bench, all-star catcher for the Cincinnati Reds, who last year underwent lung surgery for removal of a lesion caused by a rare fungus disease known as valley fever.

The Christmas Seal stamp was the idea of a Danish post office worker named Elinar Holboell who, in 1904, sold them to raise money for a children's tuberculosis hospital. The idea was brought to the United States by Emily Bissell who, in 1907, was asked by the doctors at a small TB hospital in Delaware to help raise $300 needed to keep the institution open. Having read about the Danish experiment, Miss Bissell decided to conduct a similar appeal in the United States.

The newspapers, the President, the Chief Justice of the United States, congressional leaders, prominent businessmen and churchmen spoke out in support of the Christmas Seal campaign, and urged people to buy as many one- cent stamps as they could afford. Around $3,000 was raised in the few days before Christmas, 1907. For the next two years, the American Red Cross sponsored the national campaign. The National Tuberculosis Association joined the crusade in 1910 and took it over 10 years later.

Last year's Christmas Seal campaign raised a record $38,000,557. The American Lung Association riased an additional $4 million for other sources. About 93 per cent of the total amount was retained by state and community associations for various locally oriented programs, such as the mobile chest X-ray program. Unfortunately, to get its $42 million, the American Lung Association had to spend $10.5 million for fund-raising expenses -- about 25 cents out of every dollar collected.

MR. PHELPS IS NOT FULL TIME

Lieutenant Governor William Phelps, who is now waiting around the edges to see if Attorney John C. Danforth and Governor Christopher Bond are going to let him make the GOP race for United States Senator against Thomas F. Eagleton, is a busy, busy man.

When he was seeking the office of Lieutenant Governor, Phelps let the entire state know that he was going to be a full-time Lieutenant Governor. He was going to make it a full time job.

But the first thing you know the Lieutenant Governor is dabbling in the real estate business. He has obtained a federal contract to provide office space to the Social Security Administration at $12,000 annually for five years in a building he has just erected at Nevada, Mo.

One of the bidders against Phelps was a Republican and while his sadness could be over his failure to get the bid for the building, Finis Moss had this to say about the transaction:

"I'm not happy about this thing at all and I'm a Republican. A lot of Republicans are upset about it. He advertised when he was running that he was going to be full-time in office. Now he's out running around and getting in the real estate business. A lot of people I know just don't think it's right for him to be in public office and be renting to the Government."

The entire thing seems to have been a family affair. Although Phelps' name does not appear on corporation papers filed with Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick in Jefferson City, it appears that he did handle the entire transaction. So Mr. Phelps isn't, after all, a full-time Lieutenant Governor.

BERRIGAN CASE PROSPECTIVE JURY STUDY DEFENSE AID

In a sort of now-it-can-be-told story, five social scientists have revealed how they conducted a pretrial survey which is credited with helping defense lawyers win a mistrial in the celebrated trial of antiwar priest Phillip Berrigan on charges that he and seven others conspired to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and blow up heating ducts in Washington.

The trial ended in April, 1972, when a Harrisburg, Pa., jury rejected by a 10-2 vote the government's conspiracy allegations, writing an end to a two-month- long case in which the Justice Department presented 64 witnesses and spent $2 million.

By means of personal and telephone interviews, the team of sociologists sought to establish a profile of local residents which would indicate the kinds of jurors most likely to vote for acquittal. They stipulated, however, that if any of those interviewed were called as jurors they would not provide defense lawyers with specific information about that person.

Anticipating charges that their behavior was improper, the sociologists emphasized that they sought basically to help the defense overcome the handicap imposed by the Justice Department's move to bring its indictment in Harrisburg— a community that has three Republicans for every two Democrats, several military installation and war-related industries and an active Ku Klux Klan.

The researchers in fact found that 80 per cent of the residents polled trusted their government, a figure far higher than the national average of 40 to 45 per cent. They reported to the defense on the day of jury selection that "at least four out of five persons who would qualify as jurors would be opposed to the defendants."

They therefore stressed to defense counsel the importance of questioning the jury panel for as long as possible, getting unfavorable people rejected for "cause" and holding out for "the statistically rare but desirable people sketched by our survey findings."

In contrast, the government's prosecuting attorney seldom took more than five minutes to question a prospective juror and "seemed to think one juror was almost as good as another from the government's point of view."

The decision by Federal District Judge R. Dixon Herman to sequester the jury to protect it from harassment from demonstrators and friends of the defendants — a move the defense had opposed — was also of great consequence.

For whatever reasons, the social scientists write in Psychology Today magazine, "bad" defense jurors seemed more likely than "good" ones to opt out of jury service by stating the escape formula, "I have formed an opinion." The prospect of sequestration for four to five months upped the ante for prospective jurors who, as one of them said, "wanted to show those defendants."

The value of the pretrial survey — which cost a mere $450 — is shown not only by the votes for acquittal but by the fact that it came despite the later- revealed dislike of the jurors for chief defense attorney Ramsey Clark and their sympathy for the outnumbered prosecution attorneys.

The moral, if there is any: All's fair in love and war and, the law's elaborate safeguards notwithstanding, in jury trials as well.

BEDEVILING THE HONEST CITIZEN

Judging by recent figures concerning the killing of policemen, sweeping gun control laws, aimed at depriving the law abiding of the right of gun ownership, would be about as effective as outlawing the rising of the sun. These figures show that of the arrested killers of policemen, 71 per cent had been arrested previously and 57 per cent had been convicted, mostly of crimes of violence. This means that it was already illegal for most of them to have guns under federal law and many state or local laws. Between 15 and 20 per cent of the policemen murdered with handguns were killed with their own handguns, which their assailants snatched away from them. This could be the consequence of "Don't Shoot" orders given police in some cities. In the past three years, Black Panthers have murdered nine law officers and wounded 56 more with gunshots. Most of the guns traced to them were found to have been acquired by theft.

The simple fact, as pointed out in "The American Rifleman", is that, "Most police killings are committed by criminals with illegal guns. Rather than passing another law for them to ignore and break, the solution is to put them in jail. There are enough laws now under which that can be done without bedeviling the millions of honest citizens who own guns."

The right of gun ownership is one of the most fundamental and traditional of American freedoms. A gun is a companion of ranchers, farmers, trappers, woodsmen and sportsmen. Those who would strike down the right of gun ownership for these millions of responsible citizens in the name of curbing crime are committing the greatest disservice to the basic principles of our American philosophy of individual freedom.

NEW EVIDENCE ABOUT HEROIN

New evidence of the real truth about Red China comes from a recent witness before the House Internal Security Committee who is certainly in a position to know it. He is Wu Shu-jen, an engineer who studied at Tsing Hua University in Peking, was a member of the Chinese Communist Party for 11 years, and even served as a bodyguard when Mao Tse-tung swam across the Yangtze River in 1956. Four years ago Wu himself swam eight hours to freedom in Hong Kong after Red Guardsmen showed him what communism really is by torturing his 84- year- old father to death.

Mass imprisonment, beatings and executions are common in Red China, Wu reports. There is no freedom of religion or travel. Food is tightly rationed and often in very short supply. Like all communist countries, Red China cannot feed its people.

Wu stressed his personal knowledge of large- scale Red Chinese involvement in heroin production, still blandly denied by our government. Across the street from the office in Canton where Wu worked in the 1960s was a six- story laboratory employing 700 workers. This laboratory produced nothing but heroin, which was shipped out in a Red Chinese Navy gunboat, destined for the West through Hong Kong and Macao. Wu named five large commune farms and a labor camp in Canton province alone where opium poppies are grown on a large scale.

Surely this kind of hard evidence is sufficient to cause our government to face and act on the truth that the heroin which is destroying so many of our young people mostly comes from Red China. HLH

Why Ignore Mafia? Cosa Nostra Smuggling Openly In Sam Ervin's Home State

NEW YORK — Now it is a matter of record that Sen. Sam Ervin has ignored warnings of Mafia operations in his home state — North Carolina — either out of disdain, discomfort or disconcertment while busying himself with his immediate political passion.

A Mafia network, involving most of the so-called powerful Cosa Nostra families, has been and is making scores of millions of dollars from a most intricate smuggling of cigarettes in his state's "Tobacco Road," namely Route 301.

Tough criminals and "hit men" run a regular shuttle, operate secret warehouses, war on each other ofttimes, bribe and deprive Northeastern states of vast sums of tax money. Yet Sen. Ervin, rightfully obsessed with public and political morality, apparently considers his own state's wrongdoers and caterers to the mob well out of his domain.

For years much of the network, according to several unimpeachable investigatory agencies, was run by Tony Granata, whom the authorities link to the so-called Colombo family. He operated out of New Jersey. And it was a most efficient caper. There were some 30 clerks. They ran a tight six-day truck smuggling schedule, the probers say. At the North Carolina end --- somewhere in the Roanoke Rapids-Weldon area --- Granata had a expediter.

There, right on Sen. Ervin's home soil, was --- and is --- a reputed Mafia operative. The recognizable trucks and drivers regularly made the round trips. And still do.

Huge cases of low tax cigarettes (two cents a pack) were openly loaded. They were put in secret truck compartments. Or moved to a small aircraft. They were run into New Jersey and New York where, for example, they cost the latter state about 65 to 70 million dollars and New York City an additional $20 million annually in uncollected taxes.

In New York City there was a regular delivery system. Goons made the rounds of construction sites --- such as the new towering World Trade Center, took orders one day for untaxed, therefore lower-cost cigarettes (the tax being 21 cents a pack) and delivered them to the "consumer" a few days later.

There are at least 93 probes now going into this network --- Brooklyn district attorney Eugene Gold, first deputy police commissioner William McCarthy and Jim O'Conner's special state tax unit. Each has funnelled considerable information to the North Carolina authorities.

But still the smuggling rolls on dispite the arrest of kingpin Tony Granata last March who now is free under heavy bail bond --- $70,000. The authorities say the operation merely was handled by others and one, Joe (Sam) Pontillo, is Granata's "man to see."

Two weeks ago, Pontillo and four others were arrested here on a series of charges involving cigarette smuggling --- which some say ran as high as $50,000 a week. There were charges of "bribery, rewarding official misconduct and giving unlawful gratuities." One of the accused served 19 years for murder. It will all come out during the trial.

The band is considered by New York City police authorities, specializing in the counterattack on cigarette tax avoidance and smuggling, as the biggest of the alleged organized crime distributors.

It is one of four such operations apprehended, but, says one of the city's highest police officials, "there are a lot more and the money is away up there in the millions."

The recent arrests on Oct. 11, should be significant to Sen. Ervin, unless he's disinterested in his home state. All of the five men, caught while unloading thousands of smuggled cartons into the city, are identified by the authorities with three of the toughest Mafia families --- with power in a score of states reaching from here to the Mississippi and a state or two beyond. These are what is known in investigatory circles as the Tramunti, Genovese and Colombo families.

By reputation these are not "families" confining themselves to the traditional loansharking, gambling and shakedowns. Sam Pontillo, allegedly of the Colombo crowd, has a criminal record which includes convictions and prison terms for smuggling narcotics and armed robbery. That narcotics operation is the lowest form of depredation against society.

The three "families" are deep in labor racketeering. According to federal and local specialists and veteran investigators and authorities, the Tramunti "family," long known as the late Tommy Luchese's Three Fingers Brown operation, is deep in garment and trucking rackets and once attempted to seize part of the Northeast Teamsters.

The late Vito Genovese "family" is in the construction field, along with the Gambino crowd. Reports are that the Colombo group, too, has its labor rackets.

So there we have a cigarette-tax evasion conspiracy depriving the big Eastern cities of vital money for housing and social welfare in many states. Incidentally, the other areas of smuggling go into Illinois and Texas, all along the line.

Furthermore, the money takes care of young "troops" in the families who are restless and want a piece of the action and for whom there is little room in the field for financing of new bars or new gambling territory or new labor rackets. But they are the manpower for terror. And the cigarette smuggling income keeps them in blue chips.

These are social cancers spreading swiftly across much of the land. Legitimate surveillance and counter-action in North Carolina, especially along Tobacco Road, Route 301, could knife out the malignancy.

It does seem that Sen. Sam Ervin should take time out from his newest political passion to help in this surgery. He might even get TV coverage.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Rebozo and White House in Hughes double-cross.

WASHINGTON — Not long after Bebe Rebozo took a $100,000 cash gift intended for President Nixon from industrialist Howard Hughes, the President's friend joined in a White House plot to link Hughes to the Democrats.

This amazing double-cross is revealed in confidential White House memos, which we have uncovered in the course of investigating Rebozo's role as a money raiser for the President.

The memos show that in January 1971, White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman sought to plant stories in the press tying the eccentric Hughes to Democratic national chairman Larry O'Brien.

This was only a few months after Rebozo had received the last of two $50,000 installments, paid in $100 bills, from a Hughes aide. Yet Rebozo apparently had no hesitation to help expose the financial ties between the phantom billionaire and the Democrats.

Aware Of Dealings

Rebozo was careful to request, however, that he be kept informed "if any action be taken with regard to Hughes" because of "his own dealings with the Hughes people."

Both Haldeman and Dean, therefore, knew of Rebozo's dealings with Hughes, although the memos don't make clear whether they were aware the billionaire had slipped Rebozo $100,000 for the President.

Haldeman decided, nevertheless, to go ahead with the plot even if it meant "embarrassing" Hughes. Haldeman instructed Dean, however, to keep "Bebe out of it at all costs."

Haldeman asked White House counsel John Dean in a memo, dated January 18, 1971, to begin "an inquiry into the relationship between Larry O'Brien and Howard Hughes."

Dean reported back bis "preliminary findings" on January 26, 1971. Among others, Dean spoke to Rebozo.

Bebe's Information

"I discussed the matter with Bebe Rebozo who indicated that his information regarding (a retainer paid by Hughes to O'Brien had come from Robert Maheu, the recently released head of Hughes' Nevada operation." reported Dean.

"Bebe said that this information had come to his attention at a time when Maheu was professing considerable freindliness towards the Administration, but that it was not documented information. Bebe indicated that he felt that Maheu had possibly retained O'Brien for his services without any direct knowledge by Hughes himself.

"Bebe is under the impression that Maheu had a good bit of freedom with Hughes' money when running the Nevada operation. Bebe further indicated that he felt he could acquire some documentation of this fact if given a little time and that he would proceed to try to get any information he could.

"He also requested that if any action be taken with regard to Hughes that he be notified because of his familiarity with the delicacy of the relationships as a result of his own dealings with the Hughes people."

'No Doubt'

Dean also reported that Robert Bennett, son of Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, represented Hughes. "Bennett informs me," wrote Dean, "that there is no doubt about the fact that Larry O'Brien was retained by Howard Hughes and the contract is still in existence .... Bennett also indicated that he felt confident that if it was necessary to document the retainer with O'Brien that he could get the (documents)."

Two days after receiving Dean's report, Haldeman sent him confidential instructions.

"You should continue to keep in contact with Bob Bennett, as well as looking for other sources of information on this subject," Haldeman directed. "Once Bennett gets back to you with his final report, you and Chuck Colson should get together and come up with a way to leak the appropriate information.

"Frankly, I can't see any way to handle this without involving Hughes..... The problem of 'embarrassing' him seems to be a matter of degree. However, we should keep Bob Bennett and Bebe out of it at all costs...."

Anderson Column

As it happened, we were the recipients of the White House leak. We reported on August 6, 1971, that "Hughes' lieutenants offered to subsidize Larry O'Brien so he could serve without pay as Democratic national chairman during the 1968 campaign."

We quoted O'Brien who acknowledged he had been "sounded out by Maheu in 1968" but insisted he "never drew a dime from the Hughes interests during the campaign." Several months later, we reported, O'Brien was retained by Hughes.

We have spoken to O'Brien again for an updated comment. "If they'd wanted to know about my relationship to Hughes," he said, "they could have looked at the public record.... If they didn't want to look at the public record, they could have saved themselves the trouble by simply calling me on the telephone."

O'Brien said his fee was "a personal matter between me and my clients." But in a letter to Maheu, dated August 21, 1968, O'Brien said his "annual fee would be $180,000, payable in monthly installments."

Haldeman told us through his lawyer that he remembers the exchange of memos but doesn't remember the outcome. Dean and Rebozo refused to comment.

Kleindienst denies perjury charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst denies he committed perjury by failing to tell the Senate about President Nixon's order to drop the ITT case and his own threat to resign rather than obey.

Kleindienst repeatedly stated under oath during 1972 hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee that there was no White House pressure on him to halt the antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

He acknowledged in a statement Wednesday that Nixon telephoned him on April 19, 1971, and, "without any discussion, ordered me to drop the appeal" of one of the three parallel lawsuits.

He defended his Senate testimony by saying he "was not asked whether I had had any contacts with the White House at the time of this decision, and I did not deny any such contacts."

But an examination of the two volumes of the hearing record shows that Kleindienst was asked repeatedly about the sequence of events on April 19.

And he was asked several times if he had ever had any contacts with the White House concerning the ITT case. He repeatedly denied any contacts amounting to pressure or directions and conceded only that the matter may have been mentioned in some of the many casual conversations he had with White House officials.

Kleindienst disclosed for the first time that the controversy forced him to the brink of resigning.

By his account, former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman called him on April 19 "and stated that the President directed me not to file the appeal in the Grinnell case ... I informed him that we had determined to take that appeal, and that he should so inform the President."

Nixon called moments later, repeated the order, and Kleindienst then "sent word to the President that, if he persisted in that direction, I would be compelled to submit my resignation."

April 19 was the deadline for the government to notify the Supreme Court of its intention to appeal a lower court decision against the government's challenge of ITT's acquisition of the Grinnell Corp.

Advance Council member resigns

ADVANCE — The City Council has accepted the resignation of one councilman and made a decision on water and sewer hookups in the Hitt Addition.

The council accepted the resignation of Councilman Boyd Jenkins, effective Oct. 16. No plans have been made for the election of another councilman.

The council gave Sylvester and Carl Elfrink permission to make hookups onto the present city sewer and water lines. At an earlier meeting, the council had voted not to let the Elfrinks run water lines into the addition.

The council approved the issuance of a beer license to Elvis Coleman.

There was also discussion on hiring a replacement for Marshal Roy Sifford until he is well enough to resume work.

Two fined for throwing eggs

EAST PRAIRIE-- Mike Bryant, Dale Crump and Robert G. Tripp were fined $25 each this morning in City Court following their arrest Wednesday night on charges of disturbing the peace by throwing eggs. Twenty- five dozen eggs were confiscated.

Student Council to hold dance

RICHLAND — The Richland High School student council will sponsor a fall festival Friday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Richland High School featuring booths of all kinds.

Climaxing the night's festitivites will be the crowning of the fall festival king and queen.

Car recovered

DEXTER — A car stolen sometime after 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at Hudgens Phillips 66 Service Station on the corner of McCollum and Walnut streets was recovered early today by the owner, Larry Hudgens, who found it parked near the station.

Sikestonians tour fashion mart

COLUMBUS, Miss. — Two young women from Sikeston, Mo., were among the 31 students majoring in fashion and retail merchandising at Mississippi State College for Women who spent four days at the Dallas Apparel Mart in Texas earlier this week.

The students from Sikeston were Karla Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Bailey of 819 Ladue, and Nancye Trigg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Trigg Sr. of 900 Hawthorne.

They visited the merchandising plants of Bobbie Brooks, Herman Marcus, Inc., Nardis of Dallas and Howard Wolf, Inc.

The annual trip, organized to provide an insight into buying and selling techniques among some of the largest firms in the fashion industry, was under the direction of Miss Jeannette Brock, home economics instructor at MSCW.

During the Friday-Monday trip, the class also attended special showings at Neiman- Marcus and accompanied buyers to the more than 2,000 showrooms.

The mart, which annually displays the spring line of fashions, drew more than 20,000 buyers from throughout the Southwest, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Ann Landers

Teen-age sex test updated from '66

Dear Ann Landers: It's been a long time since you first printed that "Know Thyself Sex Test For Teenagers." Anyone who digs cats between 13 and 19 knows that mossy old test of 1966 needs updating.

A committee of four--- two males and two females, from 15 to 17--- have revised the original test and here it is. Please warn the old geezers who are subject to heart failure to skip Ann Landers today.

Instructions for Scoring: For each YES answer, give yourself the number of points at the end of that line. Add up the score and compare it to the Scoring Guide:

Ever been out with a member of the opposite sex?...2
Ever been kissed?...2
Ever been French kissed?...2
Ever been kissed while in a reclining position?...2
Ever been parked for more than one hour?...2
Ever said "I love you"?...3
Ever said "I love you" to more than one person in the same week?...4
Ever made a member of the opposite sex cry?...3
Has a member of the opposite sex ever made you cry?...3
Ever removed some of your clothes while making out?...5
Ever removed ALL your clothes while making out?...8
Ever gone all the way?...8
Ever had an abortion or been responsible for one?...10
Ever been picked up by someone you never saw before?...7
Ever had sex with someone you just met that night?...10
Ever lie to your folks about where you've been or who with?...7
Do you smoke cigarets?...1
Do you drink?...2
Taken downers or uppers or both?...6
Smoked pot?...3
Ever tripped on LSD?...8
Ever done cocaine or shot up speed or horse?...10
Ever had sex without any precaution against pregnancy?...8

Scoring Guide

7 or under-- Innocent And Unaware
8 to 14--- Pure As The Driven Snow
15 to 24--- Normal and Decent
25 to 30--- Passionate And Heading For Trouble
30 to 45--- In Trouble And Getting Messed Up
45 to 55--- Messed Up But Salvageable, Maybe
55 to 65--- Condemned. Either you are a damn fool or you have freaked out completely and are no longer responsible for what you are doing.

Yours truly,
Normal And Decent

Dear Normal And Decent: According to my figures you don't rate that signature if you have over 17 points. I hope that's where YOU are.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35c in coin to P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Homecoming dance set for Saturday night

The annual Sikeston High School homecoming dance will be held Saturday in the school cafetorium beginning at 8 p.m. The Dead Weight, a group from Hermann, will provide music.

Students attending must have their school identification cards, and students inviting out- of- school dates must sign a form in "A" office before the dance. Dress will be casual but jeans will not be allowed.

Dinner has dual purpose

About 150 people crowded Heritage House Tuesday at noon for a ham 'n bean dinner which senior citizens of the center made available to the general public.

The luncheon had a two-fold purpose - one to earn money for the center, the other to show people of the area the purpose and use of the center in the life of the community.

There are four vacant places to be filled immediately for the Nov. 8-10 Nashville tour sponsored by Heritage House. Any adult interested in going on the tour should call 471-8059.

Lecturer studies architecture

By PAT GROJEAN

The architecture of county courthouses and city squares can provide an insight into the attitudes of both past and present residents of the area, Marian M. Ohman of Columbia tells people in her lectures throughout the state on the sociological history of Missouri courthouses.

Mrs. Ohman is program coordinator in humanities for the University of Missouri Extension Division. She was in Sikeston Tuesday morning at an organizational meeting for two seminars to be held March 10 and 17. The programs will consist of two parts each day. The first half of each session will be a slide-lecture presentation, and the second half will be open discussion of related issues.

The distinctive features of several architectural styles will be discussed in the program.

Mrs. Ohman spent Tuesday afternoon touring the Bootheel area and taking pictures of courthouses and town squares in the area. She will include these slides in her presentation.

Mrs. Ohman, who deals with 19th century courthouses, looks for the way in which the courthouse or square reflects the lives of the community. She also considers the style of architecture and its historical period.

"The condition of the courthouses today reflects the attitudes of the people," Mrs. Ohman said.

She added that the way in which the courthouse has been maintained throughout the years and what the county may spend its money for when not used for upkeep on the courthouse causes certain questions about the attitudes of the people which she cannot always answer.

"Courthouses were used for many purposes in the past," Mrs. Ohman said. She explained that they were often religious meeting places, housing for itinerants or others, schools, and much more.

Mrs. Ohman, who is interested in developing a cultural history of Missouri, said she loves to present this lecture and tries to make it a personal experience for her audiences.

She explained that she tries to provide a sociological look at the architecture of the courthouses and will not become involved in local problems.

Mrs. Ohman expects her doctor of philosophy degree to be conferred in December. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in sociology and a masters degree in art history with a minor in American history.

This is her third lecture year with the university.

The series is sponsored through the Missouri State Committee for the Humanities by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington, D.C. It will be presented locally by the University of Missouri Extension Division of Columbia.

Planning seminar

Mrs. Marian M. Ohman of Columbia, seated second from left, plans a two-part seminar on a sociological look at Missouri courthouses with representatives from the Bootheel area. Among others present at the planning session Tuesday morning seated from left, are Mrs. Kathryn Kinnard of Portageville, area continuing education programmer at the Delta Center; Miss Dorothy Conway of New Madrid and Mrs. Alic Hill of Kewanee. Standing are Mrs. Ruth Millington of Advance and Mrs. A. D. Martin of Sikeston. Mrs. Ohman will present her lecture series in the Bootheel in March.

Eight accident patients were treated Wednesday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Barbara Myers, 9, East Prairie, multiple scratches, hit by car; Lawrence Williams, 25, Sikeston, sprained neck in car accident; Freida Penrod, 56, Sikeston, bruised chest in car accident; Tony Wilderness, 4, Lilbourn, injured left side of face in fall against table.

Missouri's public schools employed 1,440 men and women in the area of Guidance during fiscal 1973. There were 469 men and 352 women working in the high schools, while 179 men and 156 women served as guidance personnel in the junior high schools. A total of 65 men and 219 women worked in elementary guidance programs, according to data compiled by the State Department of Education.

The greatest number of curtain calls in ballet is believed to have been after a performance of "Swan Lake" in Vienna in 1964 — 89 curtain calls. The dancers were Dame Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev.

Lawyer accuses co-op of disguising political gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fired lawyer for the nation's largest dairy cooperative swears the group disguised illegal corporate "campaign contributions" as legal fees.

The allegation is being investigated by the Senate Watergate committee, the Watergate prosecution force, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the General Accounting Office.

Investigators are seeking to find how much of a reported $384,000 legal bill went into the alleged contributions, who got them, and whether any of the money was used for any other purpose.

The ousted lawyer, Joseph A. Rose Jr., 35, was fired from his job as the San Antonio-based Associated Milk Producers Inc. in September after he told part of his story to FBI agents.

A spokesman for the group said Rose was fired for "failure to carry out his duties."

Rose testified in a lawsuit that the milk producers funneled political money through an Oklahoma City lawyer, Stuart Russell, and that Russell converted it to checks and cash and gave it to the milkmen's chief political staffer, Robert Lilly.

Court filings show Russell received $384,000 in a 10-month period ending April 30, 1972. At least part of the money apparently went for legitimate legal costs, since Russell performed legal services for the milk group during that period.

Rose said Russell acknowledged passing money to Lilly for "political contributions," and became nervous about the arrangement when IRS agents traced some of the money to Lilly. Federal law prohibits use of corporation money for political donations.

Rose said Lilly indicated he knew who got the money, and that he left open the possibility it had gone for something other than campaign funds.

Rose said he felt it was his obligation as a lawyer to get the money back, but that Lilly told him, "It can't be recouped because it didn't go to something like the Committee to Reelect the President. It went direct."

Rose was asked, "By direct, you mean like hundred dollar bills in a brown bag, is that the way you understood it?"

"That is my conclusion," Rose said.

He testified in a tangled lawsuit in Kansas City, Mo., on Oct. 23, and a transcript of his statement became available in Washington Wednesday.

Russell and Lilly couldn't be reached for comment. A spokesman for the milk producers declined to comment on Rose's allegations.

The milk producers have been at the center of another political controversy. Public-interest groups have alleged in court that the milkmen bought favors from the Nixon administration in return for campaign donations.

Miss Fugate must wait

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A roadblock to parole has been removed for Caril Ann Fugate, but the ex-sweetheart of mass killer Charles Starkweather will have to wait another three years before possible release from prison.

The state Pardon Board Tuesday commuted her life sentence for murder to 30 to 50 years. At the earliest under Nebraska law, she could be considered for parole in May of 1976. Commutation to 25 years would have made her eligible for immedate parole consideration by the separate parole board. Without commutation, parole cannot be granted.

Miss Fugate, a 14-year-old eighth grader at the time, accompanied Starkweather, 19, on a three-day killing rampage in 1958 during which nine persons in the Lincoln area were killed, and a 10th was shot to death near Douglas, Wyo., moments before the pair were captured. Starkweather was executed in 1958.

Convicted of murder for aiding and abetting Starkweather in one of the killings, Miss Fugate has spent half of her 30 years of life at the York, Neb., women's reformatory.

She received word of the pardon board action without comment. Jacqueline Crawford, reformatory superintendent, pictured her as grateful for the commutation, but disappointed that release cannot come earlier.

Gov. J. James Exon and Secretary of State Allen Beermann voted to commute her term. Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, third board member, dissented.

Miss Fugate was not called before the pardon board. Relatives of the victims appeared to oppose clemency.

Entered in the record was a transcript of an Oct. 5 interview of Miss Fugate by parole board members in which she again protested her innocence.

"If I would have to stay in this institution for the rest of my life, I would stand upon these grounds I am not guilty," she declared.

I'LL TELL THEM I REMEMBER YOU. By William Peter Blatty. Norton. 173 Pages. $5.95.

In this touching reminiscence, William Blatty evokes the days of his childhood while at the same time dealing with the occult and putting forth his thoughts on the possibility of life after death.

Using his mother, a charming Lebanese immigrant, as his focal point, Blatty, author of the best-selling "The Exorcist," tells of how the mother fought to bring up her five children after their father had left and succeeded admirably. Some of the stories Blatty tells of his mother are touching, others are humorous, but all show what a most remarkable woman this was.

Ag. Department reports price decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects of consumer relief at the supermarket were held out by government economists Wednesday in the wake of a decline in the price of raw farm products.

The Agriculture Department reported a four per cent decline in price between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15. This followed an eight per cent drop the previous month, the sharpest one-month drop in 25 years.

Officials said lower prices for cattle, hogs, wheat, broiler chickens and eggs contributed the most to the decline.

There were higher prices reported for milk, rice, oranges, dry beans and grapefruit.

Administration officials have predicted that retail food costs will begin to slow down as farmers complete record harvests and begin to turn out more livestock, milk and poultry.

So far, however, evidence compiled by the government indicates that consumers have not benefited to the full extent from drops in raw farm prices.

Last week the USDA said retail prices of farm produced food dropped 1.5 per cent in September.

Confirmation hearings begin today on Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford faces questions about his handling of campaign contributions and his views on executive privilege as the Senate Rules Committee starts his confirmation hearings.

Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said, without referring specifically to Nixon's Watergate woes, "You have to assume we may be confirming a president."

Ford, the House Republican leader, planned a detailed opening statement today as Congress prepared for the first time to act on a vice presidential nomination under the 25th Amendment.

The odds still favor prompt, overwhelming approval of Ford to replace Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned.

However, Cannon said Wednesday that, in his inspection of more than 1,700 pages of raw FBI data on Ford, "I have seen things that will certainly raise questions."

He said these include "the question of laundering campaign funds" and charges of "making certain political contributions in exchange for certain favors."

However, Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., said, as he prepared to resume reading the FBI data, he has found nothing that will jeopardize approval of Ford "under any circumstances."

Cannon said he hopes the hearings won't take more than six to eight days. Cook said he doesn't expect the Senate to wait for House hearings before considering the nomination.

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., has said he hopes the House will act on the nomination by Thanksgiving.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said earlier "it is conceivable" the House Judiciary Committee will begin its hearings next week.

Cannon and Cook both said Ford is probably the most investigated nominee in the nation's history. He has given the committee copies of income tax returns and other requested records.

Cannon, in citing charges of "laundering campaign funds," said the committee will ask Ford about the $11,000 in 1970 campaign contributions that he channeled to the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

A similar amount was then sent by the committee to Ford's Michigan District, but he didn't report the contribution in the statement he filed with the House.

Cannon didn't elaborate on his reference to charges of contributions in return for favors and, when asked if he considered some of the FBI data embarrassing to Ford, said, "I don't think I should make a comment about that."

Representatives of Mideast in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For today, at least, President Nixon seemed to have the Egyptians and Israelis where he wanted them — in the same city talking about a Middle East settlement.

However, despite their presence here at the same time, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy did not come to Washington to talk to each other. Instead, they came separately to plead their own special interests and to obtain as much support as possible from Nixon for positions that appear to be in direct conflict.

Before her breakfast meeting today with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a noon session with the President, Mrs. Meir told reporters that problems and questions had arisen out of her country's relationship with the United States.

She asked to talk with the President and Kissinger to "seek answers and clarifications," Mrs. Meir said upon her arrival Wednesday afternoon.

She described as "an oversimplification" reports Israel had been subjected to undue pressure from the United States concerning cease-fire lines.

Meanwhile, in Tel Aviv Wednesday, an Israeli military command spokesman said dozens of trucks carried emergency supplies for the Egyptian 3rd Army through Israeli Suez Canal lines.

A relief operation for the 20,000 men of the encircled military force was in its third day on the southern end of the waterway. The Israeli military spokesman said the cargoes of about half of a 125-truck convoy had been shipped to the east bank of the canal.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat continued to refuse to exchange Israeli war prisoners until Israel pulled back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines established by the U.N. Middle East truce.

He also said that, once the Israelis withdraw, Egypt would be willing to "start immediately with peace talks" in an international peace conference under U.N. sponsorship.

U.S. officials privately acknowledged they would prefer an Israeli pullback and Mrs. Meir didn't deny being aware of the American position.

In fact, some Israeli sources said one of the goals of her visit is to convince Nixon not to back her government against the wall on the issue.

They said the United States should realize Israel is a democracy and subject to popular pressures, particularly on matters involving prisoner exchanges and territorial gains.

Mrs. Meir also was expected to seek assurances that the United States, in its effort to appear even-handed, is not wavering on its position that outside powers should not impose a settlement on the Middle East.

Egypt continues to insist publicly that it will not negotiate directly with Israel, although it would attend an international conference once the Israelis withdrew to the Oct. 22 lines.

Privately, there are indications Egypt may be more flexible. U.S. officials said they were pleasantly surprised by Fahmy and predicted important progress within weeks.

In fact, it was Fahmy's visit and the reports of his friendly reception that caused Mrs. Meir to suddenly come to Washington.

She is said to have felt it was time to re-establish the image of her close personal relationship with Nixon.

Mrs. Meir will stay in the United States until Saturday, taking advantage of the opportunity to talk with influential businessmen and members of Congress.

U.S. sources agreed with suggestions that these contacts will result in public and private commitments of support.

This will help Mrs. Meir both at home in reaffirming her government's position as still holding major influence in U.S. policy making and in applying indirect political pressure on Nixon, the sources said.

Fahmy has been in the United States since Monday and has seen Kissinger twice and Nixon once, on Wednesday.

The Egyptian official, who was formally named foreign minister Wednesday, spent 45 minutes with Nixon at the White House shortly after his appointment was announced.

As he had about his previous conversations with Kissinger, Fahmy said his talk with Nixon had been useful. No details were available about the meeting, but Fahmy reportedly gave Nixon a message from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger told reporters earlier Wednesday that "we believe we are making progress" on the Middle East problem. He later told Nixon that he and Fahmy "have had some very good talks."

Although she made no secret of the "problems and questions" her government has concerning U.S. policy, Mrs. Meir said at her airport arrival ceremony that Israel and America are steadfast friends.

"I've come to Washington, come to a friendly country, a friendly government and a friendly President," the 76-year-old prime minister said.

In fact, Mrs. Meir continued, it is this close relationship that brings problems and, at the same time, allows her to frankly discuss the situation.

It would "be almost unnatural for the United States to see things exactly in the same light as Israel sees it," she said.

Drivers urged to maintain safe distance

Col. Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, noted that all too many drivers fail to maintain a safe following distance from the vehicle ahead of them. Traffic records show that following too closely is a contributing factor in thousands of accidents each year.

"The practice of following too closely or 'tailgating' can lead to a serious traffic accident," Smith declared. "Drivers who 'tailgate' the vehicle in front of them sooner or later trap themselves into a rear- end collision. They either hit the vehicle ahead or get hit from behind because they suddenly need to stop. Motorists should observe the rules pertaining to following distance as they travel."

Col. Smith pointed out that State law requires that the driver of a passenger vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonably safe and prudent, having due regard for the speed of such vehicle and the traffic upon and the condition of the roadway. Drivers of busses and trucks may not follow within 300 feet of another vehicle.

"A good rule of thumb for a safe following distance is at least one car length for every 10 miles per hour of speed," the colonel continued."But remember, this is only a minimum cushion of space that allows for a safe stop. Weather, highway conditions and other variables may dictate a greater following distance for safety.

"Thousands of traffic accidents each year involve drivers following too closely, "Smith concluded. "I urge drivers to maintain a safe follosing distance so as to better avoid being involved in a traffic mishap."

Bluff pair on trial for fraud

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Defense witnesses took the stand in Federal District Court here Wednesday in the government's case against a Poplar Bluff couple charged with using the mails to defraud when obtaining money through false pretenses.

Eugene Britton and his wife, Linda Lou Britton, are accused of collecting in excess of $7,500 in insurance claims after staging a traffic accident on March 29, 1972, in Butler County.

The government contends the Brittons feigned injuries from the accident and incurred medical and hospital expenses for treatment.

A 14- count federal indictment alleges that, as part of the scheme, Britton obtained 23 separate first-party insurance coverages between June 2, 1965, and date of the accident. Mrs. Britton is said to have obtained 11 insurance policies during that period.

Two counts were dismissed Tuesday on the opening day of the trial at the request of Frederick J. Dana, special attorney from the U. S. Department of Justice.

The prosecution's first witness, Charles Henry Myers, 33, of Arkansas, told of being hired by Britton on March 29, 1972, to rent a truck and "have an accident with a pickup truck he (Britton) owned."

"I was to rent a truck and then hit his truck so he could collect insurance policies on his," the witness said. He said he carried out the plan, renting a truck for the accident."

The accident occurred at the intersection of Route T and a county road. Myers said he ran a stop sign on the county road and hit the Britton truck which had been parked by the owner. He said the Brittons were out of the truck when it was struck.

Myers said he was cited for careless and imprudent driving, spent the night in jail and was fined $20. He said Britton was to pay him $100 for carrying out the plan, reimburse him for cost of renting the truck and he netted between $80 and $100 from the accident.

Number calling for impeachment doubles, poll shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox doubled the number of persons calling for impeachment, according to a poll conducted by Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., in his district.

Litton said Tuesday his survey indicated the dismissal of Cox also reduced the number of constituents who approve of the President's performance and increased the number disenchanted with politicians and pessimistic about the future.

The freshman Democrat said the conclusions were based on questionnaires sent to nearly 200,000 households in his norther Missouri district two weeks before Cox was fired. The answers were returned before and after the firing.

Litton said the number of persons advocating impeaching Nixon rose from 16 per cent before the firing to 32 per cent in the two days following that event.

The number who said they approved of the way the President was running his office dropped from 30.7 per cent to a low of 21 per cent before edging up to 22 per cent.

In answer to another question, 70 per cent of those polled said they thought most public officials were not interested in the problems of the average man before the firing. But Litton said that figure rose to 73 per cent afterward.

Before the firing, 61 per cent said they believed the lost of the average citizen was getting worse instead of better. Within two days after Cox was ousted, the figure increased to 68 per cent before leveling off at 64 per cent.

Prior to the Cox announcement, 78 per cent of those answering the questionnaire replied affirmatively to the statement, "these days a person really doesn't know who he can count on." The figure increased to 80 per cent after the firing and then dropped to 79 per cent.

The Missouri congressman said the questionnaires were being received in his Washington office at about 5,000 per day and the total returned is expected to reach 50,000.

Malden to vote on city manager issue

MALDEN — A special election has been called by the Malden City Council for Dec. 4 to determine if the city manager form of government should be adopted.

The action was taken Monday night by the council. The ordinance was approved unanimously.

Petitions were presented to the council on Oct. 8 by the Malden Jaycees bearing 431 signatures requesting that the election be called.

Should voters approve the change to the city manager system, a second election must be called at which time five persons will be elected to form a City Council. The council will then employ a city manager to administer the affairs of the city.

In other action Monday night, the City Council voted to submit to the citizens of Malden in the form of a $970,000 revenue bond to pay off the recently purchased electric generators. These bonds would be retired directly from revenue derived from the sale of electrical power. They would not affect taxation.

This will also require a special election. The sole purpose in switching to revenue bonds is to save nearly one per cent interest on financing the generators. The city would realize a savings in excess of $70,000.

No date has been set for this election.

Country music show set

CHARLESTON — A Grand Ole Opry type music show is scheduled Nov. 10 at the National Guard Armory with two performances set at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The program, featuring George Mitchell of Nashville, Linda Lee and the Jimmy Griggs Show of St. Louis and Little Arnie Stone of Sikeston, is sponsored by the Charleston auxiliary police unit.

Proceeds from the show will be used to purchase police equipment.

Merchants who purchase tickets but do not want to use them may return them to the auxiliary police unit which will give them to underprivileged children of the area.

University of Missouri enrolls record 48,681

COLUMBIA— Continuing its steady growth in enrollment, the University of Missouri this fall has enrolled a record 48,681 students (head count) at its four campuses at Columbia, Kansas City, Rolla and St. Louis, according to university president C. Brice Ratchford.

The enrollment represents an increase of 1,254 students over the 47,427 enrolled a year ago, making this year's increase the largest single year gain in enrollment at the university since the fall of 1969 when the increase was 3,285 Ratchford said.

Enrollment this fall by campus and the change from a year ago is as follows:

Columbia campus: 22,815, an increase of 714 from last year's 22,101. (This figure includes 128 students enrolled in graduate programs conducted by the UMC College of Administration and Public Affairs under a contract with the U. S. Air Force at Whiteman Air Force Base.)

Kansas City campus: 10,087, a gain of 268 over the 9,819 of a year ago.

Rolla campus: 4,190, a decrease of 162 from last year's 4,352.

St. Louis campus: 11,589, an increase of 434 from the 11,155 of a year ago.

While the Rolla campus enrollment declined by 162, President Ratchford noted the decrease was substantially smaller than earlier had been expected. He said this may indicate that enrollment in engineering is beginning to make a comeback, just as many have believed it would.

The enrollment report this fall shows that, in addition to the campus enrollments, there are an additional 3,867 students enrolled in credit courses offered as part of the University's extension programs. This is an increase of 397 from a year ago.

The figure includes 462 students at the University of Missouri- Rolla Graduate Engineering Center in St. Louis and 3,405 other students enrolled in correspondence and other extension credit courses.

The campus enrollment figures, when broken down into several categories, show the following (excluding the 128 students in the Whiteman AFB program):

By classes, the figures show: freshman, 10,795; sophomore, 8,369; junior, 9,115; senior, 7,654; special and unclassified undergraduate, 1,700; graduate professional (includes students in dentistry, law, medicine and veterinary medicine), 2,350; masters, 6,882; and doctoral, 1,668.

Missouri resident students, 42,090, an increase of 1,693 from last year; out- of- state students, 6,463, a decrease of 464 from a year ago.

Male students, 30,410, a gain of 381; female students, 18,143, an increase of 848.

First time freshman students, 7,276, an increase of 264 from last year.

Washington report

Senator says Nixon should reinstate Cox

By STUART SYMINGTON

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In May of this year, when revelations about official misconduct brought a wave of resignations and discharges of Federal government officials, Americans were promised that justice would be pursued fairly, fully, and impartially.

To that end the President nominated Elliot Richardson to be Attorney General and said he was giving him absolute authority to make all decisions bearing on the prosecution of the Water gate case. He also gave Mr. Richardson authority to choose a special supervising prosecutor for matters arising out of the case.

Prior to confirmation by the Senate, Mr. Richardson announced his intention to name Professor Archibald Cox and drew up the guidelines relating to the special prosecutor giving him full authority for investigating and prosecuting offenses against the United States arising out of the unauthorized entry into Democratic National Committee headquarters at thyWatergate and offenses arising out of the 1972 presidential election.

The guidelines set forth the specific responsibility to determine whether or not to contest the assertion of "executive privilege" or any other testimonial privilege in the investigation of the President, members of the White House staff or presidential appointees. The guidelines assured that the special prosecutor "will not be removed from his duties except for extraordinary improprieties on his part."

This all was wiped out by the extraordinary events of October 20.

Having chosen not to seek a review of judicial orders to produce certain recordings and documents for the Watergate Grand Jury, the President proposed a method by which the tapes might be filtered to both the Senate Watergate Committee and the Grand Jury. He ordered that the Special Prosecutor not proceed to argue in court that the President's somewhat cloudy plan would not meet the Grand Jury's requirement. The Special Prosecutor explained to the public why it was necessary to seek compliance with the order of the Court.

There followed resignations forced by the demands of honor and service of Attorney General Richardson and Deputy Attorney General Ruckelshaus, both declining to carry out the President's order to discharge the Special Prosecutor. The President ultimately succeeded in obtaining the dismissal of the Special Prosecutor.

In effect, the President chose to try to still one of the two essential voices in the adversary system on which the rule of law relies to find the truth; and, to, in effect, preside as the judge in his own case.

Millions of Americans, I among them, were both amazed and distressed at the prospect of the announced intention to defy the court. Millions of Americans, I among them, are also somewhat relieved that the President altered his course Tuesday and announced he would comply with the judicial order. So much harm has now been done. So much time has been wasted. Every effort should be made to restore as nearly as possible the situation existing before October 20.

Inasmuch as the announced reason for insisting on the firing of the Special Prosecutor was the position he took on the need of the Grand Jury for papers and recordings in the possession of the White House, and inasmuch as the President has now decided to abide by the Court's order with respect to the tapes, it would seem reasonable for the President to reinstate Professor Archibald Cox as the Special Prosecutor. I believe that would be an act in the nation's interest, and the speediest method of seeking to restore public confidence.

The nation needs to put Watergate behind us, but that cannot be accomplished in good faith until the matter is investigated by an independent and impartial prosecutor. I do not believe in fact or in appearance that the hallmark of independence in the prosecutorial functions can be achieved now by a return of the Watergate investigations to the Department of Justice from which it was lifted when events relating to the alleged cover up surfaced in the spring.

Doctor looks for Washington denture

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A search is under way for half of a denture once worn by George Washington.

Dr. Reidar F. Sognnaes of the University of California at Los Angeles said Tuesday he is looking for the lower right half of Washington's third set of dentures, the left half of which is now at the University of London Medical College Hospital in England.

He said he believes the portion he seeks might be in South America.

Sognnaes said the dentures were orginally inherited by relatives of the first dean of the first dental school of the United States in Baltimore.

"But this dean, Dr. Chapin Harris, had several daughters, one of whom married into an English family, which explains why one half of the denture got to England," Sognnaes said.

"Two other daughters married into South American families, one in Brazil, one in Argentinia ... " he said.

"Somewhere on that great continent there may be a little cigar box in someone's attic containing the missing half."

Sognnaes said he has a means of determining the real right half, but isn't revealing it in case there is an attempted hoax.

Contrary to myth, Sognnaes said Washington's teeth were made neither of wood nor by Paul Revere. He said that for the most part they were elephant ivory and were all made by a New Yorker, John Greenwood.

This incomplete set, as well as earlier dentures, have a hole in the left side, he added. It was for Washington's one remaining natural tooth and held the denture in place. The top half of the dentures was connected to the bottom by a strong spring.

Trade surplus is nothing to cheer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is headed for a huge $2 billion trade surplus with Communist nations this year, but it's nothing for American consumers to cheer about.

The surplus, far exceeding original forecasts by the Nixon administration, is being built largely on agricultural exports, mainly the massive wheat deal with the Soviet Union.

That deal drained much-needed U.S. grain supplies and contributed heavily to the big upsurge in food prices this year.

Ironically, the trade surplus with Communist nations is giving the dollar a boost, making it stronger than it might otherwise have been, U.S. officials said.

Trade with Communist nations is one big reason why the nation's trading accounts are expected to be in the black this year for the first time in three years.

U.S. exports to Russia, mainland China and Communist European countries will be $2.5 billion to $2.9 billion this year, while imports from those countries will be $500 to $550 million, Commerce Department analysts said.

This compares with exports of $878 million and imports of $354 million last year.

"I doubt very much if trade is going to be at this year's magnitude in 1974," said Steven Lazarus, head of the department's Bureau of East-West Trade.

Lazarus said he anticipated a 25 per cent dropoff in U.S. trade with Communist nations next year, largely because of smaller agricultural purchases by the Soviet Union and mainland China.

But exports of other American- made goods will increase, he said.

There is one problem clouding the picture, U.S. officials said. Congress is working on legislation that would deny tariff cuts to the Soviet Union until Russia changes its policies dealing with Jewish emigration.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz says failure of Congress to grant the Soviet Union the same rates on tariffs as other U.S. trading partners could imperil expanded trade between the two countries.

Agriculture is not the only area where trade has expanded between the United States and Communist- bloc nations.

Mainland China, for example, has contracted to buy 10 large passenger airplanes from Boeing Aircraft. It also is buying artificial fibers, communications equipment, scientific testing equipment and chemical fertilizers.

Lazarus said the Soviets sent a 16- person purchasing team to New York in 1972. They began lining up contracts for the Kama River truck plant and apparently participated in the grain purchases.

The 1898 Treaty of Paris ended the Spanish-American War.

and that the switching system to a second six-hour reel apparently didn't work. He said it was the only failure he knew of.

The missing recordings include what Mitchell told Nixon in their first reported conversation following the Watergate break-in of June 20, 1972, and of what passed between Nixon and Dean in a meeting in which Dean said Nixon admitted discussing clemency as part of the Watergate cover-up.

The disclosure brought quick reaction from senators of both parties.

"As of this moment, President Nixon has the clear burden of satisfying the American people that he has been speaking the truth. If he fails in this, then we are faced with a political crisis of the most profoundly disturbing proportions," said James L. Buckley, Con.-R-N.Y.

Republican Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon said the revelation that "the very tapes that have been fought over to the brink of a constitutional confrontation" don't exist "dramatically escalates the problem of this administration's credibilitv."

Student gives schools the slip

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — A warning to quarterback-hungry high school coaches of mid-America — If Billy Wilson shows up, he may not be for real.

Eudora, Kan., High School officials reported Wednesday that a Billy Wilson, described as a straight-A student and all-state quarterback from Jones County, Va., had enrolled there Monday, then excused himself and disappeared.

The story caught the eye of Warrensburg, Mo., High School officials, who report apparently the same youth turned up there last Friday.

Warrensburg High Coach George Arnold reported a man called him Friday morning, identifying himself as a retired government employe by the name of James Wilson. He said his son, Billy, would be coming out to the school to enroll.

Arnold said the youth appeared Friday afternoon, watched a warmup session, pointed out a couple of mistakes by the present quarterback, and even wanted to run a few plays himself. Arnold said the youth, who told of running the 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds, appeared to be "a heck of an athlete."

The youth sat on the Warrensburg bench that night, and wore a team jersey, although he did not play. He left following the game, telling Arnold he would be by Monday to enroll and would see him then.

Monday a youth showed up at Eudora High with virtually the same story, enrolled, asked to be excused to help his parents unpack, then disappeared. A check revealed no Jones County, Va.

640,000 rode buses in 1972

CARUTHERSVILLE— More than 640,000 young Missourians, including 4,823 Pemiscovian students, out of an actual state public school enrollment of 1,082,744 rode buses during the 1972- 73 school year, according to the State Department of Education.

A total of 7,930 vehicles, both school owned and contracted, transported pupils to and from school daily in Missouri at an average annual cost per pupil of $73.89. In Pemiscot County, the number of buses operated last year was 57.

A check with the school districts in Pemiscot County disclosed these figures for the 1972- 73 school year:

Caruthersville School District No. 18, five buses, 596 students transported; Hayti School District, 11 buses, 1,025 students transported; North Pemiscot School District at Wardell, 20 buses, 1,203 students transported; South Pemiscot School District at Steele, 11 buses, 900 students transported; McCarty R- 3 School District, five buses, 260 students transported; Delta C- 7 School District, 10 buses, 572 students transported; and Cooter School District, five buses, 267 students transported.

A total of 7,930 vehicles— both school owned and contracted— transported pupils to and from school daily at an average annual cost per pupil of $73.89.

Commercial lines could envy the safety record of Missouri's school busses when the vastness of the mileage and age of the passengers is considered. Only 574 accidents were reported for school buses last year, including those damage situations where the bus was parked and empty. Only 101 of these accidents or damage situations involved injuries.

Three fatalities and 152 pupil injuries were reported during the 1972- 73 school year. Of the injuries, mostly minor, six were listed as "pupil- caused" accidents and 10 involved pupils crossing the road to board or leave a bus.

Most accidents occur in the loading and unloading areas of the school bus, according to Haynes. One effort to improve this situation involves the signals on the buses.

"All school busses manufactured after Jan. 1, 1973, are required to have flashing lights on the 'Stop' arm which extends from the bus when it is stopped to load or discharge youngsters."

For the sixth year the Deparment of Education is offering workshops to school bus drivers to help prepare these individuals for any problems they might encounter while responsible for young lives. The workshops stress traffic safety, accident prevention, emergency procedures and school bus discipline.

Vets bolster MHS

MATTHEWS — Coach Carl Ritter begins his second year at the helm of the MHS Pirates after an illustrious high school career at Advance and then playing for the SEMSU at Cape Girardeau where he was instrumental in leading the Indians to second place ratings in the AP small college poll his senior year.

Coach Ritter has a veteran squad returning off a 20-7 record in 1972-73. Returning will be Armand Porter, a 6-0 senior who takes care of the post position for the Pirates. Armand is the teams leading rebounder and averaged in double figures for the Pirates last year. Also returning will be Jimmy Hardin, a good ball handler and outside threat. Hardin was also a double figure producer last year. Ricky Parker, a 5-9 forward is also a fine shooter when left unattended from the 15-20 foot range. Ricky can hit in double figures when the opportunity arises.

Coach Ritter plans to lean heavily on Dwight Latham this season, Latham is 5-11 and a spot starter last year. Gary Kenedy is also a spot starter from last years squad. David Kenedy, a junior varsity transfer from last season will be called upon a lot this season as Matthews goes out to improve on last year's record and hopefully a trip to the state class S state tournament.

Matthews gets their roundball season underway November 6 against the Risco Tigers of coach Stan Whitson.

Big Red face Broncos Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The two top passers in St. Louis Football Cardinal history square off Sunday when the Big Red, led by Jim Hart, take on former St. Louis quarterback Charley Johnson and the improved Denver Broncos. Kickoff in Busch Memorial Stadium is set for 1:05 p.m. (CST)

The Cardinals- Broncos get- together could be an interesting and high scoring one. Shaking off a four- game losing streak, the Big Red (3-4) outscored the New York Giants last week, 35-27, with Hart throwing for four touchdowns. Meanwhile, the Broncos improved their record to 3-3-1 with a 40-28 triumph over the New York Jets as Johnson tossed two TD passes.

Johnson, a 10th- round draft choice from New Mexico State, played with the Cardinals from 1961-69 and holds the Big Red career records for most pass attempts (2,047), completions (1,030), yards (14,928) and touchdowns (108). Hart, with the Cardinals since 1966, is the runnerup in each category with 880 completions in 1,843 attempts for 12, 811 yards and 78 TDs.

Having by far the best of his eight years with the Big Red, Hart had perhaps his best game of the season last week against the Giants. He completed 13 of 18 passes for 235 yards and the four touchdowns -- three going to wide receiver Mel Gray and the other to wide receiver Walker Gillette.

The TD strikes to Gray measured 10, 55 and 41 yards while the Gillette pass covered 48 more. Tight end Jackie Smith caught two passes to break Bobby Joe Conrad's former team record of 418 catches. Smith will take 420 receptions and 6,979 career yards into Sunday's game with Denver.

Running back Donny Anderson also was a record-setter last week, running for 130 yards in 18 carries -- a personal one-game high. In addition, Anderson scored his ninth touchdown of the season, matching the most TDs he ever has scored in a season.

"It was a big game for us," coach Don Coryell said after the Giant victory. "The effort has been present every week from our players, and the spirit on the team has stayed very high. The victory meant an awful lot to us."

This will be the first regular season meeting between the Cardinals and Broncos although Denver does enjoy a 2-1 edge in pre-season competition, including a 38-17 victory at Denver in August. The other Broncos win also came in Denver by a 26-16 score in 1970, while the Big Red scored a 17-13 victory in St. Louis last year.

Following the Broncos contest, the Cardinals will take to the road for three straight games -- at Green Bay, a rematch against the Giants at New Haven, Conn., and at Cincinnati. They return to St. Louis on December 2 to entertain the Detroit Lions and close out the season on December 16 against the Dallas Cowboys.

NEW YORK — Cannonade, $10, held onto a stretch lead and won the $28,875 Great American Stakes at Aqueduct, finishing 1 1/2 lengths ahead of Hegemony.

Anderson happy in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals' Donny Anderson had his biggest day Sunday in the National Football League but hopes he never has another like it.

Racked with pain from a twisted neck suffered against the Washington Redskins, the 30-year-old running back nonetheless put in a Busch Stadium appearance against the New York Giants.

And before the day was over, the Giants and not Anderson were suffering the most.

"Along about Thursday I didn't even know whether I'd be able to play," said Anderson, who ripped the Giants for 130 yards on 18 carries and scored a touchdown.

"My wife Karen gave me some rubdowns and massaged the muscles in my neck," he added. "I slept with a brace for a couple of nights, and that helped."

The performance by Anderson, who spent six seasons with the Green Bay Packers before joining the Cards in 1972, was labeled typical by Coach Don Coryell.

"He's a tough old pro," noted Coryell, whose young club whipped the Giants 35-27. "He's been hurt the past two weeks, but he's given us so much help."

A onetime Packers understudy to famed "Golden Boy" Paul Hornung, Anderson says he's shed the description of brusque applied to him in Green Bay.

And part of the new image, he maintains, is attributable to the coaching of Coryell, whom he likens to the late Vince Lombardi.

"His personality's not the same as Lombardi's," the 6-foot-2, 215-pound Anderson pointed out, "but, like Lombardi, he motivates people.

"In Green Bay I was probably thin-skinned," he added, "but that's all in the past. I can only progress by looking to the future."

A more content Anderson two weeks ago played against the Redskins with a badly bruised leg and last week stunned the Giants with a 54-yard run off tackle.

His rushing total at a respectable 318 yards, the former No. 1 draft pick from Texas Tech also has nine touchdowns to match his career high with the season at only its midpoint.

"Yes, you could say I'm more relaxed and loose," Anderson conceded. "Here I feel like I'm part of something for the future that can't miss.

"We just have a lot of young people who are improving," he said. "All in all, I just feel fortunate to be playing here."

Mike Bohannon, Sikeston high school junior varsity quarterback and defensive end, seems to be shying away from the pigskin during this action Monday night against Paducah, but the camera caught the action after the Bulldog star missed on an interception attempt. The SHS gridders edged their Kentucky opponents, 2-0. SHS's eighth graders visit Cape Friday at 3:30 and the sophomore team goes to Cape Monday.

Agronomist advises 'getting ready'

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area Agronomy
Specialist

BENTON — Wheat planting time is here, so better start getting things ready. We expect to see a big acreage planted this fall. Oct. 15 is the average Hessian Fly free date in this area. Arthur 71 is resistant to Hessian Fly so you may want to plant it. This is the only advantage of Arthur 71 over Arthur.

A lot of wheat has been planted in soybeans and cotton with an airplane.

One disadvantage of this method is that no starter fertilizer can be applied. This will be more serious on soybean ground than cotton. Phosphate and potash should be topdressed soon as the cotton or soybeans are harvested. Apply enough of these two nutrients to supply the wheat and soybean needs. If wheat is to be grazed, apply 30 to 40 lbs. of actual nitrogen this fall.

Arthur is the most popular variety grown in Southeast Missouri. It has averaged 46 bushels per acre the past 3 years in variety trials at Portageville. Yields for a few other varieties are as follows: Monon - 35; Knox 62- 40; Sadler-39; Benhur-40; Coker 68-15 - 43; Abe-35; McNair 4823- 40; and Arthur 71-40.

Oasis and Stoddard are new variety releases. Very little, if any, seed will be available this year.

Do your best to test the soil before wheat is planted. Phosphate, potash, and limestone do a better job if they are plowed down and worked into the soil. A fertilizer application of 10 to 15 lbs. nitrogen and 30 to 50 lbs. phosphate and potash will get wheat off to a good start. This is a good program to follow if you do not have a current soil test.

In the event you do not get limestone and fertilizer applied before wheat is planted, all three can be topdressed with no adverse effects. The wheat should be dry when fertilizer is topdressed. Fertilizer and limestone applied in this manner is not as effective as plowed down or disced in, but it is much better than none at all. When the wheat is harvested and stubble turned under the fertilizer will be ready for the soybeans too follow.

TV IS POPULAR PASTIME IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA (AP) — Figures released by the Austrian Federal Chamber of Economics indicate that almost 40 per cent of all Austrians above the age of 15 — 2 million out of 5.4 million — watch television daily.

Prime viewing time is considered to start immediately after the evening news at 8:15.

According to the survey, 14 per cent do not tune in at all, 12 per cent are infrequent viewers and 70 per cent watch at least once a week.

While a heart attack early warning sign can be pain in one arm or both arms, it also can be in combination with pain in other areas. As shown by shading on this drawing, the warning pain can be in the center of the chest, jaws, neck, or abdomen.

Pain in one arm or both arms, shown by shaded areas on this sketch, can be an early warning sign of heart attack. Doctors say patients sometimes mistake these warnings for bursitis or arthritis. Any unexplained discomfort or pain in the arms should be checked by a physician.

Early warning signs of heart attack in arms

Bursitis or heart attack?

Pain in one arm or both arms occurs frequently in combination with chest pain as an early warning sign of heart attack, according to a public education program under way in this area. But pain can also occur in the arm without being in the chest at all.

It can be mistaken for bursitis, arthritis or muscle strain, says the heart association.

In the absence of an obvious reason for a pain or discomfort in either arm or both arms, a prompt checkup by your physician is indicated.

The education program, developed by a state Heart Association in consultation with the American heart association, suggests that persons who experience early warning signs should call physicians first. This enables the doctor to participate in a decision on the mode of travel if the patient needs to go to the hospital.

In many cases, a physician may advise a patient that transport by auto might be preferable to ambulance, as a time saver, especially in rural areas.

In any case, one physician advisor says that a patient who does not feel faint is more comfortable sitting up. The most common mistake made by well- meaning friends or relatives is to have someone who is experiencing heart attack warning symptoms to lie down. The physician stresses, however, that the patient must not drive himself.

The heart association points out that pain in the center and front of the chest is the most frequent heart attack early warning sign– because that's where the heart is located.

Second to this discomfort "under the necktie", as one physician puts it, is arm pain.

This may be a sensation of pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching, and can also occur in the neck, jaws, back or upper abdomen or in a combination of those areas. There may also be shortness of breath, sweating, nausea or vomiting.

The heart association urges that you don't gamble that a pain in your arm is bursitis rather than a heart attack. Have it checked by a physician.

There's good sense in the early warning signs' rhyme: "Early attention can mean prevention."

Senator says former adviser tried to silence news media

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential adviser Jeb S. Magruder once promoted a White House plan to use three government regulatory agencies to silence what the administration called unfair news media coverage, says Sen. Lowell P. Weicker.

The Connecticut Republican said Wednesday night that a memorandum authored by Magruder recommended that the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Department's antitrust division, and the Federal Communications Commission be used to control media criticism.

Weicker, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, said Magruder's memorandum, dated Oct. 17, 1969 and titled "The Shot-gun versus the Rifle," was intended for White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman.

The senator made the memorandum public on a WETA television program. The Associated Press also obtained a copy of the document from a source on the Senate Watergate committee.

"It is my opinion this continual daily attempt to get to the media or to anti-administration spokesman because of specific things they have said is very unfruitful and wasteful of our time," Magruder said in the memorandum.

Magruder reportedly enclosed along with the memorandum descriptions of about 21 requests from President Nixon for action relating to "what could be termed unfair news coverage."

Magruder went on to say "we should begin concentrated efforts in a number of major areas that will have much more impact on the media and other anti-administration spokesman ..."

He listed these suggestions:

—"Begin an official monitoring system through the FCC as soon as Dean Burch is officially on the board as chairman. If the monitoring system proves our point, we have then legitimate and legal rights to go to the networks, etc., and make official complaints from the FCC.

"This will have much more effect than a phone call from Herb Klein or Pat Buchanan.

—"Utilize the antitrust division to investigate various media relating to anti-trust violations. Even the possible threat of anti-trust action I think would be effective in changing their views ...

—"Utilizing the Internal Revenue Service as a method to look into the various organizations that we are most concerned about. Just a threat of a IRS investigation will probably turn their approach."

Magruder also suggested that what the White House considers unfair news coverage could be further squelched by giving preference to "favorites within the media."

"I'm not saying we should eliminate the open administration," said Magruder, "but by being open we have not gotten anyone to back us on a consistent basis and many of those who were favorable towards us are now giving it to us at various times ..."

In April of 1972, the Justice Department filed antitrust action challenging the role of the three networks in producing their own entertainment programs. The suits accused the networks of monopolizing prime-time TV entertainment. Television network news programs were not involved in the suits, said an antitrust division spokesman.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB
Readers Have 'Cures'

Answers on Plantar Warts

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I was very interested in the letters concerning plantar warts in the paper.

For a number of years, I was plagued with them and had every conceivable treatment for them. They were cut out slowly, cut out quickly, burned out with a variety of acids, cauterized, X-rayed (to the tune of $25 a treatment) and even ultrasound was tried. After an extensive surgical removal, which kept me on crutches and in and out of a hospital for three months, they grew back again. I was convinced nothing short of amputation would rid me of them. (I had nightmares about getting plantar warts on my stump!)

My husband was a medical student at the time and finally agreed to "search" for a cure. He found it in "The British Journal of Dermatology, 1963," It consisted of a paste of 20 per cent linseed oil, 20 per cent podophyllin in a base of lanolin. It was applied to the wart for seven days, covered and kept dry the entire time. After seven days, I removed the "plaster" and left it alone. Three months later I was completely free of warts, and have been to this day — nine years later.

We have since recommended it to others who had other unsuccessful treatments, and it worked for them too.

When I think of all the money, time and pain that was wasted on these other treatments, I shudder. The only problem I have now is a very sensitive scar from one of the surgical excisions.

Please pass this tip on to other "victims" and dermatologists alike. The entire cost of this "miracle cure" was one dollar!

Here's hoping everyone can be "plantar wart" free— and painlessly so!

Dear Reader — You won't be surprised to know that I received a long list of cures for warts, and I am glad to have yours. It is included here so various readers troubled with this problem can try it or ask their doctor if he wants to try it.

I was interested to know that many of the cures suggested included covering up the wart in some type of seal over a length of time. One of the suggested cures was to cover the wart with collodion for 10 days. Of course there were numerous suggestions about the use of liquid nitrogen which some doctors use with success.

While some of the treatments that have been suggested are very good, I must caution that some apparent cures are the result of spontaneous disappearance of warts which can, and sometimes does, occur.

Dear Dr. Lamb—The complicated procedures doctors use to remove plantar warts is a disgrace. My daughter had these warts all over her feet and they were removed several times by our doctor but always came back. Each removal left big scars. Then she got several on her face.

I read about a mixture that sounds ridiculous but we tried it and it works — just a few drops of spirits of camphor mixed with ordinary baking soda. I don't know why, but after three days she had no more warts. Please put this in your newspaper articles and let your readers decide for themselves. Thank you.

Dear Reader — Okay. But if it's a wart on the face I'd be happier if it was tried under a doctor's supervision, if at all.

2 issues to face C'ville voters

CARUTHERSVILLE — The Caruthersville City Council has passed two ordinances calling for an election on two issues, a one- cent sales tax and a $400,000 bond issue.

Both proposals will be decided by the voters of Caruthersville on the same day, Nov. 27. The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Polling places are Ward 1, Sacred Heart School Building; Ward 2, Caruthersville Municipal Building; Ward 3, Ark- Mo Power Building; and Ward 4, Caruthersville Public Library.

Prior to a 7 p.m. meeting with city merchants Thursday night, the council passed the two ordinances pertaining to the elections and also adopted a resolution stating that if the sales tax proposal is approved, revenue taken in from the sales tax would only be used for capital improvements.

After the meeting, City Attorney Byron Luber remarked that the resolution would probably be brought up before the council again and adopted as an ordinance.

The city sales tax proposition calls for the establishing of a city sales tax at the rate of one per cent on the receipts from the sale at retail of all tangible personal property or taxable services at retail, if such property and services are subject to the sales tax imposed by the State of Missouri.

A simple majority is needed for passage of the proposal. Absentee ballots will be available.

It was mentioned at an earlier council meeting that a city sales tax would be the only effective way for the city to be able to pay for the sewer project, the water plant renovation, and major work at the lagoon.

About 20 merchants attended the meeting with the council to discuss the city sales tax. All the figures were presented to the merchants as well as a fact sheet on how well the city sales tax idea was working in other cities of comparable size in Missouri.

Only one merchant spoke up against the city sales tax idea. Another merchant said he was personally against the idea but added that as far as the city was concerned, it would be a good thing.

Three merchants spoke up in defense of the city sales tax. Most of the merchants present at the meeting were non-committal.

Clyde Pruiett, owner of a grocery store on Ward Avenue between 5th and 6th Streets where a sewer break has been causing a lot of problems, said in answer to a remark that a city sales tax would drive shoppers out of Caruthersville:

"I've lost about $2,000 in the past week because of the sewer break near my store. The bakery had to close down for a day as well as another business near here. If the city sales tax is approved, the sewers will be fixed and business will go up. I think the people of Caruthersville will accept a city sales tax in order to get good sewers and better streets. I don't believe they will go outside the city to do business.

"As a matter of fact, I asked a customer the other day who had just bought $20 in groceries if she would mind paying an additional 20 cents on her groceries to insure excellent sewers and streets. She said she would not mind paying the additional 20 cents."

Johnny Mitchum, in speaking against the sales tax proposal, said "a city sales tax will drive people away from Caruthersville and we, the merchants, will lose money."

The other ordinance passed by the council called for a bond election in the amount of $400,000 for the purpose of improving and extending the combined waterworks and sewerage system oened exclusively by the city. The bonds will be payable, both to principal and interest, from taxes.

This election was made necessary, the council said, because the estimated costs of the improvements and extensions exceeds the income and revenues of the city. Sufficient funds are not now available in the treasury to pay for the work.

The mayor said the work "definitely must be done one way or another," citing the fact that "state inspectors will not allow our lagoon to continue as it is."

The mayor said if the city sales tax issue failed, a property tax increase would become necessary and a bond election called. If both elections fail, the mayor said the city would just have to "exist with rotten sewers, an ineffective water plant, and no lagoon."

"The city sales tax, however, is the fairest way to get the job done," the mayor remarked. "By this means, everyone would pay his fair share. If the property tax means was adopted, then only the property owners would pay an increase in taxes."

The mayor mentioned that if the city sales tax issue failed, the present $2 per $100 valuation property tax would increase 92 cents per $100 valuation on a 10 year payback for just the sewer work alone. This would mean the bond issue would be for $64,000. If the bond issue were made on a 20 year payback, the increase would be 32 cents per $100 valuation and the amount of the bond issue would be $32,000.

"But," the mayor continued, "we would also have to include the lagoon and the water distribution system."

On a 10 year payback, the bond issue for lagoon work would be $53,000, raising the property tax by 76 cents. On a 20 year payback, the bond issue would be $26,500, raising the property tax 38 cents per $100 valuation.

In regard to the water distribution system and talking about valves only, the bond issue would be $10,600 on a 10 year payback, raising the property tax $1.52 per $100 valuation. On the 20 year payback, the bond issue would be $5,300, raising the property tax 76 cents per $100 valuation.

Considering all three bond issues, the lowest the property tax would be raised would be $1.60 making it a total of $3.60 per $100 assessed valuation. On a 10 year payback, the property tax would mean an increase of $3.20, making the property tax $5.20 per $100 assessed valuation.

"It is the opinion of myself and the council," the mayor said, "that the city sales tax would be the fairest way to pay for what must be done."

Through carelessness or incendiarism, man causes the largest portion of forest fires in the United States. During 1971, some 94,365 fires. or 90 per cent, reported as having burned on protected lands, were man-caused, The World Almanac notes. More than 574 million acres of forest land are protected under the Federal-State Cooperative Forest Fire Control Program.

Bill provides for brand registry

By TOM B. STROUP
Area Associate Director

BENTON — The 76th Missouri Genreal Assembly passed House Bill No. 134 which provides for brand registry at the state level.

In order to register a brand, a farmer or rancher must complete an application with the state commissioner of agriculture.

A copy of House Bill 134 and application for brand registration are available from the Scott County University of Missouri Extension Center in Bengon.

The Department of Animal Husbandry, College of Agriculture, University of Missouri- Columbia, has prepared an excellent Guide Sheet No. 2203 on Branding Livestock. It is also available from your extension center.

The application for brand registration must be returned to Brand Registry Section, Veterinary Division, Missouri Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, together with a $15 recording fee.

To maintain a brand registry, there is a $10 maintenance fee payable every five years.

Branding is a long-recognized and widely- used means of identifying livestock. It is an excellent method of identifying ownership, and a good legible brand may offer protection against livestock theft. the only legal brands for ownership purposes is a hot iron brand on the hide of the animal.

For an application form, contact a university extension center.

Planning will insure adequate fertilizer supply

BLOOMFIELD — Indications are that fertilizer will be in short supply next spring; therefore, farmers should make plans now to deal with this situation. There are several things that can be done that will help to insure an adequate supply of fertilizer for next year's crops.

Phosphate and potash can be applied this fall even for crops to be planted next spring. Neither phosphate nor potash will leach from the soil excessively, so both nutrients will still be available in the soil for the benefit of next year's crops. As crops are harvested this fall, phosphate and potash fertilizers can be applied and plowed down or disked in to await planting season next spring.

Nitrogen as well as other plant food elements can be applied for wheat this fall - especially on clay and loam soils. In spite of the fact that some yield advantage can be gained by topdressing wheat in the early spring as compared to nitrogen applications made at seeding time in the fall, it is better to apply the nitrogen in the fall than to not get it applied at all. In case wheat has already been seeded the nitrogen can be topdressed on at any time. Of course real sandy soils would be the exception, and at least a major portion of the nitrogen should be applied as a topdressing in the early spring for wheat on such soils. Incidentally, comparable results can be expected from the various formulations of nitrogen including ammonium nitrate, urea, anhydrous ammonia, and liquid nitrogen when applied for wheat at equal rates.

A very important thing that a farmer can do to help stretch the supply of fertilizer as far as it will go during the shortage is to be certain that his soil is adequately limed. Lime not only supplies some plant nutrients such as calcium and magnesium, but it also helps other plant nutrients to produce the most efficient results. Included among the plant nutrients helped by lime are nitrogen, phosphate, and trace elements. Lime can be applied any time that trucks can get over the field and crops will not interfere with its application.

The use of soil test as a guide to the kind and amount of fertilizer and lime to apply will be even more important during the fertilizer shortage. A soil test helps us to determine the amount of each plant nutrient involved in crop production to apply to produce the desired crop yield. It helps to prevent the use of excesssive amounts of plant nutrients. It also helps us to determine the proper amount of lime to apply to correct soil acidity and maximize the effectiveness of other plant nutrients. Now is a good time to take soil samples in preparation for planting next year's crop. It should be kept in mind that two to three weeks are required to test the soil and get fertilizer and lime recommendations back to the farmer after he brings his soil samples to the University of Mo. Extension Center.

If the fertilizer shortage becomes as serious as current prospects indicate, steps taken now to help insure an adequate fertilizer supply for next year's crops could mean the difference between a good crop and a poor one next year.

Armed Forces

FT. POLK, La. (AHTNC) — Army Private Jimmie L. Kincade, 18, son of Mrs. Irene Kincade, 513 Lincoln St., Charleston, Mo., completed nine weeks of advanced individual training at the U. S. Army Infantry training center, Ft.Polk, La.

He received general training as a light weapons infantryman and as a mortar and recoilless rifle crewman, in addition to specialized weapons instruction.

He also was taught the proper use of high explosives and the placement, detection and disarming of mines.

Teamwork was emphasized while he learned to work as a member of a rifle squad, mortar squad or direct fire section. Each team member completed the training well qualified to perform other jobs in case of casualties.

ASCHAFFENBURG, Germany — Jimmie L. Williams, son of Mrs. Ruby M. Williams of 3300 W. Dickens Ave., Chicago, has been promoted to Army sergeant.

Sgt. Williams is a tank commander in Company A, 4th Battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division's 64th Armor.

U.S. ARMY, Korea — Army Specialist Four Robert L. Nowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Nowell of Portageville, Mo. Route One, is assigned to the 44th Air Defense Artillery in Korea.

Spec. Nowell is assigned with Battery D, 2nd Battalion of the Artillery.

Former Oran man recovering from near fatal burns

MANCHESTER — Eddie Carroll, a native of Oran, is recuperating satisfactorily at his home in Manchester after being hospitalized for nearly four months with deep burns over 50 per cent of his body.

On May 23, Carroll, a sign company employe, mounted an extension ladder to repair a sign at a restaurant and motel near Chain of Rocks Road at Granite City, Ill.

The sign's hinge broke loose and either touched or came very close to wires carrying 34,000 volts of electricity. The current jumped to the ladder, knocking Carroll's partner, who was coming up the ladder, to the ground. He died five hours later of burns and internal injuries.

Carroll's clothing was set on fire and his upper body was paralyzed. He could not move from the ladder, but he screamed for help.

A Granite City youth, Stephen Smith, 18, was mowing the grass on the ground below as a part- time maintenance worker for the motel and restaurant.

He heard the screams and without hesitation climbed the 40 feet to the place where Carroll was frozen to the ladder. He tore the clothing from Carroll's body and extinguished the flames with a cloth he had grabbed from a truck as he ascended the ladder.

For at least 45 minutes the two stayed on the ladder because there was danger that any movement would cause the ladder to touch the wire again and send a second flow of current through Carroll and his rescurer. It was necessary for firemen to obtain a snorkel truck from Union Electric Co. to get the men down.

Carroll was a patient in the burn unit at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis where he was given a 10 per cent chance to live until the end of July.

A friend, Lt. W. G. Wilson of the Cape Girardeau Police Department, visits Carroll in his home and talks to him by telephone. He said the staff at Barnes Hospital expects Carroll to gain use off his arm again and possibly return to a normal life.

Carroll's wife is the former Miss Carol Chaney of Cape Girardeau. They have six children..

His rescuer, Stephen Smith, has taught first aid to young scouts at Camp Sunnen in Potosi. He is an assistant scoutmaster and holds the Order of the Arrow, an honorary organization for scout leaders.

The play, about a man who seems to have misplaced an entire day of his life, is a mixture of humor and suspense.

The cast includes:

Charlie Hackle, played by Timmy Fowler; Abby Raney, Karol Hooser; Mrs. Raney, Mary Catherine Sides; Mom Hackle, Marsha Commer; Sam Adams, Horrell Townsend; Frank Raney, Bill Cravens; Mini and Maxi Wrenn, Georgia Ivy and Joanne Gardner; Hilga Grindstaff, Loretta Beaher; Tina Williams, Mary Ellen Akins; Anatole Grindstaff, Dean Pipkin; and Professor Zapotka, Julie Ellis.

Tickets may be purchased from any senior, or at the door.

WORKING WOMEN CHAINED IN 1973

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Chaining women to work benches might be every male chauvinist's dream, but it's a reality for the girls who work at Pitney-Bowes-Alpex here.

The shackles, however, aren't meant to keep them in line but only to dissipate the static electricity from their bodies. The girls assemble metal oxide semiconductors into printed circuit boards for computerized cash register terminals.

Even the slightest charge of electricity will "pop" the delicate electronic circuits, so the girls wear wristlets attached to chains leading to a ground on the workbench.

Alumnus donates bird collection to University

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A Southeast Missouri State University alumnus recently gave the university a collection of mounted bird speciments which includes almost all North American species of waterfoul and many foreign species.

The collection donated by M. Glen Smart of Bowie, Md., is on display in Southeast Missouri State's Magill Hall of Sicence where it will be used as a teaching aid in various field biology courses.

It consists of 85 ducks and geese and 30 quail, grouse, and other miscellaneous species.

"This collection has been appraised at approximately $4,100, but it has far more value to us in terms of an educational aid," said Paul Heye, associate professor of biology at Southeast Missouri State. Heye added the value is enhanced because of the care Smart took in mounting each specimen and noted, "It is considered to be the second best collection of waterfowl in the state."

The Southeast Missouri State professor said a larger part of Smart's collection is currently on loan to the University of Missouri.

Smart, originally from Campbell, graduated with honors from Southeast Missouri State in 1959 with degrees in zoology and secondary education. In 1962 he earned a master's degree in wildlife management at the University of Missouri.

During 1963 he served as a resident biologist at the Round Lake Waterfowl Station in Minnesoat. He has been associated with the U. S. Department of Interior since 1964.

Currently he is chief of the Section of Propagation, Endangered Wildlife Research Program, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, Patuxent, Md.

His sister, Miss Vada Smart, is a supervisor at Southeast Missouri State's Campus School.

Voters elect Ledbetter

HAYTI — Hayti voters went to the polls Tuesday and elected Lt. Kermit Ledbetter of the Hayti Police Department to fill the unexpired term left vacant by the death of the late Chief Fritz McKay.

Ledbetter won over George Camp, a Hayti car salesman, and Sherman Manley, a licensed practical nurse at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital. Both Camp and Manley were formerly on the police force.

Ledbetter had been appointed acting police chief by the City Council after McKay's death Sept. 26.

An unidentified Chinese craftsman turned out a "dragon clock" sometime around 1000 A. D. Transverse bars are evenly spaced across the body of the metal figure. A wooden rod of the proper dimension, lighted at the end, burns from one bar to the next in approximately an hour. A cord with weights at both ends is placed at the bracket representing the wake-up hour. When the burning rod severs the cord, weights drop into copper basins below. Now exhibited in the Lourve, the dragon clock was used many centuries before spring and pendulum driven alarm clocks were perfected.

Time for leisure– time for fun – and time to relax! The whole family has time to enjoy freedom from home chores. Teenagers love the feel of well-managed hair after shampooing with Refined Water, and Baby is comfy in soft, clean clothes. The Lady of the home can relax without worrying about all the hours she needs for scrubbing, rinsing, and washing, because all she needs is Refined Water and soap to have her home and everything in it sparkling clean. Her clothes are softer and fluffier too! Hubby enjoys the ease of maintaining his home in tip-top shape -- his money stretches further without having to replace plumbing fixtures or other water bearing appliances too often – he finds time to enjoy his favorite sport or hobby. So can you! Call Braswell.

The new Wayne Newton is real

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "It's difficult to be a kid at 31," said Wayne Newton, explaining why a few years ago he began revising his first edition of himself.

"The old Wayne Newton conjurs up an image of a heavier, shorter guy who was almost a character I was doing, it was an act I had done so long," he said by telephone from Las Vegas, where he has become a fixture at hotels like The Sands.

Wayne Newton No. 1 was a chubby, short-haired, baby faced, all American-boy who sang in a high-pitched voice that undermined his size. He directed his considerable talents into schmaltzy songs like "Danke Shane" and "Red Roses for a Blue Lady."

Then, Newton said, "I decided I was going to grow up, stop being so naive."

But change of image also involved work.

He quit eating long enough to lose 90 pounds from his 6-foot-3 frame. "I have energy I never had before. I feel great."

He married a 5-foot-3 Japanese beauty named Elaine.

Marrying Elaine six years ago wasn't part of the master plan to convert Wayne Newton from what he called personality into person, but he said it served notice he meant to be "the Wayne Newton I really am."

"I knew I would probably lose some fans in the transition," he said. "But I figured the ones it took away, I probably wouldn't need anyway."

He let his hair grow and put together a nightclub act to showcase his versatility. He sings country, pop, country-pop and easy listening. He's a comedian, an actor and a bit of a dancer. He plays nine instruments.

Newton has been described by a reviewer as "a hurricane, a performer who bursts on stage with enough energy to launch a rocket. He plays more weeks a year in Vegas than any other performer and in one seven-week period appeared before 99,000 people.

Newton, who began his career in Vegas in 1959, likes to work.

"I'm in my 15th week without a night off," he said. "It becomes a way of life ... when I work, I work. I don't mix work with play."

New baking powder offered

50 years ago
November 1, 1923

Canalou-- Chas. Biser was in Matthews Sunday.

The Scott County Milling Co., is marketing an entirely new product-- Juanita Baking Powder. After extensive experiments, covering the past several months, they now have the formula perfected. This baking power has been prepared especially for best results with Juanita flour and other SOFT wheat flour for all home baking.

The Sikeston Bulldogs suffered their second defeat of the season to the Jackson football team last Friday at Jackson, when a punting duel resulted in giving the Indians a victory by the score of 6 to 0.

Miss Mary Harriet Blanton and Nathaniel Craven Watkins were married last Saturday at the residence of the officiating minister, the Rev. Thomas B. Mather, pastor of the Methodist Church. They were attended by Chas. L. Blanton, jr., a brother of the bride, and Miss Ruth Baker, of Memphis, Tenn. They will reside on the Mr. Watkins' farm near Vanduser.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Loftin of Morley are parents of a son born Friday at St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Chaffee-- John D. Fisher, 91 years old, died at his home near Blodgett Friday.

Margaret Bomer, of Poplar Bluff, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Denman of Sikeston, was crowned queen of the Poplar Bluff football team there Friday, in ceremonies preceding the homecoming game with the Sikeston Bulldogs.

The explosion of a kerosene lamp in a cabin on a New Madrid County farm owned by Mrs. Lulu Sparks, formerly of Sikeston, early Friday started a fire which burned three children to death, severely injured two other members of the family and razed the small house to the ground.

C. L. Blanton, jr., managing editor of the Daily Standard, was elected vice president of the Missouri Press Association, holding its 87th annual convention Friday and Saturday in Kansas City.

New Madrid-- Funeral services for Clarence Byrd Alsobrook, 73, who had farmed near Marston most of his life, were today. He died Saturday at St. Francis Hospital in Cape.

Danny Holloman celebrated his fifth birthday Saturday at a Halloween party given by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Holloman.

What's the Law?

The case of the frenzied contractor

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After Mabel hired Sam to renovate her house, she became a constant booing in his ear. She constantly complained about everything from the quality of the materials used and the calibre of the workmanship employed to the way Sam parted his hair.

Finally, Sam parted from Mabel. Popping his ink, he walked off the job in a frenzy and left her stranded, with her mouth still open, in an unfinished house in the dead of winter.

The result? With all the openings in the house, when the icy winds blew outside, Mabel turned blue inside. She also turned to court where she sued Sam for the physical and emotional distress she was forced to endure.

"Not only did he not complete his contract," Mabel charged in court, "but he left me to the perils of the elements. All winter long, I felt like an Eskimo living in an igloo. Even the water on my knee froze."

"If I hadn't quit the job," responded the frenzied contractor, "I'd have ended up on a funny farm. By constantly telling me and my men what to do, Mabel was driving me crazy. I had no choice but to leave."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the frenzied contractor pay Mabel for her physical and emotional distress?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a person can collect for psychological harm that results from a breach of contact if the breach is due to extreme or outrageous conduct. But, concluded the judge, in this case, Sam's conduct was not so outrageous. Freedom to ventilate one's feelings on occasion is necessary if we are to maintain our optimum emotional health.

"How come, Mommy? I had 49 things when I went to school today and now there's only 47!"

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCAITED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Nov. 1, the 305th day of 1973. There are 60 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb at Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Also, on this date:

In 1765, some American colonists defied their royal governors as the British Stamp Act went into effect.

In 1788, the U.S. Continental Congress, which had first met in 1774, was adjourned.

In 1864, the U.S. Post Office introduced postal money orders.

In 1940, British bombers hit Naples, Italy, for the first time in World War II.

In 1945, the British announced that all evidence indicated that Adolf Hitler had killed himself in a bunker in Berlin.

Cost cutters shot out of the water

WASHINGTON (NEA)

With the congressional budget cutters now conclusively beaten on the issue, the United States is on the money escalator for sure with its new sea-based nuclear missile deterrent, the potent Trident submarine.

Funds for this new fiscal year are about $1.7 billion for Trident, roughly double last year's total. Next year the President will seek a sum well above $2 billion. The estimated cost for the whole program thus far envisioned — development and production of 10 Tridents — is $13.5 billion.

The congressional battle was close this time, but the victory will make it difficult hereafter for critics to try to slow down a program that already has so much money invested in it.

Curiously, Mr. Nixon triumphed just about the time some arms control specialists were meeting to argue, among other things, that we could get along without Trident until the 1990s.

More conservative critics outside Congress, like those at the Brookings institution, contend that reversion to the earlier, pre-speedup schedule — calling for completion of the first Trident in the early 1980s instead 1978 as currently planned — would save an average of about $1 billion a year for the rest of this decade.

About half of that spending says Brookings in its 1974 budget review, would merely be deferred until later. The other half represents its estimate of probable savings from greater production efficiency.

The point in that contention is that developing and producing a new weapons system concurrently, which is the consequence of speedup, results inevitably in wastage along the way. Late discovery of designing "bugs" can produce costly production line changes.

Brookings argues further that other kinds of cost overruns could bring the final cost of building 10 Tridents to "significantly more" than the projected $13.5 billion.

The research body has another cost-saving notion. Under present plans, the new nuclear fleet is to be fitted first with missiles bearing warheads having a range up to 4,500 miles. Brookings figures that if we go straight to the Trident II missile, range 6,000 miles, and skip the 4,500-mile version, we could save at least $2.5 billion.

As an alternative to skipping a missile generation, the research specialists suggest putting the Trident I missile on the 31 Polaris-Poseidon vessels, now being refitted with longer-range (up to 3,500 miles) weapons carrying 10 to 14 independently-targeted warheads in each basic rocket.

Some other sources suggest, however, that, though this was once the government's plan, refitting the original Polaris fleet a second time might require firing-system changes and other modifications whose cost — not even guessed at today — might be so high as to be nearly prohibitive.

Pardons granted by Hearnes questioned

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Hugh Sprague, a legal assistant to Gov. Christopher S. Bond, said Wednesday it was impossible to say just how many pardons may have been granted in the last 10 weeks of the Warren E. Hearnes administration because records are incomplete.

Bond was asked to comment earlier this week on reports that at least 40 pardons were granted in the closing days of the Hearnes administration and said, "We have no grounds to say there was any defect in .

On Tuesday he said records in his office indicate proper procedures were not always followed.

Sprague said:

"It's clear that some pardons were granted without going through the secretary of state's office or the Board of Probation and Parole."

Sprague said he is trying to reconstruct the public record but is having trouble doing so. He said 13 pardons were recorded by the secretary of state last November, 19 in December and eight in the first week of January, the last week Hearnes was in office.

But eight of the 40 pardons were not accounted for in records of the governor's office, although they were signed by the governor.

The pardons were all signed by Hearnes, except for three, which were signed by former Lt. Gov. William Morris, acting in Hearnes' absence.

Sprague said most of the pardons appeared to be based on recent investigations and recommendations of the Board of Probation and Parole, but some were not.

The pardon of Arthur J. Berne, signed by Morris last Dec. 20, had been based on a 1968 recommendation by the parole board, although two subsequent reports by the parole board did not recommend pardon, Sprague said the records show.

Hearnes had denied Berne a pardon, based on the 168 report. "I figured it would receive the same amount of attention it is receiving now, and I didn't want to be connected with it," he told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Berne, who lives in Belleville, Ill., said he asked for the pardon to restore his civil rights, such as voting, and he wanted to go into business.

Morris was not available for comment.

Sprague said one pardon came to his attention when a draft board in Quincy, Ill., wrote and asked for an original copy of the pardon granted to a man who was now seeking to enter military service.

Sprague said there was no record of the pardon being granted and now the only record of it is a copy of the copy the draft board had.

Sprague said there might arise a question of whether certain pardons are valid if they had not been signed by the secretary of state before being signed by the governor and sent out.

As harvest is completed

Farmers should consider fertilizing

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE— Farmers are urged to consider the application of fertilizer and limestone as they complete the harvest of their 1973 crops. Fertilizer and lime should be applied according to soil test recommendations.

If you have not had your soil tested in the past 3 to 4 years, it is out of date. Every field on your farm should be tested this often. Fields should be sampled as soon as possible so they can be submitted and tested before the rush season begins at the laboratory.

Fall application of fertilizer will be important this year because of the expected fertilizer demand and supply situation. Forecasts are for increased crop acreages next spring. Rate of fertilizer used per acre is likely to be as high, or higher in 1974, than in past years, so total demand could reach an all time record in the spring months.

Shortages occurred in some sections of Southeast Missouri last spring, and the situation is expected to be touch and go again next year. Applying phosphate and potash as crops are harvested can avoid potential supply problems, and also help ease the supply picture by distributing demand over a longer period. Nitrogen can be applied this fall for wheat on clay and mixed loam soils, but better wait until spring to topdress sandy soils.

The demand for food prices for feed grains and soybeans, plus short supplies of fertilizer all make this a poor year to use too little, too much, or the wrong analysis. That's why I suggest getting soil samples soon after harvest as possible. Sampling early sets the stage to follow harvesting machinery with fertilizer spreading equipment. Applying materials according to soil test results will provide ample fertility for good yeilds next year. It will also eliminate the possibility of using more than is required, thus conserving fertilizer supplies. Nitrogen should not be applied this fall for 1974 row crops, because most of it may be lost.

Soil tests have been used extensively in this area, but many fields have not been tested since 1970. Testing in those cases is desirable, and now is an excellent time to take samples. Sampling may be a time- consuming job, but it will eliminate the need to take samples next winter when soils may be frozen or muddy. Everything considered, it looks like a logical way to live with the current fertilizer supply, demand situation.

Farmers should take soil samples to their county University of Missouri Extension Center or directly to the Area Soil Testing Laboratory at Portageville. They should be prepared to give a short history on each sample. The fee is $2.50 per sample, or less than 10 cents per acre.

Survey shows grocery prices ease off slightly

Families who have been feeding their kids peanut butter sandwiches in an effort to beat the price spiral got some bad news in October. An Associated Press marketbasket survey shows peanut butter prices went up almost everywhere.

The AP checked the price of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1 and has rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed that overall grovery prices have eased off a bit from September, but remain well above their March levels.

Chopped chuck went down in price, reflecting a decline in livestock prices which started after the beef freeze ended in September.

On the other hand, worldwide demand for almost all commodities including oils, pushed up the price of peanut butter. The Department of Agriculture reported Wednesday that the price of raw farm products showed a drop of 4 per cent in October, which is expected to be reflected in lower supermarket prices later.

The agency said lower prices for cattle, hogs, wheat, broiler chickens and eggs contributed most to the decline.

The AP survey showed that from Oct. 1 to Nov. 1, the total marketbasket cost declined in 9 of 13 cities. The decreases ranged from almost 6 per cent in Salt Lake City and Chicago to a fraction of 1 per cent in Atlanta and Seattle. The average decrease was about 2 per cent.

A comparison of March 1 and Nov. 1 prices, however, showed the marketbasket was up in every city checked. On the average, prices were 8 per cent higher on Nov. 1 than on March 1. On Oct. 1, prices were about 9 per cent higher than on March 1.

A check of the number of items increasing and decreasing showed that from Oct. 1 to Nov. 1, 29 per cent of the 195 items checked went up in price; 25 per cent went down; 37 per cent were unchanged; and 9 per cent were not available on one of the survey dates.

From March 1 to Nov. 1, 68 per cent of the total number of items checked increased in price; 13 per cent declined; 6 per cent were unchanged; and 13 per cent were not available.

Peanut butter was up in more cities than any other item in October, rising in 10 of 13 cities, with increases averaging about 5 per cent.

Chopped chuck, in comparison, declined in eight cities dropping an average of 13 per cent to about $1.15 cents a pound in most areas.

Consumers found little to cheer about as they scanned the supermarket aisles, however.

One recently married New York man who made his first major shopping expedition this week commented sarcastically: "I went shopping Wednesday and racked up $22.93 in grocery bills for my wife and me. That should get us through Friday."

Mrs. Joe Stewart of Albuquerque, N.M., shopping for her husband and three children, said: "I'm buying as little as I can. We're eating out of stocked up canned goods and we're cutting down on meat even though it's dropped."

VD BLUES
presented by Educational Broadcasting Corporation
Avon 15156/$.95
220 pp.

VD BLUES, the WNET television program that has won awards and rave reviews for its straight- from- the - shoulder exposition on the VD epidemic, is now an Avon book. Taking the Sesame Street approach (learning can be so much fun you don't realize you're doing it) to teaching adolescents, WNET's production of VD BLUES used rock songs, dramatic skits, and non-proseletizing monologues by host Dick Cavett to tell the hard truth about the VD epidemic that is victimizing 14- to- 18- year olds. Avon's VD BLUES, a paperback original, contains the complete script of VD BLUES as well as an edited transcript of WNET's highly successful program VD Hotline, plus a bibliography of free and inexpensive informational materials on VD, and a listing of health services.

French Popularizes Science

LOVE OF EARTH. By Herbert E. French. Putnam. 314 Pages. $7.95.

For the lay reader this is a book about what the author calls Earth Island, and it falls somehow in the category of popularized science, with a potpourri of recent items about oddities and oddments in the news.

Its main themes are geophysics, geology, the earth crust, minerals and mining, forests, animals, farming, cities and recreational activities in nature.

As popularized science writing, it delves into such topics as "the new science of global plate tectonics" as an explanation of the shifting surfaces of this planet. But it also (1) conveys a staggering number of minor items, such as where to find the biggest gem stones or the biggest manmade stone sculptures, or the fact that Marie Antoinette wore potato flowers in her hair at Versailles; and (2) throws in side comments on the good earth, for example (on adjoining pages) by Cincinnatus, George Washington, Irving Berlin and Antoine de Saint-Exupery.

McClanahan asked to stay until successor is named

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Baptist Convention has asked Dr. H. L. McClanahan to continue in the post of interim executive secretary until a permanent successor to Dr. Earl O. Harding is selected.

Dr. McClanahan came to the annual assembly seeking to withdraw as a candidate for the job. He assumed the interim position in August following the death of Dr. Harding, who was under fire at the time for his accounting procedures.

On Tuesday, members heard a report that two accounting firms found the convention's financial records to be inefficient and inadequate.

Two thousand messengers to the assembly elected 20 persons to the 51-member executive board late Wednesday. Five of the 20 were nominated from the floor after nominations offered by a special committee were rejected.

It also was decided that the executive board will select the executive committee, which handles the convention's administrative affairs. That function formerly had been the executive secretary's responsibility.

The convention, which began Tuesday, ends today.

Being priceless can also mean that you're worthless.

Head Starters

Gov. Christopher "Kit" Bond has designated this week as Head Start Week in Missouri. One of the several Head Start programs in the state is located on Airport Drive in Sikeston. Part of the Head Start training is in constructive education fields that revolve around playing. Sonya Butler, 5, (top picture) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butler, spends part of her time learning to create designs and patterns of color at the easel. Gordon Jimerson, 4, left (bottom photo), son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lynn Jimerson, and Robert Dale Lay, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lay, exercise their time building towers of cardboard blocks at the Head Start facility.

Nixon names Saxbe as attorney general

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today named Sen. William B. Saxbe as attorney general and approved the selection of Leon Jaworski as new Watergate special prosecutor with full independence and safeguards against being fired.

The President promised not to discharge Jaworski, as he had Archibald Cox, without obtaining the consent of House and Senate Democratic and Republican leaders and top members of the two judiciary committees in Congress.

Nixon appeared personally in the White House briefing room to announce his nomination of Saxbe, an Ohio Republican who is not seeking re-election, as successor to Elliot Richardson, who resigned Oct. 20 rather than follow Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

The President, without answering questions, then turned the podium over to acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork, who announced that Jaworski would become special prosecutor to pursue "the Watergate matter and related subjects."

Bork said that Jaworski has been "promised the full cooperation of the executive branch." Should Jaworski decide that he needs presidential documents, Bork said, "there will be no restrictions placed on his freedom ..."

Bork said Jaworski, a confidant of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, would have the same broad mandate which had been given Cox. In addition, Bork said that Nixon has given "his personal assurance" that he will not fire Jaworski without first consulting with the specified congressional leaders and "ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

The firing of Cox after his refusal to abide by Nixon's orders to drop efforts in court to obtain confidential White House tapes and documents touched off a massive controversy and triggered moves to start impeachment proceedings.

Bork underscored the same point saying: "Mr. Jaworski is not coming on with any limitations on his freedom of action."

But the bearded former Yale professor who assumed the role as acting attorney general on Oct. 20 and fired Cox as his first act said he does not expect continued court battles over access to White House tapes and documents.

"I anticipate reasonableness on both sides," he said.

As for the other staff of investigators and prosecutors that Cox had formed, Bork indicated he believed Jaworski would retain Cox's appointees.

"I stated to him that I thought that staff was indispensable to the rapid ... prosecution of these cases," Bork said. "He fully agreed."

He said it will be up to Jaworski to decide whether to pursue such investigations as the reported probe of presidential friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo's handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes.

He said the job of attorney general is "one that I'm happy to tackle" and that "I have no doubt I can handle it."

Police make drug arrests

Police made two drug arrests Wednesday when they seized two teeen- agers in separate incidents.

Gregory Jerome Foote, 18, of Bertrand Route One was arrested at 3:25 p.m. on charges of possession of marijuana and possession of narcotics paraphernalia.

Police, acting on a tip, were armed with a warrant to search his car, according to detectives Dan Hinton and Jack Patterson. They located Foote driving on East Malone Avenue and stopped him near Pizza Inn.

The detectives said they found the marijuana and paraphernalia in the glove compartment. Also involved in the arrest were Scott County Sheriff's Deputy Bud Jones and highway patrolman Norris Grissom.

Foote was released on $1,300 bond.

Gary Dale Allen, 19, of Charleston Route One was arrested at 11:10 p.m. for possession of marijuana and underage possession of intoxicating beverages when the car he was in was stopped on East Malone.

Two other youths in the car, also arrested for underage possession of intoxicating beverages, were David L. Culbertson, 20, of 109 E. Gladys and John Crowley, 19, of 600 Pine.

Harry Hornbeck, 305 Olive, was arrested at 12:30 a.m. today for assault and battery and peace disturbance following a fight at the Wagon Wheel tavern, 849 W. Malone Ave.

Hornbeck allegedly fought with Leroy Ottinger, who was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for cuts and bruises and held overnight for observation.

Other arrests included Joan Simmons of Anniston for driving while intoxicated and Travis Smith, Route Two, for driving while intoxicated.

White House says judge can tell tapes ran out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that by listening to presidential tape recordings made April 14-15, Judge John J. Sirica can hear for himself that the tape ran out before recording a vital conversation with John W. Dean III.

The conversation between President Nixon and former presidential counsel Dean is one of two that the White House says was never recorded. It said so much had gone on in the office earlier in the day that the six-hour reel was filmed. A technical expert said apparently an automatic switching system to a back-up recorder did not work.

J. Fred Buzhardt, lawyer for the President, asked U.S. District Court Judge Sirica to employ electronic experts to determine "that the tapes are complete and have not been tampered with in any form."

Richard Ben Veniste, a Watergate prosecution force lawyer, concurred in Buzhardt's request and the judge asked both the prosecution force and the White House to suggest an expert.

Buzhardt told the court Wednesday that a telephone conversation between the President and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was made on an instrument not connected to tape records. That reduced availability of nine subpoenaed White House Watergate recordings to seven.

"It was not until several weeks ago when the President considered disclosure that review of tapes by him was commenced," Buzhardt said.

"It was not definitely determined that the two conversations in question were not recorded until late last week," he said.

Buzhardt said he would call witnesses to show that the tape had exceeded its capacity of six hours conversation on Saturday, April 14 and early on Sunday — a time when technicians did not routinely check the recording devices.

"The judge himself can hearing the running out of the tape," Buzhardt said.

Secret Service technician Raymond C. Zumwalt, who installed and serviced the automatic recording equipment in the President's offices, was scheduled to testify before Sirica.

Through all the court fights, high-level statements, and eventual agreement by the President to comply with court orders, the existence of nine tapes sought by Watergate investigators was never questioned.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said at the White House that Nixon had been unaware until last weekend that specific conversations of June 20, 1972, and April 15, 1973, were not recorded.

J. Fred Buzhardt, the President's counsel, told Sirica a four-minute conversation on June 20 between Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was on a telephone not connected to recorders.

And the April 15 conversation between the President and former counsel John W. Dean III was "not recorded due to malfunctioning of the system or inadequacy of the system," Buzhardt told Sirica.

Warren explained that extensive conversations and discussions in Nixon's office on April 14 and 15 — prior to the Dean meeting had been recorded. But, he said, "when this conversation took place the first recorder had run out, filled up and the alternate recorder was not activated until the next day, the 16th."

April 15 was a Sunday. Zumwalt testified Wednesday that the equipment was serviced only on weekdays

Scott above average in government units

Does Scott County have more or fewer governmental agencies, for its size, than other communities?

How many of these administrative bodies, with power to pass rules and regulations affecting local residents, are there in the county?

A comparison of the local governmental structure with that found in other sections of the country, is made possible through a report on the subject, recently released by the Department of Commerce. It is called "Governmental Organization."

The data for it was gathered from all parts of the country in connection with the 1972 Census of Governments. The findings indicate that, in many areas, community affairs are being directed less and less by county, municipal and township governments and more and more by autonomous or semi-autonomous sub- divisions.

Increasingly, the controls are being delegated to school districts and to special districts with responsibilities over toll roads, bridges, water supply, fire and flood control, public housing and the like.

In Scott County, the report shows, there are now some 32 units of government in operation, 24 of them with property taxing power.

They consist of 16 municipal governments, no township governments, 7 independent school districts, 8 special districts and the county government itself.

The number is 3 more than was tabulated in 1967, when the previous Census of Governments was taken.

By way of comparison, there was a reduction of 3.7 percent nationally in the number of local governments in the five- year period.

From the standpoint of population, Scott County is listed as having one agency of government for every 1,041 local people. The average elsewhere in the nation is one for every 2,676 and, in the State of Missouri, one for 1,667.

In many communities, the figures indicate, the trend is toward a streamlining of the governmental process. Nationally, the number of local governmental agencies dropped from 81,299 to 78,268 in the five years.

4 hurt in accidents

Four persons were injured in three area accidents Wednesday and early today, the highway patrol reported today.

Glen Beussink, 24, of Lutesville received arm cuts and bruises at 12:30 a.m. today on Interstate 55 two miles south of Perryville when his tractor- trailer truck rapidly overtook another tractor- trailer rig driven by Thomas Morris of Alpena, Ark., and struck it from behind.

Beussink was taken to Perry County Memorial Hospital in Perryville.

A one- vehicle accident at 10:50 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 172 in Wayne County one and one- half miles west of Wappapello State Park resulted in minor injuries to Lonzo Taylor, 42, of Wellston.

The accident occurred when a lug bolt on a rear wheel of a two- ton truck came off, causing Taylor to lose control of the truck which overturned.

Taylor received cuts and bruises and was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Two persons were injured at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday on Cemetery Lane in Fredericktown when James Edward Stallings, 31, of Fredericktown lost control of a pickup truck which ran off the road and struck a tree.

Stallings suffered chest and leg injuries and a passenger, Betty Metcalf, 38, of Fredericktown, received head cuts. They were taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Trick or treater injured

EAST PRAIRIE — Barbara Meyers, 9- year- old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meyers Jr. of Route One, was injured Wednesday when she ran into the path of a car while trick or treating.

The accident occurred about 6:45 p.m. on South Martin Street. The driver of the car was Kenneth Patrick, 306 Lee Ave.

Miss Meyers was treated for multiple scratches and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Truck burns on highway

A tandem dump truck caught fire shortly after 9 a.m. today on Interstate 55 just south of the Interstate 57 interchange. The truck, owned by Jerry Reece Trucking Co. of Hayti, was driven by Jim Williams of Sikeston. Williams said he doesn't know why the empty truck caught fire. The fire was extinguished by the Sikeston and Miner Fire Departments.

CHRISTMAS SEAL TIME

More than 60 million American families and businesses will soon receive their 1973 Christmas Seals in the mail. The Christmas Seal campaign, which begins on Tuesday, Nov. 6, is a traditional reminder that the battle against tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases remains to be won. About 35 million men, women and children suffer from such respiratory ailments as TB, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, pneumonia and asthma. Social Security disability payments to chronic lung disease victims last year totalled $400 million, according to the American Lung Association (formerly called the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association), which sponsors the annual campaign. This year's national honorary chairman is Johnny Bench, all-star catcher for the Cincinnati Reds, who last year underwent lung surgery for removal of a lesion caused by a rare fungus disease known as valley fever.

The Christmas Seal stamp was the idea of a Danish post office worker named Elinar Holboell who, in 1904, sold them to raise money for a children's tuberculosis hospital. The idea was brought to the United States by Emily Bissell who, in 1907, was asked by the doctors at a small TB hospital in Delaware to help raise $300 needed to keep the institution open. Having read about the Danish experiment, Miss Bissell decided to conduct a similar appeal in the United States.

The newspapers, the President, the Chief Justice of the United States, congressional leaders, prominent businessmen and churchmen spoke out in support of the Christmas Seal campaign, and urged people to buy as many one- cent stamps as they could afford. Around $3,000 was raised in the few days before Christmas, 1907. For the next two years, the American Red Cross sponsored the national campaign. The National Tuberculosis Association joined the crusade in 1910 and took it over 10 years later.

Last year's Christmas Seal campaign raised a record $38,000,557. The American Lung Association riased an additional $4 million for other sources. About 93 per cent of the total amount was retained by state and community associations for various locally oriented programs, such as the mobile chest X-ray program. Unfortunately, to get its $42 million, the American Lung Association had to spend $10.5 million for fund-raising expenses -- about 25 cents out of every dollar collected.

MR. PHELPS IS NOT FULL TIME

Lieutenant Governor William Phelps, who is now waiting around the edges to see if Attorney John C. Danforth and Governor Christopher Bond are going to let him make the GOP race for United States Senator against Thomas F. Eagleton, is a busy, busy man.

When he was seeking the office of Lieutenant Governor, Phelps let the entire state know that he was going to be a full-time Lieutenant Governor. He was going to make it a full time job.

But the first thing you know the Lieutenant Governor is dabbling in the real estate business. He has obtained a federal contract to provide office space to the Social Security Administration at $12,000 annually for five years in a building he has just erected at Nevada, Mo.

One of the bidders against Phelps was a Republican and while his sadness could be over his failure to get the bid for the building, Finis Moss had this to say about the transaction:

"I'm not happy about this thing at all and I'm a Republican. A lot of Republicans are upset about it. He advertised when he was running that he was going to be full-time in office. Now he's out running around and getting in the real estate business. A lot of people I know just don't think it's right for him to be in public office and be renting to the Government."

The entire thing seems to have been a family affair. Although Phelps' name does not appear on corporation papers filed with Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick in Jefferson City, it appears that he did handle the entire transaction. So Mr. Phelps isn't, after all, a full-time Lieutenant Governor.

BERRIGAN CASE PROSPECTIVE JURY STUDY DEFENSE AID

In a sort of now-it-can-be-told story, five social scientists have revealed how they conducted a pretrial survey which is credited with helping defense lawyers win a mistrial in the celebrated trial of antiwar priest Phillip Berrigan on charges that he and seven others conspired to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and blow up heating ducts in Washington.

The trial ended in April, 1972, when a Harrisburg, Pa., jury rejected by a 10-2 vote the government's conspiracy allegations, writing an end to a two-month- long case in which the Justice Department presented 64 witnesses and spent $2 million.

By means of personal and telephone interviews, the team of sociologists sought to establish a profile of local residents which would indicate the kinds of jurors most likely to vote for acquittal. They stipulated, however, that if any of those interviewed were called as jurors they would not provide defense lawyers with specific information about that person.

Anticipating charges that their behavior was improper, the sociologists emphasized that they sought basically to help the defense overcome the handicap imposed by the Justice Department's move to bring its indictment in Harrisburg— a community that has three Republicans for every two Democrats, several military installation and war-related industries and an active Ku Klux Klan.

The researchers in fact found that 80 per cent of the residents polled trusted their government, a figure far higher than the national average of 40 to 45 per cent. They reported to the defense on the day of jury selection that "at least four out of five persons who would qualify as jurors would be opposed to the defendants."

They therefore stressed to defense counsel the importance of questioning the jury panel for as long as possible, getting unfavorable people rejected for "cause" and holding out for "the statistically rare but desirable people sketched by our survey findings."

In contrast, the government's prosecuting attorney seldom took more than five minutes to question a prospective juror and "seemed to think one juror was almost as good as another from the government's point of view."

The decision by Federal District Judge R. Dixon Herman to sequester the jury to protect it from harassment from demonstrators and friends of the defendants — a move the defense had opposed — was also of great consequence.

For whatever reasons, the social scientists write in Psychology Today magazine, "bad" defense jurors seemed more likely than "good" ones to opt out of jury service by stating the escape formula, "I have formed an opinion." The prospect of sequestration for four to five months upped the ante for prospective jurors who, as one of them said, "wanted to show those defendants."

The value of the pretrial survey — which cost a mere $450 — is shown not only by the votes for acquittal but by the fact that it came despite the later- revealed dislike of the jurors for chief defense attorney Ramsey Clark and their sympathy for the outnumbered prosecution attorneys.

The moral, if there is any: All's fair in love and war and, the law's elaborate safeguards notwithstanding, in jury trials as well.

BEDEVILING THE HONEST CITIZEN

Judging by recent figures concerning the killing of policemen, sweeping gun control laws, aimed at depriving the law abiding of the right of gun ownership, would be about as effective as outlawing the rising of the sun. These figures show that of the arrested killers of policemen, 71 per cent had been arrested previously and 57 per cent had been convicted, mostly of crimes of violence. This means that it was already illegal for most of them to have guns under federal law and many state or local laws. Between 15 and 20 per cent of the policemen murdered with handguns were killed with their own handguns, which their assailants snatched away from them. This could be the consequence of "Don't Shoot" orders given police in some cities. In the past three years, Black Panthers have murdered nine law officers and wounded 56 more with gunshots. Most of the guns traced to them were found to have been acquired by theft.

The simple fact, as pointed out in "The American Rifleman", is that, "Most police killings are committed by criminals with illegal guns. Rather than passing another law for them to ignore and break, the solution is to put them in jail. There are enough laws now under which that can be done without bedeviling the millions of honest citizens who own guns."

The right of gun ownership is one of the most fundamental and traditional of American freedoms. A gun is a companion of ranchers, farmers, trappers, woodsmen and sportsmen. Those who would strike down the right of gun ownership for these millions of responsible citizens in the name of curbing crime are committing the greatest disservice to the basic principles of our American philosophy of individual freedom.

NEW EVIDENCE ABOUT HEROIN

New evidence of the real truth about Red China comes from a recent witness before the House Internal Security Committee who is certainly in a position to know it. He is Wu Shu-jen, an engineer who studied at Tsing Hua University in Peking, was a member of the Chinese Communist Party for 11 years, and even served as a bodyguard when Mao Tse-tung swam across the Yangtze River in 1956. Four years ago Wu himself swam eight hours to freedom in Hong Kong after Red Guardsmen showed him what communism really is by torturing his 84- year- old father to death.

Mass imprisonment, beatings and executions are common in Red China, Wu reports. There is no freedom of religion or travel. Food is tightly rationed and often in very short supply. Like all communist countries, Red China cannot feed its people.

Wu stressed his personal knowledge of large- scale Red Chinese involvement in heroin production, still blandly denied by our government. Across the street from the office in Canton where Wu worked in the 1960s was a six- story laboratory employing 700 workers. This laboratory produced nothing but heroin, which was shipped out in a Red Chinese Navy gunboat, destined for the West through Hong Kong and Macao. Wu named five large commune farms and a labor camp in Canton province alone where opium poppies are grown on a large scale.

Surely this kind of hard evidence is sufficient to cause our government to face and act on the truth that the heroin which is destroying so many of our young people mostly comes from Red China. HLH

Why Ignore Mafia? Cosa Nostra Smuggling Openly In Sam Ervin's Home State

NEW YORK — Now it is a matter of record that Sen. Sam Ervin has ignored warnings of Mafia operations in his home state — North Carolina — either out of disdain, discomfort or disconcertment while busying himself with his immediate political passion.

A Mafia network, involving most of the so-called powerful Cosa Nostra families, has been and is making scores of millions of dollars from a most intricate smuggling of cigarettes in his state's "Tobacco Road," namely Route 301.

Tough criminals and "hit men" run a regular shuttle, operate secret warehouses, war on each other ofttimes, bribe and deprive Northeastern states of vast sums of tax money. Yet Sen. Ervin, rightfully obsessed with public and political morality, apparently considers his own state's wrongdoers and caterers to the mob well out of his domain.

For years much of the network, according to several unimpeachable investigatory agencies, was run by Tony Granata, whom the authorities link to the so-called Colombo family. He operated out of New Jersey. And it was a most efficient caper. There were some 30 clerks. They ran a tight six-day truck smuggling schedule, the probers say. At the North Carolina end --- somewhere in the Roanoke Rapids-Weldon area --- Granata had a expediter.

There, right on Sen. Ervin's home soil, was --- and is --- a reputed Mafia operative. The recognizable trucks and drivers regularly made the round trips. And still do.

Huge cases of low tax cigarettes (two cents a pack) were openly loaded. They were put in secret truck compartments. Or moved to a small aircraft. They were run into New Jersey and New York where, for example, they cost the latter state about 65 to 70 million dollars and New York City an additional $20 million annually in uncollected taxes.

In New York City there was a regular delivery system. Goons made the rounds of construction sites --- such as the new towering World Trade Center, took orders one day for untaxed, therefore lower-cost cigarettes (the tax being 21 cents a pack) and delivered them to the "consumer" a few days later.

There are at least 93 probes now going into this network --- Brooklyn district attorney Eugene Gold, first deputy police commissioner William McCarthy and Jim O'Conner's special state tax unit. Each has funnelled considerable information to the North Carolina authorities.

But still the smuggling rolls on dispite the arrest of kingpin Tony Granata last March who now is free under heavy bail bond --- $70,000. The authorities say the operation merely was handled by others and one, Joe (Sam) Pontillo, is Granata's "man to see."

Two weeks ago, Pontillo and four others were arrested here on a series of charges involving cigarette smuggling --- which some say ran as high as $50,000 a week. There were charges of "bribery, rewarding official misconduct and giving unlawful gratuities." One of the accused served 19 years for murder. It will all come out during the trial.

The band is considered by New York City police authorities, specializing in the counterattack on cigarette tax avoidance and smuggling, as the biggest of the alleged organized crime distributors.

It is one of four such operations apprehended, but, says one of the city's highest police officials, "there are a lot more and the money is away up there in the millions."

The recent arrests on Oct. 11, should be significant to Sen. Ervin, unless he's disinterested in his home state. All of the five men, caught while unloading thousands of smuggled cartons into the city, are identified by the authorities with three of the toughest Mafia families --- with power in a score of states reaching from here to the Mississippi and a state or two beyond. These are what is known in investigatory circles as the Tramunti, Genovese and Colombo families.

By reputation these are not "families" confining themselves to the traditional loansharking, gambling and shakedowns. Sam Pontillo, allegedly of the Colombo crowd, has a criminal record which includes convictions and prison terms for smuggling narcotics and armed robbery. That narcotics operation is the lowest form of depredation against society.

The three "families" are deep in labor racketeering. According to federal and local specialists and veteran investigators and authorities, the Tramunti "family," long known as the late Tommy Luchese's Three Fingers Brown operation, is deep in garment and trucking rackets and once attempted to seize part of the Northeast Teamsters.

The late Vito Genovese "family" is in the construction field, along with the Gambino crowd. Reports are that the Colombo group, too, has its labor rackets.

So there we have a cigarette-tax evasion conspiracy depriving the big Eastern cities of vital money for housing and social welfare in many states. Incidentally, the other areas of smuggling go into Illinois and Texas, all along the line.

Furthermore, the money takes care of young "troops' in the families who are restless and want a piece of the action and for whom there is little room in the field for financing of new bars or new gambling territory or new labor rackets. But they are the manpower for terror. And the cigarette smuggling income keeps them in blue chips.

These are social cancers spreading swiftly across much of the land. Legitimate surveillance and counter-action in North Carolina, especially along Tobacco Road, Route 301, could knife out the malignancy.

It does seem that Sen. Sam Ervin should take time out from his newest political passion to help in this surgery. He might even get TV coverage.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Rebozo and White House in Hughes double-cross.

WASHINGTON — Not long after Bebe Rebozo took a $100,000 cash gift intended for President Nixon from industrialist Howard Hughes, the President's friend joined in a White House plot to link Hughes to the Democrats.

This amazing double-cross is revealed in confidential White House memos, which we have uncovered in the course of investigating Rebozo's role as a money raiser for the President.

The memos show that in January 1971, White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman sought to plant stories in the press tying the eccentric Hughes to Democratic national chairman Larry O'Brien.

This was only a few months after Rebozo had received the last of two $50,000 installments, paid in $100 bills, from a Hughes aide. Yet Rebozo apparently had no hesitation to help expose the financial ties between the phantom billionaire and the Democrats.

Aware Of Dealings

Rebozo was careful to request, however, that he be kept informed "if any action be taken with regard to Hughes" because of "his own dealings with the Hughes people."

Both Haldeman and Dean, therefore, knew of Rebozo's dealings with Hughes, although the memos don't make clear whether they were aware the billionaire had slipped Rebozo $100,000 for the President.

Haldeman decided, nevertheless, to go ahead with the plot even if it meant "embarrassing" Hughes. Haldeman instructed Dean, however, to keep "Bebe out of it at all costs."

Haldeman asked White House counsel John Dean in a memo, dated January 18, 1971, to begin "an inquiry into the relationship between Larry O'Brien and Howard Hughes."

Dean reported back his "preliminary findings" on January 26, 1971. Among others, Dean spoke to Rebozo.

Bebe's Information

"I discussed the matter with Bebe Rebozo who indicatedthat his information regarding (a retainer paid by Hughes to O'Brien had come from Robert Maheu, the recently released head of Hughes' Nevada operation." reported Dean.

"Bebe said that this information had come to his attention at a time when Maheu was professing considerable freindliness towards the Administration, but that it was not documented information. Bebe indicated that he felt that Maheu had possibly retained O'Brien for his services without any direct knowledge by Hughes himself.

"Bebe is under the impression that Maheu had a good bit of freedom with Hughes' money when running the Nevada operation. Bebe further indicated that he felt he could acquire some documentation of this fact if given a little time and that he would proceed to try to get any information he could.

"He also requested that if any action be taken with regard to Hughes that he be notified because of his familiarity with the delicacy of the relationships as a result of his own dealings with the Hughes people."

'No Doubt'

Dean also reported that Robert Bennett, son of Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, represented Hughes. "Bennett informs me," wrote Dean, "that there is no doubt about the fact that Larry O'Brien was retained by Howard Hughes and the contract is still in existence .... Bennett also indicated that he felt confident that if it was necessary to document the retainer with O'Brien that he could get the (documents)."

Two days after receiving Dean's report, Haldeman sent him confidential instructions.

"You should continue to keep in contact with Bob Bennett, as well as looking for other sources of information on this subject," Haldeman directed. "Once Bennett gets back to you with his final report, you and Chuck Colson should get together and come up with a way to leak the appropriate information.

"Frankly, I can't see any way to handle this without involving Hughes..... The problem of 'embarrassing' him seems to be a matter of degree. However, we should keep Bob Bennett and Bebe out of it at all costs...."

Anderson Column

As it happened, we were the recipients of the White House leak. We reported on August 6, 1971, that "Hughes' lieutenants offered to subsidize Larry O'Brien so he could serve without pay as Democratic national chairman during the 1968 campaign."

We quoted O'Brien who acknowledged he had been "sounded out by Maheu in 1968" but insisted he "never drew a dime from the Hughes interests during the campaign." Several months later, we reported, O'Brien was retained by Hughes.

We have spoken to O'Brien again for an updated comment. "If they'd wanted to know about my relationship to Hughes," he said, "they could have looked at the public record.... If they didn't want to look at the public record, they could have saved themselves the trouble by simply calling me on the telephone."

O'Brien said his fee was "a personal matter between me and my clients." But in a letter to Maheu, dated August 21, 1968, O'Brien said his "annual fee would be $180,000, payable in monthly installments."

Haldeman told us through his lawyer that he remembers the exchange of memos but doesn't remember the outcome. Dean and Rebozo refused to comment.

Kleindienst denies perjury charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst denies he committed perjury by failing to tell the Senate about President Nixon's order to drop the ITT case and his own threat to resign rather than obey.

Kleindienst repeatedly stated under oath during 1972 hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee that there was no White House pressure on him to halt the antitrust suits against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

He acknowledged in a statement Wednesday that Nixon telephoned him on April 19, 1971, and, "without any discussion, ordered me to drop the appeal" of one of the three parallel lawsuits.

He defended his Senate testimony by saying he "was not asked whether I had had any contacts with the White House at the time of this decision, and I did not deny any such contacts."

But an examination of the two volumes of the hearing record shows that Kleindienst was asked repeatedly about the sequence of events on April 19.

And he was asked several times if he had ever had any contacts with the White House concerning the ITT case. He repeatedly denied any contacts amounting to pressure or directions and conceded only that the matter may have been mentioned in some of the many casual conversations he had with White House officials.

Kleindienst disclosed for the first time that the controversy forced him to the brink of resigning.

By his account, former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman called him on April 19 "and stated that the President directed me not to file the appeal in the Grinnell case ... I informed him that we had determined to take that appeal, and that he should so inform the President."

Nixon called moments later, repeated the order, and Kleindienst then "sent word to the President that, if he persisted in that direction, I would be compelled to submit my resignation."

April 19 was the deadline for the government to notify the Supreme Court of its intention to appeal a lower court decision against the government's challenge of ITT's acquisition of the Grinnell Corp.

Advance Council member resigns

ADVANCE — The City Council has accepted the resignation of one councilman and made a decision on water and sewer hookups in the Hitt Addition.

The council accepted the resignation of Councilman Boyd Jenkins, effective Oct. 16. No plans have been made for the election of another councilman.

The council gave Sylvester and Carl Elfrink permission to make hookups onto the present city sewer and water lines. At an earlier meeting, the council had voted not to let the Elfrinks run water lines into the addition.

The council approved the issuance of a beer license to Elvis Coleman.

There was also discussion on hiring a replacement for Marshal Roy Sifford until he is well enough to resume work.

Fisher bound to Circuit

BENTON— Mark L. Fisher of Scott City was bound over to appear in Circuit Court on Nov. 8 Wednesday in Magistrate Court on a Sept. 5 charge of assault with intent to commit rape.

Trial of Imogene Schlenker of Cape Girardeau was set for Nov. 14 on a charge of stealing seven pairs of slacks and one package of documents from Steve Hay of Illmo.

A case against Orley Jackson of Illmo was dismissed on a charge of stealing personal property on June 6 from the Illmo Special Road District.

Sikestonians tour fashion mart

COLUMBUS, Miss. — Two young women from Sikeston, Mo., were among the 31 students majoring in fashion and retail merchandising at Mississippi State College for Women who spent four days at the Dallas Apparel Mart in Texas earlier this week.

The students from Sikeston were Karla Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Bailey of 819 Ladue, and Nancye Trigg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Trigg Sr. of 900 Hawthorne.

They visited the merchandising plants of Bobbie Brooks, Herman Marcus, Inc., Nardis of Dallas and Howard Wolf, Inc.

The annual trip, organized to provide an insight into buying and selling techniques among some of the largest firms in the fashion industry, was under the direction of Miss Jeannette Brock, home economics instructor at MSCW.

During the Friday-Monday trip, the class also attended special showings at Neiman- Marcus and accompanied buyers to the more than 2,000 showrooms.

The mart, which annually displays the spring line of fashions, drew more than 20,000 buyers from throughout the Southwest, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Ann Landers

Teen-age sex test updated from '66

Dear Ann Landers: It's been a long time since you first printed that "Know Thyself Sex Test For Teenagers." Anyone who digs cats between 13 and 19 knows that mossy old test of 1966 needs updating.

A committee of four--- two males and two females, from 15 to 17--- have revised the original test and here it is. Please warn the old geezers who are subject to heart failure to skip Ann Landers today.

Instructions for Scoring: For each YES answer, give yourself the number of points at the end of that line. Add up the score and compare it to the Scoring Guide:

Ever been out with a member of the opposite sex?...2

Ever been kissed?...2

Ever been French kissed?...2

Ever been kissed while in a reclining position?...2

Ever been parked for more than one hour?...2

Ever said "I love you"?...3

Ever said "I love you" to more than one person in the same week?...4

Ever made a member of the opposite sex cry?...3

Has a member of the opposite sex ever made you cry?...3

Ever removed some of your clothes while making out?...5

Ever removed ALL your clothes while making out?...8

Ever gone all the way? ..8

Ever had an abortion or been responsible for one?...10

Ever been picked up by someone you never saw before?...7

Ever had sex with someone you just met that night?...10

Ever lie to your folks about where you've been or who with?...7

Do you smoke cigarets?...1

Do you drink?...2

Taken downers or uppers or both?...6

Smoked pot?...3

Ever tripped on LSD?...8

Ever done cocaine or shot up speed or horse?...10

Ever had sex without any precaution against pregnancy?...8

Ever wake up and not remember where you've been or what you've done?...8

Scoring Guide

7 or under-- Innocent And Unaware

8 to 14--- Pure As The Driven Snow

15 to 24--- Normal and Decent

25 to 30--- Passionate And Heading For Trouble

30 to 45--- In Trouble And Getting Messed Up

45 to 55--- Messed Up But Salvageable, Maybe

55 to 65--- Condemned. Either you are a damn fool or you have freaked out completely and are no longer responsible for what you are doing.

Yours truly,
Normal And Decent

Dear Normal And Decent: According to my figures you don't rate that signature if you have over 17 points. I hope that's where YOU are.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Homecoming dance set for Saturday night

The annual Sikeston High School homecoming dance will be held Saturday in the school cafetorium beginning at 8 p.m. The Dead Weight, a group from Hermann, will provide music.

Students attending must have their school identification cards, and students inviting out- of- school dates must sign a form in "A" office before the dance. Dress will be casual but jeans will not be allowed.

Dinner has dual purpose

About 150 people crowded Heritage House Tuesday at noon for a ham 'n bean dinner which senior citizens of the center made available to the general public.

The luncheon had a two-fold purpose - one to earn money for the center, the other to show people of the area the purpose and use of the center in the life of the community.

There are four vacant places to be filled immediately for the Nov. 8-10 Nashville tour sponsored by Heritage House. Any adult interested in going on the tour should call 471-8059.

Lecturer studies architecture

By PAT GROJEAN

The architecture of county courthouses and city squares can provide an insight into the attitudes of both past and present residents of the area, Marian M. Ohman of Columbia tells people in her lectures throughout the state on the sociological history of Missouri courthouses.

Mrs. Ohman is program coordinator in humanities for the University of Missouri Extension Division. She was in Sikeston Tuesday morning at an organizational meeting for two seminars to be held March 10 and 17. The programs will consist of two parts each day. The first half of each session will be a slide-lecture presentation, and the second half will be open discussion of related issues.

The distinctive features of several architectural styles will be discussed in the program.

Mrs. Ohman spent Tuesday afternoon touring the Bootheel area and taking pictures of courthouses and town squares in the area. She will include these slides in her presentation.

Mrs. Ohman, who deals with 19th century courthouses, looks for the way in which the courthouse or square reflects the lives of the community. She also considers the style of architecture and its historical period.

"The condition of the courthouses today reflects the attitudes of the people," Mrs. Ohman said.

She added that the way in which the courthouse has been maintained throughout the years and what the county may spend its money for when not used for upkeep on the courthouse causes certain questions about the attitudes of the people which she cannot always answer.

"Courthouses were used for many purposes in the past," Mrs. Ohman said. She explained that they were often religious meeting places, housing for itinerants or others, schools, and much more.

Mrs. Ohman, who is interested in developing a cultural history of Missouri, said she loves to present this lecture and tries to make it a personal experience for her audiences.

She explained that she tries to provide a sociological look at the architecture of the courthouses and will not become involved in local problems.

Mrs. Ohman expects her doctor of philosophy degree to be conferred in December. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in sociology and a masters degree in art history with a minor in American history.

This is her third lecture year with the university.

The series is sponsored through the Missouri State Committee for the Humanities by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington, D.C. It will be presented locally by the University of Missouri Extension Division of Columbia.

Mrs. Marian M. Ohman of Columbia, seated second from left, plans a two-part seminar on a sociological look at Missouri courthouses with representatives from the Bootheel area. Among others present at the planning session Tuesday morning seated from left, are Mrs. Kathryn Kinnard of Portageville, area continuing education programmer at the Delta Center; Miss Dorothy Conway of New Madrid and Mrs. Alic Hill of Kewanee. Standing are Mrs. Ruth Millington of Advance and Mrs. A. D. Martin of Sikeston. Mrs. Ohman will present her lecture series in the Bootheel in March.

Eight accident patients were treated Wednesday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Barbara Myers, 9, East Prairie, multiple scratches, hit by car; Lawrence Williams, 25, Sikeston, sprained neck in car accident; Freida Penrod, 56, Sikeston, bruised chest in car accident; Tony Wilderness, 4, Lilbourn, injured left side of face in fall against table.

SEASON EXPANDS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Symphony season, from Sept. 20 until May 25, has been expanded this year to include 18 Thursday evening concerts instead of the previous 12 Thursday performances.

Other series during the season include 24 Saturday evening, 12 Friday afternoon, 5 Sunday encore, 5 Sunday festival of music "family," 5 Sunday festival of music "spectrum" and 3 Saturday evening Baroque.

1,440 employed in guidance

Missouri's public schools employed 1,440 men and women in the area of Guidance during fiscal 1973. There were 469 men and 352 women working in the high schools, while 179 men and 156 women served as guidance personnel in the junior high schools. A total of 65 men and 219 women worked in elementary guidance programs, according to data compiled by the State Department of Education.

The greatest number of curtain calls in ballet is believed to have been after a performance of "Swan Lake" in Vienna in 1964 — 89 curtain calls. The dancers were Dame Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev.

Lawyer accuses co-op of disguising political gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fired lawyer for the nation's largest dairy cooperative swears the group disguised illegal corporate "campaign contributions" as legal fees.

The allegation is being investigated by the Senate Watergate committee, the Watergate prosecution force, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the General Accounting Office.

Investigators are seeking to find how much of a reported $384,000 legal bill went into the alleged contributions, who got them, and whether any of the money was used for any other purpose.

The ousted lawyer, Joseph A. Rose Jr., 35, was fired from his job as the San Antonio-based Associated Milk Producers Inc. in September after he told part of his story to FBI agents.

A spokesman for the group said Rose was fired for "failure to carry out his duties."

Rose testified in a lawsuit that the milk producers funneled political money through an Oklahoma City lawyer, Stuart Russell, and that Russell converted it to checks and cash and gave it to the milkmen's chief political staffer, Robert Lilly.

Court filings show Russell received $384,000 in a 10-month period ending April 30, 1972. At least part of the money apparently went for legitimate legal costs, since Russell performed legal services for the milk group during that period.

Rose said Russell acknowledged passing money to Lilly for "political contributions," and became nervous about the arrangement when IRS agents traced some of the money to Lilly. Federal law prohibits use of corporation money for political donations.

Rose said Lilly indicated he knew who got the money, and that he left open the possibility it had gone for something other than campaign funds.

Rose said he felt it was his obligation as a lawyer to get the money back, but that Lilly told him, "It can't be recouped because it didn't go to something like the Committee to Reelect the President. It went direct."

Rose was asked, "By direct, you mean like hundred dollar bills in a brown bag, is that the way you understood it?"

"That is my conclusion," Rose said.

He testified in a tangled lawsuit in Kansas City, Mo., on Oct. 23, and a transcript of his statement became available in Washington Wednesday.

Russell and Lilly couldn't be reached for comment. A spokesman for the milk producers declined to comment on Rose's allegations.

The milk producers have been at the center of another political controversy. Public-interest groups have alleged in court that the milkmen bought favors from the Nixon administration in return for campaign donations.

Miss Fugate must wait

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A roadblock to parole has been removed for Caril Ann Fugate, but the ex-sweetheart of mass killer Charles Starkweather will have to wait another three years before possible release from prison.

The state Pardon Board Tuesday commuted her life sentence for murder to 30 to 50 years. At the earliest under Nebraska law, she could be considered for parole in May of 1976. Commutation to 25 years would have made her eligible for immedate parole consideration by the separate parole board. Without commutation, parole cannot be granted.

Miss Fugate, a 14-year-old eighth grader at the time, accompanied Starkweather, 19, on a three-day killing rampage in 1958 during which nine persons in the Lincoln area were killed, and a 10th was shot to death near Douglas, Wyo., moments before the pair were captured. Starkweather was executed in 1958.

Convicted of murder for aiding and abetting Starkweather in one of the killings, Miss Fugate has spent half of her 30 years of life at the York, Neb., women's reformatory.

She received word of the pardon board action without comment. Jacqueline Crawford, reformatory superintendent, pictured her as grateful for the commutation, but disappointed that release cannot come earlier.

Gov. J. James Exon and Secretary of State Allen Beermann voted to commute her term. Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, third board member, dissented.

Miss Fugate was not called before the pardon board. Relatives of the victims appeared to oppose clemency.

Entered in the record was a transcript of an Oct. 5 interview of Miss Fugate by parole board members in which she again protested her innocence.

"If I would have to stay in this institution for the rest of my life, I would stand upon these grounds I am not guilty," she declared.

Her Work Is Never Done

I'LL TELL THEM I REMEMBER YOU. By William Peter Blatty. Norton. 173 Pages. $5.95.

In this touching reminiscence, William Blatty evokes the days of his childhood while at the same time dealing with the occult and putting forth his thoughts on the possibility of life after death.

Using his mother, a charming Lebanese immigrant, as his focal point, Blatty, author of the best-selling "The Exorcist," tells of how the mother fought to bring up her five children after their father had left and succeeded admirably. Some of the stories Blatty tells of his mother are touching, others are humorous, but all show what a most remarkable woman this was.

Ag. Department reports price decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects of consumer relief at the supermarket were held out by government economists Wednesday in the wake of a decline in the price of raw farm products.

The Agriculture Department reported a four per cent decline in price between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15. This followed an eight per cent drop the previous month, the sharpest one-month drop in 25 years.

Officials said lower prices for cattle, hogs, wheat, broiler chickens and eggs contributed the most to the decline.

There were higher prices reported for milk, rice, oranges, dry beans and grapefruit.

Administration officials have predicted that retail food costs will begin to slow down as farmers complete record harvests and begin to turn out more livestock, milk and poultry.

So far, however, evidence compiled by the government indicates that consumers have not benefited to the full extent from drops in raw farm prices.

Last week the USDA said retail prices of farm produced food dropped 1.5 per cent in September.

Confirmation hearings begin today on Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford faces questions about his handling of campaign contributions and his views on executive privilege as the Senate Rules Committee starts his confirmation hearings.

Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said, without referring specifically to Nixon's Watergate woes, "You have to assume we may be confirming a president."

Ford, the House Republican leader, planned a detailed opening statement today as Congress prepared for the first time to act on a vice presidential nomination under the 25th Amendment.

The odds still favor prompt, overwhelming approval of Ford to replace Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned.

However, Cannon said Wednesday that, in his inspection of more than 1,700 pages of raw FBI data on Ford, "I have seen things that will certainly raise questions."

He said these include "the question of laundering campaign funds" and charges of "making certain political contributions in exchange for certain favors."

However, Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., said, as he prepared to resume reading the FBI data, he has found nothing that will jeopardize approval of Ford "under any circumstances."

Cannon said he hopes the hearings won't take more than six to eight days. Cook said he doesn't expect the Senate to wait for House hearings before considering the nomination.

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., has said he hopes the House will act on the nomination by Thanksgiving.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said earlier "it is conceivable" the House Judiciary Committee will begin its hearings next week.

Cannon and Cook both said Ford is probably the most investigated nominee in the nation's history. He has given the committee copies of income tax returns and other requested records.

Cannon, in citing charges of "laundering campaign funds," said the committee will ask Ford about the $11,000 in 1970 campaign contributions that he channeled to the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

A similar amount was then sent by the committee to Ford's Michigan District, but he didn't report the contribution in the statement he filed with the House.

Cannon didn't elaborate on his reference to charges of contributions in return for favors and, when asked if he considered some of the FBI data embarrassing to Ford, said, "I don't think I should make a comment about that."

Representatives of Mideast in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For today, at least, President Nixon seemed to have the Egyptians and Israelis where he wanted them — in the same city talking about a Middle East settlement.

However, despite their presence here at the same time, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy did not come to Washington to talk to each other. Instead, they came separately to plead their own special interests and to obtain as much support as possible from Nixon for positions that appear to be in direct conflict.

Before her breakfast meeting today with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a noon session with the President, Mrs. Meir told reporters that problems and questions had arisen out of her country's relationship with the United States.

She asked to talk with the President and Kissinger to "seek answers and clarifications," Mrs. Meir said upon her arrival Wednesday afternoon.

She described as "an oversimplification" reports Israel had been subjected to undue pressure from the United States concerning cease-fire lines.

Meanwhile, in Tel Aviv Wednesday, an Israeli military command spokesman said dozens of trucks carried emergency supplies for the Egyptian 3rd Army through Israeli Suez Canal lines.

A relief operation for the 20,000 men of the encircled military force was in its third day on the southern end of the waterway. The Israeli military spokesman said the cargoes of about half of a 125-truck convoy had been shipped to the east bank of the canal.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat continued to refuse to exchange Israeli war prisoners until Israel pulled back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines established by the U.N. Middle East truce.

He also said that, once the Israelis withdraw, Egypt would be willing to "start immediately with peace talks" in an international peace conference under U.N. sponsorship.

U.S. officials privately acknowledged they would prefer an Israeli pullback and Mrs. Meir didn't deny being aware of the American position.

In fact, some Israeli sources said one of the goals of her visit is to convince Nixon not to back her government against the wall on the issue.

They said the United States should realize Israel is a democracy and subject to popular pressures, particularly on matters involving prisoner exchanges and territorial gains.

Mrs. Meir also was expected to seek assurances that the United States, in its effort to appear even-handed, is not wavering on its position that outside powers should not impose a settlement on the Middle East.

Egypt continues to insist publicly that it will not negotiate directly with Israel, although it would attend an international conference once the Israelis withdrew to the Oct. 22 lines.

Privately, there are indications Egypt may be more flexible. U.S. officials said they were pleasantly surprised by Fahmy and predicted important progress within weeks.

In fact, it was Fahmy's visit and the reports of his friendly reception that caused Mrs. Meir to suddenly come to Washington.

She is said to have felt it was time to re-establish the image of her close personal relationship with Nixon.

Mrs. Meir will stay in the United States until Saturday, taking advantage of the opportunity to talk with influential businessmen and members of Congress.

U.S. sources agreed with suggestions that these contacts will result in public and private commitments of support.

This will help Mrs. Meir both at home in reaffirming her government's position as still holding major influence in U.S. policy making and in applying indirect political pressure on Nixon, the sources said.

Fahmy has been in the United States since Monday and has seen Kissinger twice and Nixon once, on Wednesday.

The Egyptian official, who was formally named foreign minister Wednesday, spent 45 minutes with Nixon at the White House shortly after his appointment was announced.

As he had about his previous conversations with Kissinger, Fahmy said his talk with Nixon had been useful. No details were available about the meeting, but Fahmy reportedly gave Nixon a message from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger told reporters earlier Wednesday that "we believe we are making progress" on the Middle East problem. He later told Nixon that he and Fahmy "have had some very good talks."

Although she made no secret of the "problems and questions" her government has concerning U.S. policy, Mrs. Meir said at her airport arrival ceremony that Israel and America are steadfast friends.

"I've come to Washington, come to a friendly country, a friendly government and a friendly President," the 76-year-old prime minister said.

In fact, Mrs. Meir continued, it is this close relationship that brings problems and, at the same time, allows her to frankly discuss the situation.

It would "be almost unnatural for the United States to see things exactly in the same light as Israel sees it," she said.

Drivers urged to maintain safe distance

Col. Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, noted that all too many drivers fail to maintain a safe following distance from the vehicle ahead of them. Traffic records show that following too closely is a contributing factor in thousands of accidents each year.

"The practice of following too closely or 'tailgating' can lead to a serious traffic accident," Smith declared. "Drivers who 'tailgate' the vehicle in front of them sooner or later trap themselves into a rear- end collision. They either hit the vehicle ahead or get hit from behind because they suddenly need to stop. Motorists should observe the rules pertaining to following distance as they travel."

Col. Smith pointed out that State law requires that the driver of a passenger vehicle shall not follow another vehicle more closely than is reasonably safe and prudent, having due regard for the speed of such vehicle and the traffic upon and the condition of the roadway. Drivers of busses and trucks may not follow within 300 feet of another vehicle.

"A good rule of thumb for a safe following distance is at least one car length for every 10 miles per hour of speed," the colonel continued."But remember, this is only a minimum cushion of space that allows for a safe stop. Weather, highway conditions and other variables may dictate a greater following distance for safety.

"Thousands of traffic accidents each year involve drivers following too closely, "Smith concluded. "I urge drivers to maintain a safe follosing distance so as to better avoid being involved in a traffic mishap."

Bluff pair on trial for fraud

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Defense witnesses took the stand in Federal District Court here Wednesday in the government's case against a Poplar Bluff couple charged with using the mails to defraud when obtaining money through false pretenses.

Eugene Britton and his wife, Linda Lou Britton, are accused of collecting in excess of $7,500 in insurance claims after staging a traffic accident on March 29, 1972, in Butler County.

The government contends the Brittons feigned injuries from the accident and incurred medical and hospital expenses for treatment.

A 14- count federal indictment alleges that, as part of the scheme, Britton obtained 23 separate first-party insurance coverages between June 2, 1965, and date of the accident. Mrs. Britton is said to have obtained 11 insurance policies during that period.

Two counts were dismissed Tuesday on the opening day of the trial at the request of Frederick J. Dana, special attorney from the U. S. Department of Justice.

The prosecution's first witness, Charles Henry Myers, 33, of Arkansas, told of being hired by Britton on March 29, 1972, to rent a truck and "have an accident with a pickup truck he (Britton) owned."

"I was to rent a truck and then hit his truck so he could collect insurance policies on his," the witness said. He said he carried out the plan, renting a truck for the accident."

The accident occurred at the intersection of Route T and a county road. Myers said he ran a stop sign on the county road and hit the Britton truck which had been parked by the owner. He said the Brittons were out of the truck when it was struck.

Myers said he was cited for careless and imprudent driving, spent the night in jail and was fined $20. He said Britton was to pay him $100 for carrying out the plan, reimburse him for cost of renting the truck and he netted between $80 and $100 from the accident.

Malden to vote on city manager issue

MALDEN — A special election has been called by the Malden City Council for Dec. 4 to determine if the city manager form of government should be adopted.

The action was taken Monday night by the council. The ordinance was approved unanimously.

Petitions were presented to the council on Oct. 8 by the Malden Jaycees bearing 431 signatures requesting that the election be called.

Should voters approve the change to the city manager system, a second election must be called at which time five persons will be elected to form a City Council. The council will then employ a city manager to administer the affairs of the city.

In other action Monday night, the City Council voted to submit to the citizens of Malden in the form of a $970,000 revenue bond to pay off the recently purchased electric generators. These bonds would be retired directly from revenue derived from the sale of electrical power. They would not affect taxation.

This will also require a special election. The sole purpose in switching to revenue bonds is to save nearly one per cent interest on financing the generators. The city would realize a savings in excess of $70,000.

No date has been set for this election.

Country music show set

CHARLESTON — A Grand Ole Opry type music show is scheduled Nov. 10 at the National Guard Armory with two performances set at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The program, featuring George Mitchell of Nashville, Linda Lee and the Jimmy Griggs Show of St. Louis and Little Arnie Stone of Sikeston, is sponsored by the Charleston auxiliary police unit.

Proceeds from the show will be used to purchase police equipment.

Merchants who purchase tickets but do not want to use them may return them to the auxiliary police unit which will give them to underprivileged children of the area.

Number calling for impeachment doubles, poll shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox doubled the number of persons calling for impeachment, according to a poll conducted by Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., in his district.

Litton said Tuesday his survey indicated the dismissal of Cox also reduced the number of constituents who approve of the President's performance and increased the number disenchanted with politicians and pessimistic about the future.

The freshman Democrat said the conclusions were based on questionnaires sent to nearly 200,000 households in his norther Missouri district two weeks before Cox was fired. The answers were returned before and after the firing.

Litton said the number of persons advocating impeaching Nixon rose from 16 per cent before the firing to 32 per cent in the two days following that event.

The number who said they approved of the way the President was running his office dropped from 30.7 per cent to a low of 21 per cent before edging up to 22 per cent.

In answer to another question, 70 per cent of those polled said they thought most public officials were not interested in the problems of the average man before the firing. But Litton said that figure rose to 73 per cent afterward.

Before the firing, 61 per cent said they believed the lost of the average citizen was getting worse instead of better. Within two days after Cox was ousted, the figure increased to 68 per cent before leveling off at 64 per cent.

Prior to the Cox announcement, 78 per cent of those answering the questionnaire replied affirmatively to the statement, "these days a person really doesn't know who he can count on." The figure increased to 80 per cent after the firing and then dropped to 79 per cent.

The Missouri congressman said the questionnaires were being received in his Washington office at about 5,000 per day and the total returned is expected to reach 50,000.

University of Missouri enrolls record 48,681

COLUMBIA— Continuing its steady growth in enrollment, the University of Missouri this fall has enrolled a record 48,681 students (head count) at its four campuses at Columbia, Kansas City, Rolla and St. Louis, according to university president C. Brice Ratchford.

The enrollment represents an increase of 1,254 students over the 47,427 enrolled a year ago, making this year's increase the largest single year gain in enrollment at the university since the fall of 1969 when the increase was 3,285 Ratchford said.

Enrollment this fall by campus and the change from a year ago is as follows:

Columbia campus: 22,815, an increase of 714 from last year's 22,101. (This figure includes 128 students enrolled in graduate programs conducted by the UMC College of Administration and Public Affairs under a contract with the U. S. Air Force at Whiteman Air Force Base.)

Kansas City campus: 10,087, a gain of 268 over the 9,819 of a year ago.

Rolla campus: 4,190, a decrease of 162 from last year's 4,352.

St. Louis campus: 11,589, an increase of 434 from the 11,155 of a year ago.

While the Rolla campus enrollment declined by 162, President Ratchford noted the decrease was substantially smaller than earlier had been expected. He said this may indicate that enrollment in engineering is beginning to make a comeback, just as many have believed it would.

The enrollment report this fall shows that, in addition to the campus enrollments, there are an additional 3,867 students enrolled in credit courses offered as part of the University's extension programs. This is an increase of 397 from a year ago.

The figure includes 462 students at the University of Missouri- Rolla Graduate Engineering Center in St. Louis and 3,405 other students enrolled in correspondence and other extension credit courses.

The campus enrollment figures, when broken down into several categories, show the following (excluding the 128 students in the Whiteman AFB program):

By classes, the figures show: freshman, 10,795; sophomore, 8,369; junior, 9,115; senior, 7,654; special and unclassified undergraduate, 1,700; graduate professional (includes students in dentistry, law, medicine and veterinary medicine), 2,350; masters, 6,882; and doctoral, 1,668.

Missouri resident students, 42,090, an increase of 1,693 from last year; out- of- state students, 6,463, a decrease of 464 from a year ago.

Male students, 30,410, a gain of 381; female students, 18,143, an increase of 848.

First time freshman students, 7,276, an increase of 264 from last year.

Washington report

Senator says Nixon should reinstate Cox

By STUART SYMINGTON

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In May of this year, when revelations about official misconduct brought a wave of resignations and discharges of Federal government officials, Americans were promised that justice would be pursued fairly, fully, and impartially.

To that end the President nominated Elliot Richardson to be Attorney General and said he was giving him absolute authority to make all decisions bearing on the prosecution of the Water gate case. He also gave Mr. Richardson authority to choose a special supervising prosecutor for matters arising out of the case.

Prior to confirmation by the Senate, Mr. Richardson announced his intention to name Professor Archibald Cox and drew up the guidelines relating to the special prosecutor giving him full authority for investigating and prosecuting offenses against the United States arising out of the unauthorized entry into Democratic National Committee headquarters at thyWatergate and offenses arising out of the 1972 presidential election.

The guidelines set forth the specific responsibility to determine whether or not to contest the assertion of "executive privilege" or any other testimonial privilege in the investigation of the President, members of the White House staff or presidential appointees. The guidelines assured that the special prosecutor "will not be removed from his duties except for extraordinary improprieties on his part."

This all was wiped out by the extraordinary events of October 20.

Having chosen not to seek a review of judicial orders to produce certain recordings and documents for the Watergate Grand Jury, the President proposed a method by which the tapes might be filtered to both the Senate Watergate Committee and the Grand Jury. He ordered that the Special Prosecutor not proceed to argue in court that the President's somewhat cloudy plan would not meet the Grand Jury's requirement. The Special Prosecutor explained to the public why it was necessary to seek compliance with the order of the Court.

There followed resignations forced by the demands of honor and service of Attorney General Richardson and Deputy Attorney General Ruckelshaus, both declining to carry out the President's order to discharge the Special Prosecutor. The President ultimately succeeded in obtaining the dismissal of the Special Prosecutor.

In effect, the President chose to try to still one of the two essential voices in the adversary system on which the rule of law relies to find the truth; and, to, in effect, preside as the judge in his own case.

Millions of Americans, I among them, were both amazed and distressed at the prospect of the announced intention to defy the court. Millions of Americans, I among them, are also somewhat relieved that the President altered his course Tuesday and announced he would comply with the judicial order. So much harm has now been done. So much time has been wasted. Every effort should be made to restore as nearly as possible the situation existing before October 20.

Inasmuch as the announced reason for insisting on the firing of the Special Prosecutor was the position he took on the need of the Grand Jury for papers and recordings in the possession of the White House, and inasmuch as the President has now decided to abide by the Court's order with respect to the tapes, it would seem reasonable for the President to reinstate Professor Archibald Cox as the Special Prosecutor. I believe that would be an act in the nation's interest, and the speediest method of seeking to restore public confidence.

The nation needs to put Watergate behind us, but that cannot be accomplished in good faith until the matter is investigated by an independent and impartial prosecutor. I do not believe in fact or in appearance that the hallmark of independence in the prosecutorial functions can be achieved now by a return of the Watergate investigations to the Department of Justice from which it was lifted when events relating to the alleged cover up surfaced in the spring.

Doctor looks for Washington denture

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A search is under way for half of a denture once worn by George Washington.

Dr. Reidar F. Sognnaes of the University of California at Los Angeles said Tuesday he is looking for the lower right half of Washington's third set of dentures, the left half of which is now at the University of London Medical College Hospital in England.

He said he believes the portion he seeks might be in South America.

Sognnaes said the dentures were orginally inherited by relatives of the first dean of the first dental school of the United States in Baltimore.

"But this dean, Dr. Chapin Harris, had several daughters, one of whom married into an English family, which explains why one half of the denture got to England," Sognnaes said.

"Two other daughters married into South American families, one in Brazil, one in Argentinia ... " he said.

"Somewhere on that great continent there may be a little cigar box in someone's attic containing the missing half."

Sognnaes said he has a means of determining the real right half, but isn't revealing it in case there is an attempted hoax.

Contrary to myth, Sognnaes said Washington's teeth were made neither of wood nor by Paul Revere. He said that for the most part they were elephant ivory and were all made by a New Yorker, John Greenwood.

This incomplete set, as well as earlier dentures, have a hole in the left side, he added. It was for Washington's one remaining natural tooth and held the denture in place. The top half of the dentures was connected to the bottom by a strong spring.

Trade surplus is nothing to cheer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is headed for a huge $2 billion trade surplus with Communist nations this year, but it's nothing for American consumers to cheer about.

The surplus, far exceeding original forecasts by the Nixon administration, is being built largely on agricultural exports, mainly the massive wheat deal with the Soviet Union.

That deal drained much-needed U.S. grain supplies and contributed heavily to the big upsurge in food prices this year.

Ironically, the trade surplus with Communist nations is giving the dollar a boost, making it stronger than it might otherwise have been, U.S. officials said.

Trade with Communist nations is one big reason why the nation's trading accounts are expected to be in the black this year for the first time in three years.

U.S. exports to Russia, mainland China and Communist European countries will be $2.5 billion to $2.9 billion this year, while imports from those countries will be $500 to $550 million, Commerce Department analysts said.

This compares with exports of $878 million and imports of $354 million last year.

"I doubt very much if trade is going to be at this year's magnitude in 1974," said Steven Lazarus, head of the department's Bureau of East-West Trade.

Lazarus said he anticipated a 25 per cent dropoff in U.S. trade with Communist nations next year, largely because of smaller agricultural purchases by the Soviet Union and mainland China.

But exports of other American- made goods will increase, he said.

There is one problem clouding the picture, U.S. officials said. Congress is working on legislation that would deny tariff cuts to the Soviet Union until Russia changes its policies dealing with Jewish emigration.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz says failure of Congress to grant the Soviet Union the same rates on tariffs as other U.S. trading partners could imperil expanded trade between the two countries.

Agriculture is not the only area where trade has expanded between the United States and Communist- bloc nations.

Mainland China, for example, has contracted to buy 10 large passenger airplanes from Boeing Aircraft. It also is buying artificial fibers, communications equipment, scientific testing equipment and chemical fertilizers.

Lazarus said the Soviets sent a 16- person purchasing team to New York in 1972. They began lining up contracts for the Kama River truck plant and apparently participated in the grain purchases.

The 1898 Treaty of Paris ended the Spanish-American War.

and that the switching system to a second six-hour reel apparently didn't work. He said it was the only failure he knew of.

The missing recordings include what Mitchell told Nixon in their first reported conversation following the Watergate break-in of June 20, 1972, and of what passed between Nixon and Dean in a meeting in which Dean said Nixon admitted discussing clemency as part of the Watergate cover-up.

The disclosure brought quick reaction from senators of both parties.

"As of this moment, President Nixon has the clear burden of satisfying the American people that he has been speaking the truth. If he fails in this, then we are faced with a political crisis of the most profoundly disturbing proportions," said James L. Buckley, Con.-R-N.Y.

Republican Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon said the revelation that "the very tapes that have been fought over to the brink of a constitutional confrontation" don't exist "dramatically escalates the problem of this administration's credibilitv."

Student gives schools the slip

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — A warning to quarterback-hungry high school coaches of mid-America — If Billy Wilson shows up, he may not be for real.

Eudora, Kan., High School officials reported Wednesday that a Billy Wilson, described as a straight-A student and all-state quarterback from Jones County, Va., had enrolled there Monday, then excused himself and disappeared.

The story caught the eye of Warrensburg, Mo., High School officials, who report apparently the same youth turned up there last Friday.

Warrensburg High Coach George Arnold reported a man called him Friday morning, identifying himself as a retired government employe by the name of James Wilson. He said his son, Billy, would be coming out to the school to enroll.

Arnold said the youth appeared Friday afternoon, watched a warmup session, pointed out a couple of mistakes by the present quarterback, and even wanted to run a few plays himself. Arnold said the youth, who told of running the 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds, appeared to be "a heck of an athlete."

The youth sat on the Warrensburg bench that night, and wore a team jersey, although he did not play. He left following the game, telling Arnold he would be by Monday to enroll and would see him then.

Monday a youth showed up at Eudora High with virtually the same story, enrolled, asked to be excused to help his parents unpack, then disappeared. A check revealed no Jones County, Va.

640,000 rode buses in 1972

CARUTHERSVILLE— More than 640,000 young Missourians, including 4,823 Pemiscovian students, out of an actual state public school enrollment of 1,082,744 rode buses during the 1972- 73 school year, according to the State Department of Education.

A total of 7,930 vehicles, both school owned and contracted, transported pupils to and from school daily in Missouri at an average annual cost per pupil of $73.89. In Pemiscot County, the number of buses operated last year was 57.

A check with the school districts in Pemiscot County disclosed these figures for the 1972- 73 school year:

Caruthersville School District No. 18, five buses, 596 students transported; Hayti School District, 11 buses, 1,025 students transported; North Pemiscot School District at Wardell, 20 buses, 1,203 students transported; South Pemiscot School District at Steele, 11 buses, 900 students transported; McCarty R- 3 School District, five buses, 260 students transported; Delta C- 7 School District, 10 buses, 572 students transported; and Cooter School District, five buses, 267 students transported.

A total of 7,930 vehicles— both school owned and contracted— transported pupils to and from school daily at an average annual cost per pupil of $73.89.

Commercial lines could envy the safety record of Missouri's school busses when the vastness of the mileage and age of the passengers is considered. Only 574 accidents were reported for school buses last year, including those damage situations where the bus was parked and empty. Only 101 of these accidents or damage situations involved injuries.

Three fatalities and 152 pupil injuries were reported during the 1972- 73 school year. Of the injuries, mostly minor, six were listed as "pupil- caused" accidents and 10 involved pupils crossing the road to board or leave a bus.

Most accidents occur in the loading and unloading areas of the school bus, according to Haynes. One effort to improve this situation involves the signals on the buses.

"All school busses manufactured after Jan. 1, 1973, are required to have flashing lights on the 'Stop' arm which extends from the bus when it is stopped to load or discharge youngsters."

For the sixth year the Deparment of Education is offering workshops to school bus drivers to help prepare these individuals for any problems they might encounter while responsible for young lives. The workshops stress traffic safety, accident prevention, emergency procedures and school bus discipline.

Vets bolster MHS

MATTHEWS — Coach Carl Ritter begins his second year at the helm of the MHS Pirates after an illustrious high school career at Advance and then playing for the SEMSU at Cape Girardeau where he was instrumental in leading the Indians to second place ratings in the AP small college poll his senior year.

Coach Ritter has a veteran squad returning off a 20-7 record in 1972-73. Returning will be Armand Porter, a 6-0 senior who takes care of the post position for the Pirates. Armand is the teams leading rebounder and averaged in double figures for the Pirates last year. Also returning will be Jimmy Hardin, a good ball handler and outside threat. Hardin was also a double figure producer last year. Ricky Parker, a 5-9 forward is also a fine shooter when left unattended from the 15-20 foot range. Ricky can hit in double figures when the opportunity arises.

Coach Ritter plans to lean heavily on Dwight Latham this season, Latham is 5-11 and a spot starter last year. Gary Kenedy is also a spot starter from last years squad. David Kenedy, a junior varsity transfer from last season will be called upon a lot this season as Matthews goes out to improve on last year's record and hopefully a trip to the state class S state tournament.

Matthews gets their roundball season underway November 6 against the Risco Tigers of coach Stan Whitson.

Big Red face Broncos Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The two top passers in St. Louis Football Cardinal history square off Sunday when the Big Red, led by Jim Hart, take on former St. Louis quarterback Charley Johnson and the improved Denver Broncos. Kickoff in Busch Memorial Stadium is set for 1:05 p.m. (CST)

The Cardinals- Broncos get- together could be an interesting and high scoring one. Shaking off a four- game losing streak, the Big Red (3-4) outscored the New York Giants last week, 35-27, with Hart throwing for four touchdowns. Meanwhile, the Broncos improved their record to 3-3-1 with a 40-28 triumph over the New York Jets as Johnson tossed two TD passes.

Johnson, a 10th- round draft choice from New Mexico State, played with the Cardinals from 1961-69 and holds the Big Red career records for most pass attempts (2,047), completions (1,030), yards (14,928) and touchdowns (108). Hart, with the Cardinals since 1966, is the runnerup in each category with 880 completions in 1,843 attempts for 12, 811 yards and 78 TDs.

Having by far the best of his eight years with the Big Red, Hart had perhaps his best game of the season last week against the Giants. He completed 13 of 18 passes for 235 yards and the four touchdowns -- three going to wide receiver Mel Gray and the other to wide receiver Walker Gillette.

The TD strikes to Gray measured 10, 55 and 41 yards while the Gillette pass covered 48 more. Tight end Jackie Smith caught two passes to break Bobby Joe Conrad's former team record of 418 catches. Smith will take 420 receptions and 6,979 career yards into Sunday's game with Denver.

Running back Donny Anderson also was a record-setter last week, running for 130 yards in 18 carries -- a personal one-game high. In addition, Anderson scored his ninth touchdown of the season, matching the most TDs he ever has scored in a season.

"It was a big game for us," coach Don Coryell said after the Giant victory. "The effort has been present every week from our players, and the spirit on the team has stayed very high. The victory meant an awful lot to us."

This will be the first regular season meeting between the Cardinals and Broncos although Denver does enjoy a 2-1 edge in pre-season competition, including a 38-17 victory at Denver in August. The other Broncos win also came in Denver by a 26-16 score in 1970, while the Big Red scored a 17-13 victory in St. Louis last year.

Following the Broncos contest, the Cardinals will take to the road for three straight games -- at Green Bay, a rematch against the Giants at New Haven, Conn., and at Cincinnati. They return to St. Louis on December 2 to entertain the Detroit Lions and close out the season on December 16 against the Dallas Cowboys.

Wrestling returns

Wrestling returns to Sikeston Friday night at 8:30 p.m. after nearly a months absence because of remodeling of the American Legion building where the event takes place.

A six man tag team match is on hand as the main event Friday with the best two out of three falls with a 60 minute time-limit.

Tuffy and Bo Taylor team with the Blue Inferno against Buddy Chandler, Karl Rarcker and Dale Starr in the main event, which will be followed by three other matches.

HORSE RACING

NEW YORK — Cannonade, $10, held onto a stretch lead and won the $28,875 Great American Stakes at Aqueduct, finishing 1 1/2 lengths ahead of Hegemony.

Anderson happy in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals' Donny Anderson had his biggest day Sunday in the National Football League but hopes he never has another like it.

Racked with pain from a twisted neck suffered against the Washington Redskins, the 30-year-old running back nonetheless put in a Busch Stadium appearance against the New York Giants.

And before the day was over, the Giants and not Anderson were suffering the most.

"Along about Thursday I didn't even know whether I'd be able to play," said Anderson, who ripped the Giants for 130 yards on 18 carries and scored a touchdown.

"My wife Karen gave me some rubdowns and massaged the muscles in my neck," he added. "I slept with a brace for a couple of nights, and that helped."

The performance by Anderson, who spent six seasons with the Green Bay Packers before joining the Cards in 1972, was labeled typical by Coach Don Coryell.

"He's a tough old pro," noted Coryell, whose young club whipped the Giants 35-27. "He's been hurt the past two weeks, but he's given us so much help."

A onetime Packers understudy to famed "Golden Boy" Paul Hornung, Anderson says he's shed the description of brusque applied to him in Green Bay.

And part of the new image, he maintains, is attributable to the coaching of Coryell, whom he likens to the late Vince Lombardi.

"His personality's not the same as Lombardi's," the 5-foot-2, 215-pound Anderson pointed out, "but, like Lombardi, he motivates people.

"In Green Bay I was probably thin-skinned," he added, "but that's all in the past. I can only progress by looking to the future."

A more content Anderson two weeks ago played against the Redskins with a badly bruised leg and last week stunned the Giants with a 54-yard run off tackle.

His rushing total at a respectable 318 yards, the former No. 1 draft pick from Texas Tech also has nine touchdowns to match his career high with the season at only its midpoint.

"Yes, you could say I'm more relaxed and loose," Anderson conceded. "Here I feel like I'm part of something for the future that can't miss.

"We just have a lot of young people who are improving," he said. "All in all, I just feel fortunate to be playing here."

Mike Bohannon, Sikeston high school junior varsity quarterback and defensive end, seems to be shying away from the pigskin during this action Monday night against Paducah, but the camera caught the action after the Bulldog star missed on an interception attempt. The SHS gridders edged their Kentucky opponents, 2- 0. SHS's eighth graders visit Cape Friday at 3:30 and the sophomore team goes to Cape Monday.

Agronomist advises 'getting ready'

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area Agronomy
Specialist

BENTON — Wheat planting time is here, so better start getting things ready. We expect to see a big acreage planted this fall. Oct. 15 is the average Hessian Fly free date in this area. Arthur 71 is resistant to Hessian Fly so you may want to plant it. This is the only advantage of Arthur 71 over Arthur.

A lot of wheat has been planted in soybeans and cotton with an airplane.

One disadvantage of this method is that no starter fertilizer can be applied. This will be more serious on soybean ground than cotton. Phosphate and potash should be topdressed soon as the cotton or soybeans are harvested. Apply enough of these two nutrients to supply the wheat and soybean needs. If wheat is to be grazed, apply 30 to 40 lbs. of actual nitrogen this fall.

Arthur is the most popular variety grown in Southeast Missouri. It has averaged 46 bushels per acre the past 3 years in variety trials at Portageville. Yields for a few other varieties are as follows: Monon - 35; Knox 62- 40; Sadler-39; Benhur-40; Coker 68-15 - 43; Abe-35; McNair 4823- 40; and Arthur 71-40.

Oasis and Stoddard are new variety releases. Very little, if any, seed will be available this year.

Do your best to test the soil before wheat is planted. Phosphate, potash, and limestone do a better job if they are plowed down and worked into the soil. A fertilizer application of 10 to 15 lbs. nitrogen and 30 to 50 lbs. phosphate and potash will get wheat off to a good start. This is a good program to follow if you do not have a current soil test.

In the event you do not get limestone and fertilizer applied before wheat is planted, all three can be topdressed with no adverse effects. The wheat should be dry when fertilizer is topdressed. Fertilizer and limestone applied in this manner is not as effective as plowed down or disced in, but it is much better than none at all. When the wheat is harvested and stubble turned under the fertilizer will be ready for the soybeans too follow.

TV IS POPULAR PASTIME IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA (AP) — Figures released by the Austrian Federal Chamber of Economics indicate that almost 40 per cent of all Austrians above the age of 15 — 2 million out of 5.4 million — watch television daily.

Prime viewing time is considered to start immediately after the evening news at 8:15.

According to the survey, 14 per cent do not tune in at all, 12 per cent are infrequent viewers and 70 per cent watch at least once a week.

Pain in one arm or both arms, shown by shaded areas on this sketch, can be an early warning sign of heart attack. Doctors say patients sometimes mistake these warnings for bursitis or arthritis. Any unexplained discomfort or pain in the arms should be checked by a physician.

Early warning signs of heart attack in arms

Bursitis or heart attack?

Pain in one arm or both arms occurs frequently in combination with chest pain as an early warning sign of heart attack, according to a public education program under way in this area. But pain can also occur in the arm without being in the chest at all.

It can be mistaken for bursitis, arthritis or muscle strain, says the heart association.

In the absence of an obvious reason for a pain or discomfort in either arm or both arms, a prompt checkup by your physician is indicated.

The education program, developed by a state Heart Association in consultation with the American heart association, suggests that persons who experience early warning signs should call physicians first. This enables the doctor to participate in a decision on the mode of travel if the patient needs to go to the hospital.

In many cases, a physician may advise a patient that transport by auto might be preferable to ambulance, as a time saver, especially in rural areas.

In any case, one physician advisor says that a patient who does not feel faint is more comfortable sitting up. The most common mistake made by well- meaning friends or relatives is to have someone who is experiencing heart attack warning symptoms to lie down. The physician stresses, however, that the patient must not drive himself.

The heart association points out that pain in the center and front of the chest is the most frequent heart attack early warning sign– because that's where the heart is located.

Second to this discomfort "under the necktie", as one physician puts it, is arm pain.

This may be a sensation of pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching, and can also occur in the neck, jaws, back or upper abdomen or in a combination of those areas. There may also be shortness of breath, sweating, nausea or vomiting.

The heart association urges that you don't gamble that a pain in your arm is bursitis rather than a heart attack. Have it checked by a physician.

There's good sense in the early warning signs' rhyme: "Early attention can mean prevention."

Senator says former adviser tried to silence news media

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential adviser Jeb S. Magruder once promoted a White House plan to use three government regulatory agencies to silence what the administration called unfair news media coverage, says Sen. Lowell P. Weicker.

The Connecticut Republican said Wednesday night that a memorandum authored by Magruder recommended that the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Department's antitrust division, and the Federal Communications Commission be used to control media criticism.

Weicker, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, said Magruder's memorandum, dated Oct. 17, 1969 and titled "The Shot-gun versus the Rifle," was intended for White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman.

The senator made the memorandum public on a WETA television program. The Associated Press also obtained a copy of the document from a source on the Senate Watergate committee.

"It is my opinion this continual daily attempt to get to the media or to anti-administration spokesman because of specific things they have said is very unfruitful and wasteful of our time," Magruder said in the memorandum.

Magruder reportedly enclosed along with the memorandum descriptions of about 21 requests from President Nixon for action relating to "what could be termed unfair news coverage."

Magruder went on to say "we should begin concentrated efforts in a number of major areas that will have much more impact on the media and other anti-administration spokesman ..."

He listed these suggestions:

—"Begin an official monitoring system through the FCC as soon as Dean Burch is officially on the board as chairman. If the monitoring system proves our point, we have then legitimate and legal rights to go to the networks, etc., and make official complaints from the FCC.

"This will have much more effect than a phone call from Herb Klein or Pat Buchanan.

—"Utilize the antitrust division to investigate various media relating to anti-trust violations. Even the possible threat of anti-trust action I think would be effective in changing their views ...

—"Utilizing the Internal Revenue Service as a method to look into the various organizations that we are most concerned about. Just a threat of a IRS investigation will probably turn their approach."

Magruder also suggested that what the White House considers unfair news coverage could be further squelched by giving preference to "favorites within the media."

"I'm not saying we should eliminate the open administration," said Magruder, "but by being open we have not gotten anyone to back us on a consistent basis and many of those who were favorable towards us are now giving it to us at various times ..."

In April of 1972, the Justice Department filed antitrust action challenging the role of the three networks in producing their own entertainment programs. The suits accused the networks of monopolizing prime-time TV entertainment. Television network news programs were not involved in the suits, said an antitrust division spokesman.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Readers Have 'Cures'

Answers on Plantar Warts

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I was very interested in the letters concerning plantar warts in the paper.

For a number of years, I was plagued with them and had every conceivable treatment for them. They were cut out slowly, cut out quickly, burned out with a variety of acids, cauterized, X-rayed (to the tune of $25 a treatment) and even ultrasound was tried. After an extensive surgical removal, which kept me on crutches and in and out of a hospital for three months, they grew back again. I was convinced nothing short of amputation would rid me of them. (I had nightmares about getting plantar warts on my stump!)

My husband was a medical student at the time and finally agreed to "search" for a cure. He found it in "The British Journal of Dermatology, 1963." It consisted of a paste of 20 per cent linseed oil, 20 per cent podophyllin in a base of lanolin. It was applied to the wart for seven days, covered and kept dry the entire time. After seven days, I removed the "plaster" and left it alone. Three months later I was completely free of warts, and have been to this day — nine years later.

We have since recommended it to others who had other unsuccessful treatments, and it worked for them too.

When I think of all the money, time and pain that was wasted on these other treatments, I shudder. The only problem I have now is a very sensitive scar from one of the surgical excisions.

Please pass this tip on to other "victims" and dermatologists alike. The entire cost of this "miracle cure" was one dollar!

Here's hoping everyone can be "plantar wart" free— and painlessly so!

Dear Reader — You won't be surprised to know that I received a long list of cures for warts, and I am glad to have yours. It is included here so various readers troubled with this problem can try it or ask their doctor if he wants to try it.

I was interested to know that many of the cures suggested included covering up the wart in some type of seal over a length of time. One of the suggested cures was to cover the wart with collodion for 10 days. Of course there were numerous suggestions about the use of liquid nitrogen which some doctors use with success.

While some of the treatments that have been suggested are very good, I must caution that some apparent cures are the result of spontaneous disappearance of warts which can, and sometimes does, occur.

Dear Dr. Lamb—The complicated procedures doctors use to remove plantar warts is a disgrace. My daughter had these warts all over her feet and they were removed several times by our doctor but always came back. Each removal left big scars. Then she got several on her face.

I read about a mixture that sounds ridiculous but we tried it and it works — just a few drops of spirits of camphor mixed with ordinary baking soda. I don't know why, but after three days she had no more warts. Please put this in your newspaper articles and let your readers decide for themselves. Thank you.

Dear Reader — Okay. But if it's a wart on the face I'd be happier if it was tried under a doctor's supervision, if at all.

2 issues to face C'ville voters

CARUTHERSVILLE — The Caruthersville City Council has passed two ordinances calling for an election on two issues, a one-cent sales tax and a $400,000 bond issue.

Both proposals will be decided by the voters of Caruthersville on the same day, Nov. 27. The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Polling places are Ward 1, Sacred Heart School Building; Ward 2, Caruthersville Municipal Building; Ward 3, Ark-Mo Power Building; and Ward 4, Caruthersville Public Library.

Prior to a 7 p.m. meeting with city merchants Thursday night, the council passed the two ordinances pertaining to the elections and also adopted a resolution stating that if the sales tax proposal is approved, revenue taken in from the sales tax would only be used for capital improvements.

After the meeting, City Attorney Byron Luber remarked that the resolution would probably be brought up before the council again and adopted as an ordinance.

The city sales tax proposition calls for the establishing of a city sales tax at the rate of one per cent on the receipts from the sale at retail of all tangible personal property or taxable services at retail, if such property and services are subject to the sales tax imposed by the State of Missouri.

A simple majority is needed for passage of the proposal. Absentee ballots will be available.

It was mentioned at an earlier council meeting that a city sales tax would be the only effective way for the city to be able to pay for the sewer project, the water plant renovation, and major work at the lagoon.

About 20 merchants attended the meeting with the council to discuss the city sales tax. All the figures were presented to the merchants as well as a fact sheet on how well the city sales tax idea was working in other cities of comparable size in Missouri.

Only one merchant spoke up against the city sales tax idea. Another merchant said he was personally against the idea but added that as far as the city was concerned, it would be a good thing.

Three merchants spoke up in defense of the city sales tax. Most of the merchants present at the meeting were non-committal.

Clyde Pruiett, owner of a grocery store on Ward Avenue between 5th and 6th Streets where a sewer break has been causing a lot of problems, said in answer to a remark that a city sales tax would drive shoppers out of Caruthersville:

"I've lost about $2,000 in the past week because of the sewer break near my store. The bakery had to close down for a day as well as another business near here. If the city sales tax is approved, the sewers will be fixed and business will go up. I think the people of Caruthersville will accept a city sales tax in order to get good sewers and better streets. I don't believe they will go outside the city to do business.

"As a matter of fact, I asked a customer the other day who had just bought $20 in groceries if she would mind paying an additional 20 cents on her groceries to insure excellent sewers and streets. She said she would not mind paying the additional 20 cents."

Johnny Mitchum, in speaking against the sales tax proposal, said "a city sales tax will drive people away from Caruthersville and we, the merchants, will lose money."

The other ordinance passed by the council called for a bond election in the amount of $400,000 for the purpose of improving and extending the combined waterworks and sewerage system oened exclusively by the city. The bonds will be payable, both to principal and interest, from taxes.

This election was made necessary, the council said, because the estimated costs of the improvements and extensions exceeds the income and revenues of the city. Sufficient funds are not now available in the treasury to pay for the work.

The mayor said the work "definitely must be done one way or another," citing the fact that "state inspectors will not allow our lagoon to continue as it is."

The mayor said if the city sales tax issue failed, a property tax increase would become necessary and a bond election called. If both elections fail, the mayor said the city would just have to "exist with rotten sewers, an ineffective water plant, and no lagoon."

"The city sales tax, however, is the fairest way to get the job done," the mayor remarked. "By this means, everyone would pay his fair share. If the property tax means was adopted, then only the property owners would pay an increase in taxes."

The mayor mentioned that if the city sales tax issue failed, the present $2 per $100 valuation property tax would increase 92 cents per $100 valuation on a 10 year payback for just the sewer work alone. This would mean the bond issue would be for $64,000. If the bond issue were made on a 20 year payback, the increase would be 32 cents per $100 valuation and the amount of the bond issue would be $32,000.

"But," the mayor continued, "we would also have to include the lagoon and the water distribution system."

On a 10 year payback, the bond issue for lagoon work would be $53,000, raising the property tax by 76 cents. On a 20 year payback, the bond issue would be $26,500, raising the property tax 38 cents per $100 valuation.

In regard to the water distribution system and talking about valves only, the bond issue would be $10,600 on a 10 year payback, raising the property tax $1.52 per $100 valuation. On the 20 year payback, the bond issue would be $5,300, raising the property tax 76 cents per $100 valuation.

Considering all three bond issues, the lowest the property tax would be raised would be $1.60 making it a total of $3.60 per $100 assessed valuation. On a 10 year payback, the property tax would mean an increase of $3.20, making the property tax $5.20 per $100 assessed valuation.

"It is the opinion of myself and the council," the mayor said, "that the city sales tax would be the fairest way to pay for what must be done."

Through carelessness or incendiarism, man causes the largest portion of forest fires in the United States. During 1971, some 94,365 fires, or 90 per cent, reported as having burned on protected lands, were man-caused, The World Almanac notes. More than 574 million acres of forest land are protected under the Federal-State Cooperative Forest Fire Control Program.

Bill provides for brand registry

By TOM B. STROUP
Area Associate Director

BENTON — The 76th Missouri Genreal Assembly passed House Bill No. 134 which provides for brand registry at the state level.

In order to register a brand, a farmer or rancher must complete an application with the state commissioner of agriculture.

A copy of House Bill 134 and application for brand registration are available from the Scott County University of Missouri Extension Center in Bengon.

The Department of Animal Husbandry, College of Agriculture, University of Missouri- Columbia, has prepared an excellent Guide Sheet No. 2205 on Branding Livestock. It is also available from your extension center.

The application for brand registration must be returned to Brand Registry Section, Veterinary Division, Missouri Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, together with a $15 recording fee.

To maintain a brand registry, there is a $10 maintenance fee payable every five years.

Branding is a long-recognized and widely-used means of identifying livestock. It is an excellent method of identifying ownership, and a good legible brand may offer protection against livestock theft. the only legal brands for ownership purposes is a hot iron brand on the hide of the animal.

For an application form, contact a university extension center.

Planning will insure adequate fertilizer supply

BLOOMFIELD — Indications are that fertilizer will be in short supply next spring; therefore, farmers should make plans now to deal with this situation. There are several things that can be done that will help to insure an adequate supply of fertilizer for next year's crops.

Phosphate and potash can be applied this fall even for crops to be planted next spring. Neither phosphate nor potash will leach from the soil excessively, so both nutrients will still be available in the soil for the benefit of next year's crops. As crops are harvested this fall, phosphate and potash fertilizers can be applied and plowed down or disked in to await planting season next spring.

Nitrogen as well as other plant food elements can be applied for wheat this fall - especially on clay and loam soils. In spite of the fact that some yield advantage can be gained by topdressing wheat in the early spring as compared to nitrogen applications made at seeding time in the fall, it is better to apply the nitrogen in the fall than to not get it applied at all. In case wheat has already been seeded the nitrogen can be topdressed on at any time. Of course real sandy soils would be the exception, and at least a major portion of the nitrogen should be applied as a topdressing in the early spring for wheat on such soils. Incidentally, comparable results can be expected from the various formulations of nitrogen including ammonium nitrate, urea, anhydrous ammonia, and liquid nitrogen when applied for wheat at equal rates.

A very important thing that a farmer can do to help stretch the supply of fertilizer as far as it will go during the shortage is to be certain that his soil is adequately limed. Lime not only supplies some plant nutrients such as calcium and magnesium, but it also helps other plant nutrients to produce the most efficient results. Included among the plant nutrients helped by lime are nitrogen, phosphate, and trace elements. Lime can be applied any time that trucks can get over the field and crops will not interfere with its application.

The use of soil test as a guide to the kind and amount of fertilizer and lime to apply will be even more important during the fertilizer shortage. A soil test helps us to determine the amount of each plant nutrient involved in crop production to apply to produce the desired crop yield. It helps to prevent the use of excesssive amounts of plant nutrients. It also helps us to determine the proper amount of lime to apply to correct soil acidity and maximize the effectiveness of other plant nutrients. Now is a good time to take soil samples in preparation for planting next year's crop. It should be kept in mind that two to three weeks are required to test the soil and get fertilizer and lime recommendations back to the farmer after he brings his soil samples to the University of Mo. Extension Center.

If the fertilizer shortage becomes as serious as current prospects indicate, steps taken now to help insure an adequate fertilizer supply for next year's crops could mean the difference between a good crop and a poor one next year.

Armed Forces

FT. POLK, La. (AHTNC) — Army Private Jimmie L. Kincade, 18, son of Mrs. Irene Kincade, 513 Lincoln St., Charleston, Mo., completed nine weeks of advanced individual training at the U. S. Army Infantry training center, Ft.Polk, La.

He received general training as a light weapons infantryman and as a mortar and recoilless rifle crewman, in addition to specialized weapons instruction.

He also was taught the proper use of high explosives and the placement, detection and disarming of mines.

Teamwork was emphasized while he learned to work as a member of a rifle squad, mortar squad or direct fire section. Each team member completed the training well qualified to perform other jobs in case of casualties.

ASCHAFFENBURG, Germany — Jimmie L. Williams, son of Mrs. Ruby M. Williams of 3300 W. Dickens Ave., Chicago, has been promoted to Army sergeant.

Sgt. Williams is a tank commander in Company A, 4th Battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division's 64th Armor.

U.S. ARMY, Korea — Army Specialist Four Robert L. Nowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Nowell of Portageville. Mo. Route One, is assigned to the 44th Air Defense Artillery in Korea.

Spec. Nowell is assigned with Battery D, 2nd Battalion of the Artillery.

His wife Linda lives in Walshville, Ill., Route One.

Alumnus donates bird collection to University

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A Southeast Missouri State University alumnus recently gave the university a collection of mounted bird speciments which includes almost all North American species of waterfoul and many foreign species.

The collection donated by M. Glen Smart of Bowie, Md., is on display in Southeast Missouri State's Magill Hall of Sicence where it will be used as a teaching aid in various field biology courses.

It consists of 85 ducks and geese and 30 quail, grouse, and other miscellaneous species.

"This collection has been appraised at approximately $4,100, but it has far more value to us in terms of an educational aid," said Paul Heye, associate professor of biology at Southeast Missouri State. Heye added the value is enhanced because of the care Smart took in mounting each specimen and noted, "It is considered to be the second best collection of waterfowl in the state."

The Southeast Missouri State professor said a larger part of Smart's collection is currently on loan to the University of Missouri.

Smart, originally from Campbell, graduated with honors from Southeast Missouri State in 1959 with degrees in zoology and secondary education. In 1962 he earned a master's degree in wildlife management at the University of Missouri.

During 1963 he served as a resident biologist at the Round Lake Waterfowl Station in Minnesoat. He has been associated with the U. S. Department of Interior since 1964.

Currently he is chief of the Section of Propagation, Endangered Wildlife Research Program, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, Patuxent, Md.

His sister, Miss Vada Smart, is a supervisor at Southeast Missouri State's Campus School.

Voters elect Ledbetter

HAYTI — Hayti voters went to the polls Tuesday and elected Lt. Kermit Ledbetter of the Hayti Police Department to fill the unexpired term left vacant by the death of the late Chief Fritz McKay.

Ledbetter won over George Camp, a Hayti car salesman, and Sherman Manley, a licensed practical nurse at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital. Both Camp and Manley were formerly on the police force.

Ledbetter had been appointed acting police chief by the City Council after McKay's death Sept. 26.

Parents may enter their daughters in the contest by contacting Mrs. Mike Bullock at 276-2641.

The Little Miss Malden contest is sponsored annually by the Malden Kiwanis Club.

Former Oran man recovering from near fatal burns

MANCHESTER — Eddie Carroll, a native of Oran, is recuperating satisfactorily at his home in Manchester after being hospitalized for nearly four months with deep burns over 50 per cent of his body.

On May 23, Carroll, a sign company employe, mounted an extension ladder to repair a sign at a restaurant and motel near Chain of Rocks Road at Granite City, Ill.

The sign's hinge broke loose and either touched or came very close to wires carrying 34,000 volts of electricity. The current jumped to the ladder, knocking Carroll's partner, who was coming up the ladder, to the ground. He died five hours later of burns and internal injuries.

Carroll's clothing was set on fire and his upper body was paralyzed. He could not move from the ladder, but he screamed for help.

A Granite City youth, Stephen Smith, 18, was mowing the grass on the ground below as a part- time maintenance worker for the motel and restaurant.

He heard the screams and without hesitation climbed the 40 feet to the place where Carroll was frozen to the ladder. He tore the clothing from Carroll's body and extinguished the flames with a cloth he had grabbed from a truck as he ascended the ladder.

For at least 45 minutes the two stayed on the ladder because there was danger that any movement would cause the ladder to touch the wire again and send a second flow of current through Carroll and his rescurer. It was necessary for firemen to obtain a snorkel truck from Union Electric Co. to get the men down.

Carroll was a patient in the burn unit at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis where he was given a 10 per cent chance to live until the end of July.

A friend, Lt. W. G. Wilson of the Cape Girardeau Police Department, visits Carroll in his home and talks to him by telephone. He said the staff at Barnes Hospital expects Carroll to gain use off his arm again and possibly return to a normal life.

Carroll's wife is the former Miss Carol Chaney of Cape Girardeau. They have six children..

His rescuer, Stephen Smith, has taught first aid to young scouts at Camp Sunnen in Potosi. He is an assistant scoutmaster and holds the Order of the Arrow, an honorary organization for scout leaders.

Madrid seniors to present play

NEW MADRID — The senior class of New Madrid High School will present a three- act comedy, "Suitable for Hanging", at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the school gymnasium.

The play, about a man who seems to have misplaced an entire day of his life, is a mixture of humor and suspense.

The cast includes:

Charlie Hackle, played by Timmy Fowler; Abby Raney, Karol Hooser; Mrs. Raney, Mary Catherine Sides; Mom Hackle, Marsha Commer; Sam Adams, Horrell Townsend; Frank Raney, Bill Cravens; Mini and Maxi Wrenn, Georgia Ivy and Joanne Gardner; Hilga Grindstaff, Loretta Beaher; Tina Williams, Mary Ellen Akins; Anatole Grindstaff, Dean Pipkin; and Professor Zapotka, Julie Ellis.

Tickets may be purchased from any senior, or at the door.

WORKING WOMEN CHAINED IN 1973

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Chaining women to work benches might be every male chauvinist's dream, but it's a reality for the girls who work at Pitney-Bowes-Alpex here.

The shackles, however, aren't meant to keep them in line but only to dissipate the static electricity from their bodies. The girls assemble metal oxide semiconductors into printed circuit boards for computerized cash register terminals.

Even the slightest charge of electricity will "pop" the delicate electronic circuits, so the girls wear wristlets attached to chains leading to a ground on the workbench.

Earl Braswell

An unidentified Chinese craftsman turned out a "dragon clock" sometime around 1000 A. D. Transverse bars are evenly spaced across the body of the metal figure. A wooden rod of the proper dimension, lighted at the end, burns from one bar to the next in approximately an hour. A cord with weights at both ends is placed at the bracket representing the wake-up hour. When the burning rod severs the cord, weights drop into copper basins below. Now exhibited in the Lourve, the dragon clock was used many centuries before spring and pendulum driven alarm clocks were perfected.

Time for leisure– time for fun – and time to relax! The whole family has time to enjoy freedom from home chores. Teenagers love the feel of well-managed hair after shampooing with Refined Water, and Baby is comfy in soft, clean clothes. The Lady of the home can relax without worrying about all the hours she needs for scrubbing, rinsing, and washing, because all she needs is Refined Water and soap to have her home and everything in it sparkling clean. Her clothes are softer and fluffier too! Hubby enjoys the ease of maintaining his home in tip-top shape -- his money stretches further without having to replace plumbing fixtures or other water bearing appliances too often – he finds time to enjoy his favorite sport or hobby. So can you! Call Braswell.

The new Wayne Newton is real

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "It's difficult to be a kid at 31," said Wayne Newton, explaining why a few years ago he began revising his first edition of himself.

"The old Wayne Newton conjurs up an image of a heavier, shorter guy who was almost a character I was doing, it was an act I had done so long," he said by telephone from Las Vegas, where he has become a fixture at hotels like The Sands.

Wayne Newton No. 1 was a chubby, short-haired, baby faced, all American-boy who sang in a high-pitched voice that undermined his size. He directed his considerable talents into schmaltzy songs like "Danke Shane" and "Red Roses for a Blue Lady."

Then, Newton said, "I decided I was going to grow up, stop being so naive."

But change of image also involved work.

He quit eating long enough to lose 90 pounds from his 6-foot-3 frame. "I have energy I never had before. I feel great."

He married a 5-foot-3 Japanese beauty named Elaine.

Marrying Elaine six years ago wasn't part of the master plan to convert Wayne Newton from what he called personality into person, but he said it served notice he meant to be "the Wayne Newton I really am."

"I knew I would probably lose some fans in the transition," he said. "But I figured the ones it took away, I probably wouldn't need anyway."

He let his hair grow and put together a nightclub act to showcase his versatility. He sings country, pop, country-pop and easy listening. He's a comedian, an actor and a bit of a dancer. He plays nine instruments.

Newton has been described by a reviewer as "a hurricane, a performer who bursts on stage with enough energy to launch a rocket. He plays more weeks a year in Vegas than any other performer and in one seven-week period appeared before 99,000 people.

Newton, who began his career in Vegas in 1959, likes to work.

"I'm in my 15th week without a night off," he said. "It becomes a way of life ... when I work, I work. I don't mix work with play."

What's the Law?

The case of the frenzied contractor

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After Mabel hired Sam to renovate her house, she became a constant booing in his ear. She constantly complained about everything from the quality of the materials used and the calibre of the workmanship employed to the way Sam parted his hair.

Finally, Sam parted from Mabel. Popping his ink, he walked off the job in a frenzy and left her stranded, with her mouth still open, in an unfinished house in the dead of winter.

The result? With all the openings in the house, when the icy winds blew outside, Mabel turned blue inside. She also turned to court where she sued Sam for the physical and emotional distress she was forced to endure.

"Not only did he not complete his contract," Mabel charged in court, "but he left me to the perils of the elements. All winter long, I felt like an Eskimo living in an igloo. Even the water on my knee froze."

"If I hadn't quit the job," responded the frenzied contractor, "I'd have ended up on a funny farm. By constantly telling me and my men what to do, Mabel was driving me crazy. I had no choice but to leave."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the frenzied contractor pay Mabel for her physical and emotional distress?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a person can collect for psychological harm that results from a breach of contact if the breach is due to extreme or outrageous conduct. But, concluded the judge, in this case, Sam's conduct was not so outrageous. Freedom to ventilate one's feelings on occasion is necessary if we are to maintain our optimum emotional health.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCAITED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Nov. 1, the 305th day of 1973. There are 60 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb at Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Also, on this date:

In 1765, some American colonists defied their royal governors as the British Stamp Act went into effect.

In 1788, the U.S. Continental Congress, which had first met in 1774, was adjourned.

In 1864, the U.S. Post Office introduced postal money orders.

In 1940, British bombers hit Naples, Italy, for the first time in World War II.

In 1945, the British announced that all evidence indicated that Adolf Hitler had killed himself in a bunker in Berlin.

Cost cutters shot out of the water

WASHINGTON (NEA)

With the congressional budget cutters now conclusively beaten on the issue, the United States is on the money escalator for sure with its new sea-based nuclear missile deterrent, the potent Trident submarine.

Funds for this new fiscal year are about $1.7 billion for Trident, roughly double last year's total. Next year the President will seek a sum well above $2 billion. The estimated cost for the whole program thus far envisioned — development and production of 10 Tridents — is $13.5 billion.

The congressional battle was close this time, but the victory will make it difficult hereafter for critics to try to slow down a program that already has so much money invested in it.

Curiously, Mr. Nixon triumphed just about the time some arms control specialists were meeting to argue, among other things, that we could get along without Trident until the 1990s.

More conservative critics outside Congress, like those at the Brookings institution, contend that reversion to the earlier, pre-speedup schedule — calling for completion of the first Trident in the early 1980s instead 1978 as currently planned — would save an average of about $1 billion a year for the rest of this decade.

About half of that spending says Brookings in its 1974 budget review, would merely be deferred until later. The other half represents its estimate of probable savings from greater production efficiency.

The point in that contention is that developing and producing a new weapons system concurrently, which is the consequence of speedup, results inevitably in wastage along the way. Late discovery of designing "bugs" can produce costly production line changes.

Brookings argues further that other kinds of cost overruns could bring the final cost of building 10 Tridents to "significantly more" than the projected $13.5 billion.

The research body has another cost-saving notion. Under present plans, the new nuclear fleet is to be fitted first with missiles bearing warheads having a range up to 4,500 miles. Brookings figures that if we go straight to the Trident II missile, range 6,000 miles, and skip the 4,500-mile version, we could save at least $2.5 billion.

As an alternative to skipping a missile generation, the research specialists suggest putting the Trident I missile on the 31 Polaris-Poseidon vessels, now being refitted with longer-range (up to 3,500 miles) weapons carrying 10 to 14 independently-targeted warheads in each basic rocket.

Some other sources suggest, however, that, though this was once the government's plan, refitting the original Polaris fleet a second time might require firing-system changes and other modifications whose cost — not even guessed at today — might be so high as to be nearly prohibitive.

Pardons granted by Hearnes questioned

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Hugh Sprague, a legal assistant to Gov. Christopher S. Bond, said Wednesday it was impossible to say just how many pardons may have been granted in the last 10 weeks of the Warren E. Hearnes administration because records are incomplete.

Bond was asked to comment earlier this week on reports that at least 40 pardons were granted in the closing days of the Hearnes administration and said, "We have no grounds to say there was any defect in .

On Tuesday he said records in his office indicate proper procedures were not always followed.

Sprague said:

"It's clear that some pardons were granted without going through the secretary of state's office or the Board of Probation and Parole."

Sprague said he is trying to reconstruct the public record but is having trouble doing so. He said 13 pardons were recorded by the secretary of state last November, 19 in December and eight in the first week of January, the last week Hearnes was in office.

But eight of the 40 pardons were not accounted for in records of the governor's office, although they were signed by the governor.

The pardons were all signed by Hearnes, except for three, which were signed by former Lt. Gov. William Morris, acting in Hearnes' absence.

Sprague said most of the pardons appeared to be based on recent investigations and recommendations of the Board of Probation and Parole, but some were not.

The pardon of Arthur J. Berne, signed by Morris last Dec. 20, had been based on a 1968 recommendation by the parole board, although two subsequent reports by the parole board did not recommend pardon, Sprague said the records show.

Hearnes had denied Berne a pardon, based on the 168 report. "I figured it would receive the same amount of attention it is receiving now, and I didn't want to be connected with it," he told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Berne, who lives in Belleville, Ill., said he asked for the pardon to restore his civil rights, such as voting, and he wanted to go into business.

Morris was not available for comment.

Sprague said one pardon came to his attention when a draft board in Quincy, Ill., wrote and asked for an original copy of the pardon granted to a man who was now seeking to enter military service.

Sprague said there was no record of the pardon being granted and now the only record of it is a copy of the copy the draft board had.

Sprague said there might arise a question of whether certain pardons are valid if they had not been signed by the secretary of state before being signed by the governor and sent out.

As harvest is completed

Farmers should consider fertilizing

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE— Farmers are urged to consider the application of fertilizer and limestone as they complete the harvest of their 1973 crops. Fertilizer and lime should be applied according to soil test recommendations.

If you have not had your soil tested in the past 3 to 4 years, it is out of date. Every field on your farm should be tested this often. Fields should be sampled as soon as possible so they can be submitted and tested before the rush season begins at the laboratory.

Fall application of fertilizer will be important this year because of the expected fertilizer demand and supply situation. Forecasts are for increased crop acreages next spring. Rate of fertilizer used per acre is likely to be as high, or higher in 1974, than in past years, so total demand could reach an all time record in the spring months.

Shortages occurred in some sections of Southeast Missouri last spring, and the situation is expected to be touch and go again next year. Applying phosphate and potash as crops are harvested can avoid potential supply problems, and also help ease the supply picture by distributing demand over a longer period. Nitrogen can be applied this fall for wheat on clay and mixed loam soils, but better wait until spring to topdress sandy soils.

The demand for food prices for feed grains and soybeans, plus short supplies of fertilizer all make this a poor year to use too little, too much, or the wrong analysis. That's why I suggest getting soil samples soon after harvest as possible. Sampling early sets the stage to follow harvesting machinery with fertilizer spreading equipment. Applying materials according to soil test results will provide ample fertility for good yeilds next year. It will also eliminate the possibility of using more than is required, thus conserving fertilizer supplies. Nitrogen should not be applied this fall for 1974 row crops, because most of it may be lost.

Soil tests have been used extensively in this area, but many fields have not been tested since 1970. Testing in those cases is desirable, and now is an excellent time to take samples. Sampling may be a time- consuming job, but it will eliminate the need to take samples next winter when soils may be frozen or muddy. Everything considered, it looks like a logical way to live with the current fertilizer supply, demand situation.

Farmers should take soil samples to their county University of Missouri Extension Center or directly to the Area Soil Testing Laboratory at Portageville. They should be prepared to give a short history on each sample. The fee is $2.50 per sample, or less than 10 cents per acre.

Survey shows grocery prices ease off slightly

Families who have been feeding their kids peanut butter sandwiches in an effort to beat the price spiral got some bad news in October. An Associated Press marketbasket survey shows peanut butter prices went up almost everywhere.

The AP checked the price of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1 and has rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed that overall grovery prices have eased off a bit from September, but remain well above their March levels.

Chopped chuck went down in price, reflecting a decline in livestock prices which started after the beef freeze ended in September.

On the other hand, worldwide demand for almost all commodities including oils, pushed up the price of peanut butter. The Department of Agriculture reported Wednesday that the price of raw farm products showed a drop of 4 per cent in October, which is expected to be reflected in lower supermarket prices later.

The agency said lower prices for cattle, hogs, wheat, broiler chickens and eggs contributed most to the decline.

The AP survey showed that from Oct. 1 to Nov. 1, the total marketbasket cost declined in 9 of 13 cities. The decreases ranged from almost 6 per cent in Salt Lake City and Chicago to a fraction of 1 per cent in Atlanta and Seattle. The average decrease was about 2 per cent.

A comparison of March 1 and Nov. 1 prices, however, showed the marketbasket was up in every city checked. On the average, prices were 8 per cent higher on Nov. 1 than on March 1. On Oct. 1, prices were about 9 per cent higher than on March 1.

A check of the number of items increasing and decreasing showed that from Oct. 1 to Nov. 1, 29 per cent of the 195 items checked went up in price; 25 per cent went down; 37 per cent were unchanged; and 9 per cent were not available on one of the survey dates.

From March 1 to Nov. 1, 68 per cent of the total number of items checked increased in price; 13 per cent declined; 6 per cent were unchanged; and 13 per cent were not available.

Peanut butter was up in more cities than any other item in October, rising in 10 of 13 cities, with increases averaging about 5 per cent.

Chopped chuck, in comparison, declined in eight cities dropping an average of 13 per cent to about $1.15 cents a pound in most areas.

Consumers found little to cheer about as they scanned the supermarket aisles, however.

One recently married New York man who made his first major shopping expedition this week commented sarcastically: "I went shopping Wednesday and racked up $22.93 in grocery bills for my wife and me. That should get us through Friday."

Mrs. Joe Stewart of Albuquerque, N.M., shopping for her husband and three children, said: "I'm buying as little as I can. We're eating out of stocked up canned goods and we're cutting down on meat even though it's dropped."

French Popularizes Science

LOVE OF EARTH. By Herbert E. French. Putnam. 314 Pages. $7.95.

For the lay reader this is a book about what the author calls Earth Island, and it falls somehow in the category of popularized science, with a potpourri of recent items about oddities and oddments in the news.

Its main themes are geophysics, geology, the earth crust, minerals and mining, forests, animals, farming, cities and recreational activities in nature.

As popularized science writing, it delves into such topics as "the new science of global plate tectonics" as an explanation of the shifting surfaces of this planet. But it also (1) conveys a staggering number of minor items, such as where to find the biggest gem stones or the biggest manmade stone sculptures, or the fact that Marie Antoinette wore potato flowers in her hair at Versailles; and (2) throws in side comments on the good earth, for example (on adjoining pages) by Cincinnatus, George Washington, Irving Berlin and Antoine de Saint-Exupery.

McClanahan asked to stay until successor is named

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Baptist Convention has asked Dr. H. L. McClanahan to continue in the post of interim executive secretary until a permanent successor to Dr. Earl O. Harding is selected.

Dr. McClanahan came to the annual assembly seeking to withdraw as a candidate for the job. He assumed the interim position in August following the death of Dr. Harding, who was under fire at the time for his accounting procedures.

On Tuesday, members heard a report that two accounting firms found the convention's financial records to be inefficient and inadequate.

Two thousand messengers to the assembly elected 20 persons to the 51-member executive board late Wednesday. Five of the 20 were nominated from the floor after nominations offered by a special committee were rejected.

It also was decided that the executive board will select the executive committee, which handles the convention's administrative affairs. That function formerly had been the executive secretary's responsibility.

The convention, which began Tuesday, ends today.

Being priceless can also mean that you're worthless.

Book Review

VD BLUES
presented by Educational Broadcasting Corporation
Avon 15156/$.95
220 pp.

VD BLUES, the WNET television program that has won awards and rave reviews for its straight- from- the -shoulder exposition on the VD epidemic, is now an Avon book. Taking the Sesame Street approach (learning can be so much fun you don't realize you're doing it) to teaching adolescents, WNET's production of VD BLUES used rock songs, dramatic skits, and non-proseletizing monologues by host Dick Cavett to tell the hard truth about the VD epidemic that is victimizing 14- to- 18- year olds. Avon's VD BLUES, a paperback original, contains the complete script of VD BLUES as well as an edited transcript of WNET's highly successful program VD Hotline, plus a bibliography of free and inexpensive informational materials on VD, and a listing of health services.
